Marshal Foch.
The Slow Mind of Man.
The Standard Oil Fight.
How Is It in Heaven?

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

MARSHAL FOCH is dangerously ill of heart disease, at 77.

He is an able strategist, one of the great fighting Frenchmen. It was an inspiration to hear him say, in a voice of determination that actually made his hearers' flesh creep, "There was nothing to do but start the armies and CONQUER."

His look and his voice uttering that word "vaincre," "conquer," showed the power in that brain, half Basque, half French.

MARSHAL FOCH will die a contented, happy man, knowing that his genius, backed and selected by Clemenceau and Lloyd George, maintained the integrity of France. He will lie under the gilded dome of the Palace of the Invalides, close to the tomb of Napoleon Bonaparte, greatest of all modern generals, but not half so good a man as Foch, and not a patriot.

THE American Philosophical Society "surveys the world's intellect" and will not find much improvement.

Man's brain is little, if any, better than it was a thousand years ago. There is no leader greater than Xenophon, no mind capable of containing half the information that Aristotle possessed, and to a great extent originated.

No modern writers compare with Greeks, Homer, Euripides, Sophocles, Aristophanes, except Shakespeare. No artist except Michel-Angelo to compare with Greek sculptors.

BUT man has gone on inventing, adding to scientific discoveries, making life longer, disease less dangerous, wealth greater.

Man has changed and improved little within himself, but has steadily added to his valuable productions, like a hen laying many eggs but remaining the same hen.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR., requests proxies against Col. Stewart, head of Standard Oil of Indiana. Col. Stewart accepts the challenge and will fight.

That interests employes of Standard Oil of Indiana owning stock in the company.

Wonder what will happen if they send proxies to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Col. Stewart wins the fight?

OF EIGHT men killed in an Army transport plane recently, five are buried in Arlington Cemetery.

Lieut. Angell has a service in the vault at the cemetery, and four others are buried in the enlisted men's section of the cemetery.

Those eight men all lost their lives in the service of their country. WHY an enlisted men's section?

Is there an enlisted men's section in heaven? Or does that nonsense stop after you leave the cemetery?

AMANULLAH, king of Afghanistan, had an idea and tried to make the Afghans adopt it.

European clothes for all, no veils on our wives' faces, was his plan.

Veils remain on Afghan women's faces and Amanullah has abdicated.

HIS father was assassinated, he wants to live, and passes the throne to his brother Inayatullah.

Those who believe it possible to change the habits of millions by writing a Volstead law, take notice.

Bootleg statistics show that it is, at least, difficult.

IN NEW YORK yesterday, with temperature seven degrees above zero, a man died of cold. That will amuse the Eskimos and Mr. Nurmi, who runs rapidly. In Finland, where he was born, the temperature drops to fifty degrees below zero.

California, Florida and the Gulf Coast will be interested.

NEWSPAPER publishers learn with interest and without grief, that increased newsprint production in Canada has caused a drop in prices of $10 to $15 a ton. Newsprint producers say reduction of output, or price war, is inevitable. In eleven years Canadian production has risen from 689,847 to 2,000,000 tons a year.

MELLON EXPLAINS DRY VETO

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Secretary of Treasury Mellon's reasons for opposing a $25,000,000 appropriation for prohibition enforcement were outlined today in a letter to Senator Warren (Rep.), of Wyoming, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

At the insistence of Senator Harris (Dem.), of Georgia, the committee had jumped the current appropriation by $12,000,000.

The Treasury cannot use the extra money to advantage until it determines the exact requirements of the border patrol, coast guard and other dry agencies, Mellon said.

"I am not prepared to say that prohibition enforcement cannot be made more effective by the expenditure of increased amounts for that purpose, but I feel that no such appropriation should be made until it can be definitely allocated to certain specific purposes," Mellon said. "Any other method of procedure necessarily will result in the extravagant use of public funds."

EDUCATIONAL FUND

As far as the prohibition bureau itself is concerned some additional funds could be used advantageously in greater investigational activities and in a well-considered educational program, Mellon declared.

The Secretary added that looking to the future it will, no doubt, be advantageous to provide additional funds for an increased border patrol in the customs service, a greater customs force at the principal ports of entry and an expansion of the equipment for the coast guard.

SMUGGLING CRUSADE

Mellon said the Treasury has started surveys of the need of the border patrol following the refusal of Canada to co-operate to prevent smuggling. He also disclosed that Rear Admiral Frederick C. Billard, commandant of the Coast Guard, has been asked to submit a plan for a five-year shipbuilding program adequate to meet the smuggling situation.

SEES SURVEY NEEDED

"The problem of prohibition enforcement has many ramifications, and its successful solution depends not only on ample appro-

Rear Admiral Frederick C. Billard, commandant, U. S. Coast Guard, has been asked to prepare and submit a five-year building program for a border patrol capable of stamping out liquor smuggling, Secretary Mellon disclosed today.

FOCH RESTING MORE EASILY

PARIS, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Marshal Ferdinand Foch today continued his courageous fight for life with his condition apparently a little easier. During the night there was no change in the 77-year-old soldier's condition.

Doctors attending the marshal issued this bulletin at 9 a. m.:

"There is a slight attenuation of the symptoms. The state of the heart and the renal condition both present an amelioration."

His condition was reported stationary this afternoon.

While medical opinion now did not regard the case as hopeless, it was acknowledged that it was one of great gravity. Judgment as to the outcome was reserved because of the age of the Marshal, whoe sturdy frame has been worn by the manifold activities into which he has thrown himself since the conclusion of the World War.

There were intermittent sinking

Clemenceau, French War Premier, 87, Ill

PARIS, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Georges Clemenceau, famous war-time premier, has been confined to his home several days with the grippe.

His condition was reported not serious excepting for the possibility of complications, but because of the age of the patient—he is 87—bad colds are always regarded by his entourage as disquieting.

BABE RUTH TELLS OF TRAGEDY

International News Service.

BOSTON, Jan. 15.—"This thing has licked me. I don't care if I never play baseball again. I'm through. The only thing I want is to get away from it all and go away somewhere—alone."

In his suite at the Brunswick Hotel, Babe had been on his bed, tossing in agony, his eyes red from weeping, his hands trembling, his clothes rumpled.

"It all seems like a terrible nightmare," he said. "This blow has hit me squarely between the eyes."

In spite of the shock and heartbreak of his discovery that his wife had been living at the Dr. Edward Kinder home, the Babe displayed no bitterness toward the memory of the girl he had loved who was burned to death last Friday in the doctor's home, Watertown.

On the contrary, he declared he would always remember her with tenderness, with affection and with kindly thoughts.

SYMPATHY FOR FAMILY

"My first thought," he continued, "is to care for the family of my unfortunate wife. Our grief is mutual. I want to help to lessen their grief. My first thought is one of sympathy for them."

Ruth said he would spare no expense to give his wife a fitting funeral. Informed that Mrs. Ruth's family contemplated erecting an expensive headstone over her grave, he said he desired to do that himself as a tribute of his love.

"I love her still," he said. "She was unfortunate, a victim of circumstances. I hold nothing against her."

The "Babe" of old, with colored shirt and gaily-hued suits, was a far different "Babe" that Boston saw today. He seemed older. The grief that racked his heart already told in his face.

On the street he was dressed in deep mourning. A black felt hat, a black coat and black four-in-hand tie completed the garb of the "big boy" of baseball.

The carefully prepared statement that Ruth intended to read was forgotten.

"BAMBINO" WEEPS

He clenched those big hands that hold the "home run bats" saying:

"All I want to say, is that it was a great shock to me. Please let my wife alone. Let her stay dead."

And then the "Bambino" broke into tears.

Finally he was asked if he had the

COUNCIL'S PAY BOOSTER UP

By WILLIAM I. GRUNDISH

Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 15. — All Pittsburgh councilmen will get $8,000 a year instead of $6,500 if a bill presented today by Senator William D. Mansfield is approved.

At present some of the councilmen get the lesser amount because of the law prohibiting them from taking advantage of a pay increase during their term. The Mansfield bill would repeal that law.

A bill to repeal the anthracite tax was introduced in both branches of the General Assembly.

Senator Robert D. Heaton, Schuylkill, introduced the measure in the Senate and it was promptly referred by Lieut. Gov. James, president of the new committee on repeal bills.

Representative Charles W. Staudenmeier, Schuylkill, introduced a companion measure in the House.

Senator Albert C. Davis, Lackawanna, introduced the first piece of legislation in the Senate. He presented a bill to pay deficiencies caused by the increase in salaries

WOMAN IN GUNMAN'S AUTO

Peter Bubanovich, 33, who was to have testified today before the federal grand jury which is investigating the alleged North Side rum ring, was shot by a gunman outside his home, 3924 Sewickley road, North Side, early today.

There was no indication that the gunman was trying to intimidate a prospective witness, but it was regarded as significant that after he had shot the saloonkeeper, who had $300 in his pockets, he escaped in an automobile without attempting to rob him.

A woman sat in the front seat of the car.

Bubanovich was among the 150 witnesses who appeared in Federal Court yesterday. He was sent home and told to return today to add whatever he could to the story of North Side alleged racketeers.

Bubanovich was rushed to Presbyterian Hospital in a serious condition, a bullet in his body.

"Stick 'em up, pal, I'm in the game now," the gunman ordered the saloonkeeper as he accosted him outside the garage in the rear of the man's home.

Instead of obeying the order, Bubanovich turned around. The gunman fired, and rushed to his nearby auto.

North Side police today questioned a man and woman, whose identity was kept secret. The police refused to say whether what they learned supported the theory that the shooting was an attempt to intimidate a government witness.

Bubanovich also had testified before the county grand jury which indicted a group of North Siders as alleged conspirators.

Bubanovich's saloon is at 1325 California avenue.

ZERO WEATHER TRAILS SNOW, DUE TONIGHT

Still Chilly!

Hourly temperatures reported for today by the Weather Bureau follow:

Midnight	22	8 a. m.	19
1 a. m.	23	9 a. m.	18
2 a. m.	23	10 a. m.	17
3 a. m.	24	11 a. m.	18

5 a. m.	21	1 p. m.	21
6 a. m.	21	2 p. m.	22
7 a. m.	18	3 p. m.	23

With a snowfall officially recorded by the Weather Bureau as five inches, but one to three inches deeper in outlying districts and six inches a fair average, Pittsburgh and surrounding territory awoke this morning to find itself temporarily snowbound.

Street car traffic was interrupted practically throughout the system and local train service was somewhat delayed and as a result thousands of persons reported late for work this morning.

COLD WAVE TONIGHT

More zero weather tonight was the prediction of the United States Weather Bureau. The latest cold wave is sweeping in from the West.

The temperature will drop rapidly late today, W. S. Brotzman, local forecaster, said.

Snow began falling shortly after 1 a. m. today. The Pittsburgh Railways Company early anticipated trouble and put its 35 traction snow plows into action. All track crews were also called out. The snow, however, got the best of the workers and as regular service began numerous interruptions were reported from various divisions.

48 IN FIRST N. S. PROBE ESCAPE RETRIAL

The United States government carried on today in its renewal of the investigation into North Side's alleged rum ring by indicting 25 policemen, politician and alleged racketeers.

Those indicted included Police Inspector Charles Faulkner, John O'Donnell, Republican chairman of the Twenty-second Ward; Police Lieuts. John J. Lynch and Edward J. Arthurs.

The charge against each defendant is conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act. The specific accusations are sale, manufacture and transportation of booze.

CHAIRMEN GO FREE

O'Donnell was the only ward chairman indicted.

Forty-eight of the 73 indicted in the original North Side ring investigation were not mentioned in the reindictments.

The grand jury ignored the bills against William Herd, chairman of the Twenty-first Ward, and Justus Schroedel, chairman of the Twenty-fourth Ward, both of whom were indicted and subsequently acquitted in the first trials growing out of the federal probe.

State Assemblyman Samuel J. Grenet, who was acquitted in the first investigation was not named in the grand jury indictment.

GRENET NOT NAMED

The list of indictments was handed down in five true bills, each taking in one ward — Twenty-first, Twenty-second, Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth and Twenty-seventh.

Blue Law and 1-Man Car Bills Offered

HARRISBURG, Jan. 15.—Representative George F. Howe, Allegheny, today offered a bill to prohibit the operation of one-man trolley cars "on grades of two per cent or upwards." Representative M. A. Musmann, of Allegheny, offered a measure to give any municipality the right to hold a referendum on the question of Sunday amusements. A petition signed by 15 per cent of the electorate would place the proposition before a general election under the measure.

Slight Flu Decrease Shown in 23 States

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(INS.)—Three states reported 55,429 new influenza cases for the week ending January 12, as compared to 60,820 new cases the preceding week, the Public Health Service announced today.

In remarking on the inadequacy of the report, officials declared no statistics are available from Pennsylvania or New York, where the population is about 20,000,000.

WHERE GRAND JURY WITNESS WAS SHOT AT REAR OF HIS HOME

Rear of the Bubanovich home, 3924 Sewickley road, where Peter Bubanovich, 33, saloonkeeper who was to have testified today before the federal grand jury investigating the alleged North Side rum ring, was shot down early today by a gunman who fled and escaped in a car in which a woman waited for him. The victim has just put his car in his garage and $300 in his pocket was untouched.

CAN'T STEAL CHICKENS FROM WIFE—GARDNER

A man can't steal from his wife; what's his is hers and what's hers is his—District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner.

And so, today, Gardner released from the county jail a man who was charged with stealing three chickens and a ham from his spouse.

The husband, Harry Forsythe, 45, a farmer of Glenmore road, West View, had admitted before Justice of the Peace Arthur Davis that he stole the ham and the birds and traded the stuff for moonshine.

Since January 7, Forsythe, held for court, had been in jail. Warden John McNeil told Gardner about the case today. Gardner discharged the prisoner and promised that the grand jury would ignore the case.

25 STREETS ROPED OFF TO MAKE COASTING SAFE

Police Superinendent Peter P. Walsh today directed his commissioners to designate streets for coasting in each district that the boys and girls may take advantage safely of the first real snowfall of the season.

About 25 thoroughfares, with no street car intersections, and with enough grade to give zest to sledding, will be set apart in the city, Walsh said. Each street will be roped off and at night red lights will be placed to warn autoists of the ban. No vehicular traffic will be permitted on "coasting streets."

During the late afternoons and night patrolmen will be assigned to each street to guard against accidents.

Old-fashioned bobsledding parties are in vogue beginning today in North and South parks, where Paul B. Rees, director of county parks, has had special runways prepared. The runways are 800 to 1,000 feet long. Two bobsleds, accommodating 15 people each, will be available for use by the public.

The South Park runway is on the Brownsville road near Wilson School, and the North Park course near Rose Grove, the approach being through Babcock boulevard.

Wood fires will be burning. The runways will be open until 11 p. m. as long as snow conditions are favorable.

A measure amending the present act providing state compensation for

Coolidge Asked to State

HARRISBURG, Jan. 15. — President Coolidge was urged to consider the Blue Ridge Mountain section of Pennsylvania as a site for the summer White House in a resolution adopted by the House today. D. Erskine Witherspoon, of Franklin, fathered the resolution, and painted a glowing picture of that mountain region.

Veterans' Hospital Aid

HARRISBURG, Jan. 15.—Representative Joseph C. Marcus, Allegheny, offered a bill requiring the licensing of teachers and practisers of cosmetology. He also introduced a bill fixing the salaries of tipstaffs in the Pittsburgh courts at $2,600 annually. Representative George F. Howe, of Allegheny, sponsored a bill to provide for hospitalization of all former service men and women in state hospitals.

Ask Chiropractor Board

HARRISBURG, Jan. 15. — Creation of a separate examining board for chiropractors and other cults of drugless therapists was provided in one of five bills introduced in the House of Representatives by James J. Heffernan, Philadelphia.

Auto Insurance Fight

HARRISBURG, Jan. 15. — The fight on compulsory automobile insurance in this state will resume in this session of the State Legislature just where it left off two years ago. Representative Louis Schwartz, Philadelphia, introduced the bill in the form in which it appeared when it was summarily withdrawn from the House calendar by its sponsor, Representative Haws, Philadelphia, because of amendments in committee to which he objected. The bill permits registration of motor vehicles only to persons who can prove financial ability amounting to $1,000 or to persons carrying liability insurance amounting to a minimum of $2,000 for one person injured.

Blind Assistance Asked

HARRISBURG, Jan. 15.—Senator Frank J. Harris, of Allegheny County, in one of the several appropriation measures introduced, asked $15,000 for the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind, Inc., at Pittsburgh.

48 IN FIRST UNITED STATES' PROBE ESCAPE RETRIAL

One defendant, Elliott Donnelly, was indicted in two true bills.

The 25 indicted:

TWENTY-FIRST WARD

Daniel McLaughlin, former prohibition agent.

Santo Laquatra, alleged manufacturer of booze.

Jack Laquatra, alleged manufacturer.

John Hannon, alleged transporter.

Arnold Thornburg, alleged collector.

TWENTY-SECOND WARD

John O'Donnell, Republican ward chairman.

Edward J. Moser, former policeman.

Elliott Donnelly, state factory inspector.

TWENTY-THIRD WARD

Fred Stratman, former prohibition agent.

Oscar Reister, alleged transporter.

"Biff" Baer, alleged transporter.

TWENTY-FOURTH WARD

Thomas G. Johnson, alleged collector.

Thomas P. Wills, chairman, Ward Republican Club.

R. M. Levay, alleged transporter.

David J. Adams, alleged transporter.

TWENTY-SEVENTH WARD

Charles Faulkner, police inspector.

John J. Lynch, police lieutenant.

Martin J. Burke, collector.

Edward J. Arthurs, police lieutenant.

John Duffy, alleged transporter.

Elliott Donnelly, state factory inspector.

John Harkins, alleged collector.

Michael Rogan.

Thomas Oliffe, alleged collector.

The government's charge, with today's indictments, is that several minor conspiracies, rather than one great conspiracy, exists on the North Side to defeat the prohibition laws.

In the first probe, the government contended the defendants all were involved in the one big plot and Judge R. M. Gibson ordered the defendants acquitted because the government, although proving existence of minor conspiracies, had failed to establish connecting links.

All but one or two of the persons indicted today were defendants in the first trial, which took place in November.

28 INDICTED MONDAY

Twenty-eight indicted by the federal grand jury yesterday were officers of the Union Fishing Club, and 12 others, including Magistrate John J. Orie, charged with failure to pay their income tax.

Before adjourning the grand jury adopted a resolution urging federal authorities and local police to effect a more harmonious co-operation in law enforcement.

The last words of the resolution were an indorsement of the campaign to raise federal jurors' pay from $4 to $10 per day.

Replying to a question, Mayor Charles H. Kline today reiterated a statement that he did not anticipate taking action toward the removal of city employes figuring the latest federal grand jury indictments. The Mayor took the position that indictment is not conviction.

A summary of the alleged overt acts upon which the defendants were indicted is:

Twenty-First Ward — McLaughlin, Thornburg and Cappi sold and delivered whisky to stores and saloons. Santo Laquatra manufactured and sold whisky, Jack Laquatra delivered it.

Twenty-Second Ward—O'Donnell and Donnelly delivered, or caused to be delivered, to Julius Passonpierre the card of Jock Burke, believed a fraudulent name adopted by whisky salesman. Moser accepted $40 from Bassonpierre.

Twenty-Third Ward — Stratman, Reister and Baer sold and delivered whisky to stores and clubs, Stratman collecting.

Twenty-Fourth Ward—Johnson bought whisky from Levay. Wills gave bond for Adams, arrested for transporting booze.

Twenty-Seventh Ward—Faulkner's name was not mentioned, but Lynch was named as the person who gave a "Joe Green" card to Walter Krol, Preble avenue storekeeper, whose stuff was delivered by Harkins. "Green" was the name used by various "solicitors." Elliott Donnelly was accused of asking Abie Berkowitz, confessed bootlegger, to withhold testimony from the federal grand jury which sat last June.

the plows blocked automatic switches. The most serious difficulty, the railways company reported, was on the Penn, Liberty and Fifth avenues and Forbes street lines.

The Pennsylvania Railroad reported that there was little interference with traffic.

Tracks were being patrolled to prevent drifting, and the only section reported using plows and flangers was between Oil City and Buffalo.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad reported no serious interruption to traffic, and that both through and local trains were operating about on schedule.

The Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad said local trains were running on time, although the train from Detroit was 25 minutes late and the one from Buffalo came in 40 minutes behind time.

Officials of the City Department of Highways and Sewers said it was well able to meet the situation and did not contemplate employing any additional men. The downtown section was being attacked first along with the principal thoroughfares in outlying business sections. Side streets will be worked on later.

DANGER SPOTS CINDERED

At the County Road Department it was said no trouble was anticipated in clearing the roads and plows and scrapers went into action early and cinders were being used on dangerous grades and curves. It was said the department was well able to meet the situation and did not contemplate the employment of additional workers.

Superintendent of Police Peter P. Walsh instructed all police inspectors to warn business people and home owners that snow must be cleaned from the sidewalks within 24 hours.

Failure to do this meant arrest and prosecution for violation of a city ordinance. Business houses, it was said, usually clean their sidewalks at once, home owners being the greatest offenders.

Previously it had been said he and Helen Woodford were married in Providence, R. I.

Pittsburgh Woman Takes Peace Pact Plea to Capital

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 15.—Petitions signed by more than 100,000 women of Pennsylvania urging early ratification of the Kellogg peace pact, were presented to Senator David A. Reed, of Pittsburgh, here today.

As one of the spokesmen for a group of some 50 Pennsylvania women calling on Senator Reed for the purpose, Mrs. A. H. Bowman, director of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters, declared that the pending treaties have received the whole-hearted support of women throughout the country. Interest in the treaties was manifest in the fact that more than 100,000 Pennsylvania women had signed the petitions, she said.

Senator Reed informed his callers that he was strongly in favor of ratification.

POST MORTEM QUIZ IN RUTH TRAGEDY

International News Service.

BOSTON, Jan. 15.—Funeral services for Mrs. George Herman (Babe) Ruth, wife of the baseball home run king, who lost her life in a fire in the Watertown home of Dr. Edward Kinder, were halted today while Dr. George Burgess Magrath, famous medical examiner of Suffolk county, conducted a minute examination of the body.

Contents of the stomach of the fire victim were sent to the Harvard Medical School for examination and analysis.

Medical Examiner Dr. George L. West, of Middlesex County, who said death was due to accidental suffocation and incineration, and District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell were convinced there was no mystery in Mrs. Ruth's death, and regard the second autopsy simply as a double check.

KIN SEE FOUL PLAY

However, relatives of Mrs. Ruth still insist that they are not convinced she was not a victim of foul play.

Discovery was made today by Watertown police that 17 pieces of jewelry of Mrs. Ruth's were missing from the home of Dr. Kinder. Efforts were made to trace them to a diamond dealer in Boston. The value of the gems is unknown.

Police stated they did not believe the disappearance of the jewelry had any connection with her death.

Babe Ruth today denied charges by his sister-in-law, Miss Nora Woodford, that less than a month ago in New York he had demanded that his wife allow him to get a divorce so he could marry another woman.

"It isn't true," said Ruth. "That's all I have to say about the charges at the present time."

In New York Ruth's friends had said they would not be surprised to see "Babe" marry Mrs. Claire Hodgson, of New York, after a suitable period of mourning. Mrs. Hodgson is a former show girl.

DENTIST ADMITS PART

Ruth, a dejected hulk of a man in black—in marked contrast with the colorful figure of the baseball diamond—and Dr. Kinder both had come out of seclusion today.

"I'm in an awful fix, boys," said the "Big Bambino" to reporters, tears welling in his eyes.

Dr. Kinder had come out of an interview with Chief Police John Millmore with a statement by the chief that "there are no charges against Dr. Kinder and so far as the police are concerned Mrs. Ruth's death was the result of an unfortunate accident."

Overloaded electric wires in the living room below the bedroom, where her body was found, caused the fire, in the view of authorities.

The dentist told Chief Millmore that he had never married Mrs. Ruth. He said he had given out the report to cover up her visits to his home. He said his brother, William F. Kinder, Jr., who listed Mrs. Ruth as "Mrs. Kinder" for the death certificate, was innocent in believing that his brother was married last August in Montreal. Watertown police hold the brother blameless.

Members of Mrs. Ruth's family engaged Attorney Judson Hannigan to carry on an investigation of the death of Mrs. Ruth after the funeral. The family branded as false a statement that Mrs. Ruth had ever used opium tablets.

Another important fact surrounding the death of Mrs. Ruth and the investigation that followed into her life and of those closest to her was the discovery that a box containing records was taken from the house at Watertown by police following the fire.

This box, it is said, contains a copy of the birth record of Dorothy Ruth and a copy of Mrs. Ruth's marriage certificate when she was the bride of the Babe.

One full whisky bottle and one empty bottle, found on a table on the first floor of the Kinder home have placed a new angle on the investigation being conducted by state officials.

The bottles had contained drug store whisky, issued on a doctor's prescription. The state investigators are now endeavoring to find the physician who issued the prescription.

The authorities now believe that Mrs. Ruth may have been in a stupor from the whisky, or possibly, as relatives of the dead woman claim, may have been helpless from drugs. The investigation during the next few days will proceed along these lines.

DRY VOTE IS EXPLAINED

priations for the prohibition bureau, but on the activities of other departments and bureaus of the government," Mellon said.

"The question, therefore, of whether an increase of $25,000,000 in the amount appropriated for the prohibition bureau will accomplish the results desired by Congress and this department, is not one that can be answered without a thorough-going survey of the entire field, for I assume that if any such large sum is to be appropriated, Congress will desire it to be used with the utmost effectiveness and in a way calculated to bring about the greatest results."

Mellon said one of the major difficulties in making the dry law effective is the congestion occasioned in the federal courts by numerous pending prohibition cases.

WOULD AID U. S. COURTS

If Congress wishes to appropriate an additional $25,000,000 it should be considered whether a part of this sum should not be allocated to the Justice Department, he said.

"The problem of smuggling is an important one," Mellon said. "Its prevention is largely dependent on the adequacy of the fleet maintained by the coast guard, in part on an adequate force at our various ports and insofar as our land borders are concerned an effective patrol of the boundaries.

"On account of our failure thus far to secure a satisfactory agreement with Canada, which, in my opinion, would materially reduce the liquor traffic over the border, the necessity of a thorough survey as to the best means of increasing the effectiveness of the border patrol is apparent. This the department has recently undertaken."

Mellon declared the problem of securing necessary personnel under the laws by applying civil service to the dry bureau and customs border patrol must be taken into consideration. He pointed out that up to the present it has been possible to make permanent appointments for only a portion of the service and "it is anticipated that many months will elapse before the provisions of the civil service act can be applied fully through the furnishing of adequate eligible registers for the present positions."

LIQUOR GLASSWARE IMPORTS, PRODUCTION GREATEST EVER

POPULAR FANCY LIQUOR SETS

These fancy liquor sets, exhibited at the annual exhibition of the Association of Glass and Pottery Manufacturers, at William Penn Hotel, are not made just for ornamental purposes. The young woman shown, was told that enormous quantities of them are sold today, despite prohibition.

STELLA GEISLER

Liquor sets, even in these Volsteadian days, adorn many modern American homes. Miss Stella Geisler shows how the modern hostess dispenses sparkling liquids to her guests. The sets, makers point out, are both decorative and useful.

MISS JEAN FERGUSON

The old tradition of serving various kinds of alcoholic beverages in special glasses for each kind must still prevail at many a dinner table, or these glasses which Miss Jean Ferguson admires would not be manufactured and imported today.

G. L. VRABEC

G. L. Vrabec, cut-glass manufacturers' representative, says more liquor sets and wine and whisky glasses are being made and imported today than before prohibition. He holds a reproduction of one of the old railroad whisky bottles, popular in days of Western railroad pioneering, and a "flip" vase.

GLASS MAKERS STILL "WET"

Manufacturers and importers of cut glass articles are convinced that prohibition is anything but a success in this country.

If it were, they contend, the manufacture and imports of liquor sets, wine, champagne and cocktail glasses would have suffered the death blow after the passage of the Eighteenth Amendment. The very contrary, however, is the case. They maintain that all of these cut glass articles are being manufactured and imported in much larger quantities than in pre-Volsteadian days.

"The demand for liquor sets and all sorts of glasses for alcoholic beverages is enormous today," declared G. L. Vrabec, of New York, one of the exhibitors at the annual exhibition of the Association of Glass and Pottery Manufacturers at the William Penn Hotel. "This demand has steadily increased since prohibition and there is every indication that the boom will continue."

the most popular beverage glasses today, while fancy wine sets are sold almost as fast as they are delivered to retail stores.

Another sales representative chuckled when he was asked if it still paid to manufacture champagne glasses. "Do you think we would be so foolish as to manufacture anything that did not sell?" he opined.

The various show rooms, where manufacturers and importers display their ware this week, are replete with exhibits of fancy liquor sets, whisky decanters and glasses for cocktails, wines, champagne and cocktails. Exhibitors point to them as proof that prohibition is anything but a success and that the home has replaced the old-time saloon.

BELOW-ZERO WEATHER TRAILS CHICAGO STORM

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—With the city blanketed under a fresh six-inch fall of snow, Chicago's weather forecast was still "bearish" today.

"Another cold wave, sending the mercury back to five below," was the substance of the bad news from the federal building. The forecast, however, was not altogether cheerless.

"Tomorrow generally fair with rising temperature," the report concluded.

The latest cold wave is expected to "break" late tonight, the mercury climbing to 20 above or higher by tomorrow. Traffic was demoralized yesterday and last night.

The storm's death toll was set at six.

BELOW ZERO IN EAST

The crest of the extreme sub-zero wave yesterday gripped the Atlantic coast states, sending the mercury down to seven degrees below zero in New York and nine below at Philadelphia.

The severe blizzard that followed the record drop in temperature here was general over the Middle West. In some sections of Iowa, Wisconsin and the Northwest, highways have been impassable for the past 10 days.

Trains arriving in Chicago from the West were far behind schedules. Automobile traffic over the affected areas was practically abandoned.

WIRES FALL

Telegraph and telephone wires were down in many sections.

Hospitals are treating many persons ill from exposure and frostbite.

Lakeview High School, one of the largest in the city, was closed yesterday because it was found the building could not be heated properly.

RETRIAL ASKED IN FAGAN SUIT

A motion for a new trial was filed today in Common Pleas Court by Attorney William A. Challener for the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, against which Patrick T. Fagan, president of District No. 5, United Mine Workers of America, obtained a verdict of $5,000 last week for false arrest. Fagan was arrested in front of the Wabash Building by coal and iron police, charged with interfering with recruiting of miners. His counsel, Oliver K. Eaton, contended the police had no authority to arrest.

The usual reasons, that the verdict was excessive and was against the weight of the law and evidence, were given in seeking a new trial. A technicality was also raised, a denial of plaintiff's contention that the coal and iron police were engaged in other than their usual duties at the time.

BIG ICE GORGE BLOCKS OHIO

The Ohio River was closed tight today by an ice gorge—the first one government engineers here have had to face.

The gorge—between six and seven miles long, with ice blocks piled 12 feet above the normal water line—formed in the river between Legionville and Ambridge. Navigation was blocked.

Locks of Pool No. 4, below Ambridge, were opened this morning in the hope that the ice would break up and be swept out as the water level fell. Two hours later the gorge was holding fast.

The steamer Steel City was sent against the gorge yesterday, but after the boat had bucked the huge cakes vainly for several hours the attempt to break through was given up.

R. C. McCullough, government superintendent of locks and dams in this district, said the gorge was the first in the Ohio River in the history of the engineering service.

The rivers, for the first time this year, were speckled with big ice cakes, while at Parkers Landing, Franklin and other spots along the Allegheny there were gorges of ice formed which clung to the shores.

For the first time in more than a decade, river boats were ice-locked to the shores of the Monongahela River. What few river boats braved the ice struggled slowly and river traffic was reduced to a minimum.

These are the Treasury's own figures, sent to Senator McKellar (D.) of Tennessee, in response to a request for them.

MAN, MONOXIDE VICTIM, TELLS OF DEATH SHADOW

CHARLEROI, Pa., Jan. 15.—Believed dead from carbon monoxide poisoning, after he was overcome by fumes in the cab of a truck, John H. Holbe, 30, of Library road, near Carrick, was revived while his "body" was being returned to Charleroi.

Holbe was lifted unconscious from the cabin of the truck after he was overcome by the fumes, and the machine crashed into a bank. John Hurvenik, 24, Charleroi millworker, saw the truck leave the road and stopped to render assistance. He found Holbe unconscious but could not revive him. He believed him dead and started for Charleroi with the "victim." Icy winds, which fanned Holbe's face as he lay in the tonneau of Hurvenik's car, revived him.

At a local doctor's office, Holbe recovered and was taken home.

He was able this afternoon to tell the effects of carbon monoxide poisoning:

"I got an awful chill then everything went red. I saw the road fade out of sight then I felt as though I was sweating. The next thing I remember the wind was blowing in my face and I was in Hurvenik's car.

"I knew the fumes were pretty strong for I was hauling a heavy steel casting and it was a drag on the truck. The first sense I had of being sick was a terrible chill. The next minute 'it' had me."

Avoid colds or "flu" by doing two easy things

Keep your system in good condition—protect your nose and throat

THERE is no use worrying all winter for fear you will catch cold or get "flu". Do the following two things and forget it: First, keep your system in good condition, and, second, keep your nose and throat well protected. The chances are you will avoid contagion.

As a first precaution, many doctors are prescribing Nujol. It is not a laxative or cathartic but a pure, natural substance that helps your system function at all times the way nature intended it to. Like pure water, it is harmless. Physicians agree that, particularly in times of epidemic, purging by laxatives and cathartics is not advisable.

Many doctors are now prescribing Nujol, as in no case does it cause exhaustion or weakening of the system in any way. Take it every night; it will keep you in first class condition. You will have a far better chance to resist colds or "flu" or any diseases that are going the rounds.

As a second safety measure, use Mistol, as it protects the nose and throat against the germs of influenza. Use it every morning, the first thing, before you go out. Again, when you come home at night. Don't be afraid to use it freely; it will do no harm.

Never has colds

Just tilt your head back and apply Mistol with the special dropper which comes with every package, until you feel it trickling down your throat. It will clear your head wonderfully, relieve any inflammation; it will help dry up a running nose. It has a soothing effect on the throat too. Gargle it for a sore throat or a little irritating cough.

The combination treatment of Nujol and Mistol is a double safeguard against colds and influenza. Start this wise twofold precaution now. Put worry out of your mind. Nujol and Mistol are on sale at all druggists.

MAN CLAIMS GAS TROUBLED HEART

Coraopolis Resident Says Ten Herbs Ended Stomach Trouble and Dizziness.

"Ten Herbs ended my stomach trouble and dizziness," was the recent statement of Mr. W. M. Campbell, 1815 Ridge Avenue, Coraopolis, Pa., (near Pittsburgh), to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this new herbal medicine to crowds of men and women of all stations in life.

MR. W. M. CAMPBELL

"I am a brakeman on the Montour Railroad, and like many other railroad men, I am compelled to eat my meals at uncertain hours, and sometimes I am unable to get a good meal, but have to eat a light lunch in a hurried manner," Mr. Campbell continued. "I think this caused my stomach trouble. My digestion became disordered about six months ago. I always had a very distressful feeling immediately after eating. Gas would form and press around my heart, giving me a suffocated feeling. I also would be slightly dizzy.

"I had read of Ten Herbs in the papers, and learned of the great benefits it was giving others, whose cases were worse than mine. I started using your medicine and it did all that could be expected. I am now able to eat my meals without suffering with gas pains or having that suffocated feeling around my heart. I am also free of dizziness. I gladly recommend Ten Herbs to the public."

Thousands in this section are using Ten Herbs to help protect them from influenza, la grippe and other disease forces, and common colds. By thoroughly cleansing and toning up the whole system, and especially benefiting the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, Ten Herbs gives one greater power with which to resist disease germs.

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

VOTE REFORM COMMITTEE "PACKED"

By WILLIAM I. GRUNDISH,
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 15.—The House Elections Committee, which will handle all legislation designed to reform elections has been "packed" by the Mellon-Grundy combination.

The committee has 37 members. Eleven are from Allegheny County, all of them sure to abide by any order the leaders issue. Eleven others are from Philadelphia. Thirteen are from the rural districts. Two are Democrats, John M. Flynn, of Elk county and Patrick F. McCalinn, of Philadelphia.

BOSSES HOLD POWER

The makeup of the committee makes it certain that any effort to put across an enabling act to the voting machine amendment will have hard sledding unless W. L. Mellon, Gov. John S. Fisher, Joseph R. Grundy and other leaders issue orders on its behalf. The score in the committee, as far as election reform opposed by the leaders are concerned, will be at least 22 against reform, 13 for and two doubtful.

Flynn will vote as Grundy wishes and McAlinn probably will follow desires of the Vare machine.

LESLIE FOXING AGAIN

The list of committee chairmen and members, announced last night, proved that Senator Max G. Leslie, of Pittsburgh, had not lost his cunning.

Leslie wanted the chairmanship of the Senate Appropriations Committee. He could not get it as long as Allegheny county held the chairmanship of the House Appropriations Committee, which has been held by an Allegheny county man since the war. Therefore he entered John A. Rhodes, of McKeesport, against William F. Stadtlander, of Pittsburgh, for the head of that committee, to compel the leaders to go outside the two cities for a compromise chairman.

He succeeded.

They "compromised" on C. Jay Goodnough, eliminating both Allegheny county contenders and putting Max at the head of the Senate appropriation body.

COUNTY LANDS PLUMS

At that, Allegheny county fared well, although it did lose the House Appropriations committee, which is far more powerful than the Senate body.

James H. McClure, who was speaker during the interim due to the election of Speaker Thomas Bluett as judge in Philadelphia and who was backed by Leslie in an unsuccesful drive for the post, was made chairman of the Judiciary General Committee.

Joseph C. Marcus, of Pittsburgh, was renamed chairman of the Elections' Committee of the House, William F. McCann, of the Labor and Industry Committee, Edward B. Goehring of the Public Buildings' Committee, and George H. Soffel of the Retrenchment and Reform Committee. In other words, Allegheny county members secured the more or less important committees in the House that come normally to that end of the state, but, due to the desire of Leslie to get the Senate place, lost the best plum of all.

One committee that has been noticed but little, but which may develop into one of the most important of the session if the Congressional drive for reappointment is successful is the Senate body on Congressional appointment. It's chairman is James J. Coyne, who is ill and was unable to be present tonight.

Senator William D. Mansfield, McKeesport, was made chairman of the Education Committee, Frank J. Harris chairman of Exposition Affairs and Morris Einstein head of the important Judiciary Special Committee.

Weather Conditions.

The disturbance that covered the southern plains yesterday morning, developed rapidly eastward, producing snow over the Ohio Valley states and rain over Tennessee, Arkansas and Mississippi.

High pressure, centered over Iowa, Missouri and Illinois, covers most of the country this morning. It caused a change to colder over the Plains states section, and the cold weather is spreading eastward. In the Canadian Northwest the temperatures are rising again.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling everywhere. The upper rivers are frozen over and ice is running in the lower Allegheny and in the Ohio, Pittsburgh to Cincinnati. Stage at Pittsburgh is 11.6 feet; Dam No. 2, 3.7, and Dam No. 6, 7.5. The dams are down.

4 SENATE JOBS GO TO COUNTY

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 15.—With 22 salaried jobs in the Senate still to be filled, Allegheny county landed four plums in the incomplete list announced last night.

They are: William A. Hillgove, 276 Thirty-ninth street, Pittsburgh, assistant chief clerk; George A. Reed, 120 Jefferson street, Pittsburgh; Otto Gothes, Perrysville, and Miss Laura M. Kincklee, as clerks to committees.

Five jobs also went to surrounding counties. They are: George L. Whipkey, Dawson, Fayette county, as executive clerk; Bernard Steinfelt, New Brighton, Beaver county, as assistant sergeant-at-arms; Joseph C. McCandless, Beaver Falls, Beaver county, as superintendent of the Folding Room, and Arthur Mucci, Star Junction, Fayette county, and Wilmer A. Davis, Greensburg, Westmoreland county, as pages.

FOSTER MUDDLE BRINGS FUND SHAKEUP

The entire accounting system of the county treasurer's office will be shaken up as a result of disclosures of irregularities and inaccuracies made by Controller Robert G. Woodside, it was declared at the controller's office today. The disclosures followed an audit by Ernst & Ernst for the year 1927, during which Samuel D. Foster, now recorder of deeds, was treasurer.

Meanwhile Foster's return from California, where he is vacationing, is awaited.

PAYS COUNTY

At the time of the audit, Foster had not filed his account for fees due the county in connection with collections for hunters' and dog licenses. Controller Woodside's report shows that the fees collected from these sources amounted to $13,451.30. Foster, since leaving office, has filed an account covering these fees showing expenditures of $8,880 and has paid the difference of $4,571.30 into the county treasury.

Foster also was charged with a mixup of tax collection accounts. As a result of 3,025 letters sent out to taxpayers, Controller Woodside found that 29 taxpayers of this group had paid taxes at face, but had been credited with paying a smaller amount, at discount rate. The difference, $605.89, was found by the auditors to be due the county and was paid by Foster.

Woodside's statement also alleged that on December 31, 1927, Foster held $47,573.36 of lien tax collections made by him for various townships.

Controller Woodside announced further that he would seek a court ruling on a $26,431.88 fund held by Foster. This fund covers duplicate tax payments withheld by the former Treasurer. Foster declares that he is holding the fund because he is personally responsible and liable to the taxpayers who have paid twice.

AUDIT OF CITY CONTROLLER'S BOOKS BEGUN

McLean & Co., of the Benedum-Trees Building, today began an audit of the city controller's office as authorized in a $5,000 appropriation made recently by Council.

The audit follows routine practice in connection with the election by Council of Henry Oliver Evans and his induction into the controllership to fill the vacancy caused by the death of John H. Henderson.

A further step in centralizing all city accounting divisions in the controller's office was made today by Evans in the transfer to his office of Miss Mae Cline and Mrs. Ida Thummel, former stenographers in the office of the department or supplies.

Evans also inaugurated a division of disbursements and placed George J. Huske, of the controller's office in charge. The controller assigned Mrs. Mary Shanahan, of the controller's office, to the local offices of Elliott-Fisher for training in the operation of typewriting-bookkeeping machines.

Carpenters, under Evans' supervision, today were removing partitions, rearranging furniture and replacing opaque glass in office enclosures with clear glass.

P. R. R. to Build First Rail-Air Terminal

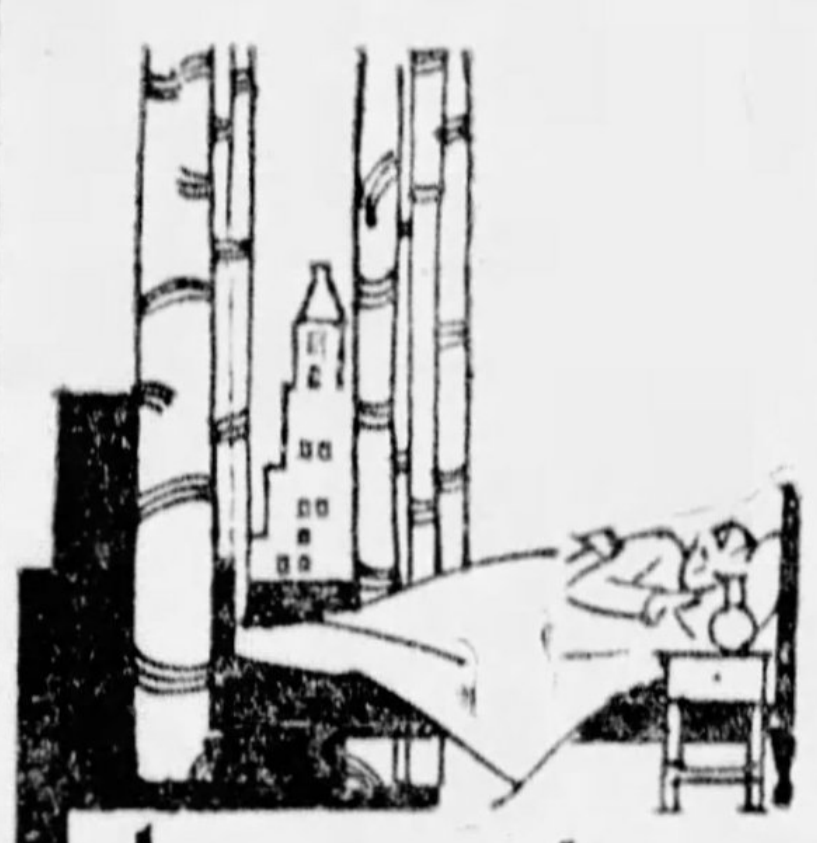
PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania Railroad, one of the most active participants in the Transcontinental Air Transport., Inc., which next spring is to begin an air-rail service from coast-to-coast, has announced that it will soon start building at the Columbus (O.) municipal airport, a rail-air transfer station.

The station, said by the railroad to be the first of its kind in the United States, will include eastward and westward tracks and waiting rooms.

Franklin Primps Up on Police Station

FRANKLIN, Jan. 15.—The Franklin police station is to be made more attractive, not for the possible prisoners which may drift in, but for the officers on duty. A new floor is to be put down, the walls repapered, and the whole station made more serviceable. Council has just found a way to do it without increasing the taxes.

Fines collected last year were enough to take care of the expenditure. Moreover, the city is getting by without raising any salaries, the request of the fire truck drivers for a boost in pay having been turned down.



An extra hour's sleep Oh, it's nice to get up in the morning, but—what a relief not to spend an hour on the street car, train, or bus getting to the office!

"Light a Lucky and you'll never miss sweets that make you fat" Constance Talmadge

Constance Talmadge, Charming Motion Picture Star

Constance Talmadge, Charming Motion Picture Star

Instead of eating between meals . . . instead of fattening sweets . . . beautiful women keep youthful slenderness these days by smoking Luckies. The smartest and loveliest women of the modern stage take this means of keeping slender . . . when others nibble fattening sweets, they light a Lucky!

Lucky Strike is a delightful blend of the world's finest tobaccos. These tobaccos are toasted—a costly extra process which develops and improves the flavor. That's why Luckies are a delightful alternative for fattening sweets. That's why there's real health in Lucky Strike. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

For years this has been no secret to those men who keep fit and trim. They know that Luckies steady their nerves and do not harm their physical condition. They know that Lucky Strike is the favorite cigarette of many prominent athletes, who must keep in good shape. They respect the opinions of 20,679 physicians who maintain that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes.

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful and that too many such are eaten by the American people. So, for moderation's sake we say:—

"REACH FOR A LUCKY INSTEAD OF A SWEET."

The Art Society presented Arthur Hackett, tenor, and John Corigliano, violinist, in joint recital last evening in Carnegie Music Hall. Both performers impressed the audience quite agreeably, although none of their music was superlatively fine.

Since last heard in Pittsburgh, Arthur Hackett's voice has become a little drab. It is strange that he prefers to keep to a mezzo voce almost continuously, and does not disdain using a falsetto, when his fuller voice is more vibrant and retains its real quality as we first knew it.

He chose to sing many French songs of a high order. His French diction is the best we have heard from any American singer, having all the true inflection of the French stage. In both songs of Faure, a more resonant accompaniment decidedly enhances the songs, and the voice should be of a purer, more distinct quality while weaving in and out of the structure. Only in this manner can it become attractive when it sings such hazy melody. Cesar Franck's "Nocturne" and the songs of Gaubert will bear much repeating.

Of Hackett's first group Rameau's "Brunette" was especially noteworthy, and his last English songs were again distinguished by their excellent diction and finish. Their moods might have varied somewhat more.

John Corigliano is a violinist for a first rate movie house. He played much pleasant but inconsequential music for a big player. When he attempts any technical display, his tone diminishes so far as to remove any suspicion of style.

Sanford Schlussel played uneven accompaniments but had many amusing gestures.

CONSTIPATION IS PLAGUE OF RACE

Eat Fruits and Vegetables — Properly Flavored

The papers are full of statements and theories about constipation—one of the plagues of civilized people. What are the facts? A famous food biologist was asked to state the case and he summed it up in these few words: "At least 90% of constipation is due to a lack of roughage in the diet. Eat bran, cereals, and fruits and vegetables both raw and cooked."

He went on to emphasize how much more pleasant it is to eat these healthful foods provided their delightful tastes and flavors are developed by the use of sugar. He spoke of how hard it is to get children to eat cereals, so beneficial in their diet, unless they are properly sweetened. He asked us to remember how many healthful fruits would be unpleasant to the taste without softening the fruit acids and developing their remarkable flavors with sugar.

We should put it down as a safe rule of health that all human beings living in the civilized world today need plenty of fruit and vegetable fiber in their daily diet. Sugar, by making nearly all such diets pleasant to taste and easy to eat, is the one dependable aid to the eating of roughage.

There is no substitute for sugar in the normal diet. Sugar is Nature's ideal flavor for healthful foods. Eat the things you need and enjoy them. The Sugar Institute.

CASTOR OIL BAD FOR PLANTS

Many folks think castor oil is good for ferns, palms and rubber plants. But they are mistaken. Castor oil forms a coating on the roots with which it comes in contact, making it impossible for them to take moisture. As a result the plant may grow fairly well, but not nearly so good as it would have if no oil were used.

Folks who are now using castor oil should stop it immediately and give PLANTABBS a trial. For Plantabbs are really plant FOOD and give new life and vitality to everything that grows in soil. PLANTABBS are clean, odorless, easy-to-use tablets that contain everything a plant or flower needs to feed on. All your plants will grow like magic when Plantabbs are used.

25c, 50c and $1.00 packages are on sale at all florists, seed dealers and druggists in this city. Out-of-town customers may order direct from Plant Products Company, Baltimore, Md.

PARDON BOARD HAS JAWORSKI SANITY PLEA

HARRISBURG, Jan. 15.—The plea of Paul Jaworski, Pittsburgh bandit-killer, for a commission to investigate his sanity was before the State Board of Pardons at its session here today.

Unless the petition is granted Jaworski will be executed Monday in the electric chair. Executive clemency might be extended, but there would be little possibility of such action if the board of pardons refused to act. The Governor has followed its lead consistently in such cases.

In opposition to the slayer's petition, Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park, of Allegheny County, appeared before the board with affidavits of physicians holding Jaworski is sane.

2 WOMEN GAS VICTIMS

BUTLER, Pa., Jan. 15.—Carbon monoxide gas claimed two victims here yesterday after efforts of physicians to restore Mrs. Cecelia Jenkins, 23, and her cousin, Mrs. Dorothy Reese, 21, Wilmington, Del., with pulmotors failed.

Mrs. Jenkins' husband, David, found the two women unconscious in their bedroom, in which a gas fire was burning. He called physicians who made a two-hour fight to restore them to consciousness. The Jenkins came here from Wilmington a few weeks ago.

WILKINS PLANS EARLY RETURN

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS,

Commander of the Wilkins-Hearst Antarctic Expedition.

(Copyright, 1929, by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and Universal Service. Copyright, in Great Britain, France, Germany, and all other countries. Reproduction prohibited in whole or in part).

DECEPTION ISLAND, Antarctica, Jan. 14.—(Monday.)—Via whaler Hektoria and KUP, San Francisco Examiner Wireless Station—The last hope of continuing our Antarctic work this season faded yesterday afternoon.

Then we were forced to the conclusion that under the circumstances it would be inadvisable to go south at this time. Such a program would involve great expense, with one machine on the stern of the whale catcher, and chancing whether we might find a suitable take-off field on the antarctic pack, with our equipment reduced to an absolute minimum, we cannot risk a flight to Ross sea now.

Our second plane will be dismantled and stored with the other one, to await our return next season.

We will take the first opportunity to get home, and we have hopes of reaching New York early in March.

The whaling factory ship "Maudie" arrived here yesterday, but was unable to enter the narrow harbor because of fog and low visibility.

She brought a large assortment of very welcome mail, collected at Montevideo, after our departure.

RESIDENT ZONE INCINERATOR PLAN NIPPED

Council today will consider report of a special committee appointed by President James F. Malone to study disposal of garbage and rubbish with a view of recommending changes in the present system that might effect a saving of money.

The committee report suggested a trial of long-term disposal contracts and recommended the next bids requested by the city be taken on one, two and five-year basis. It definitely rejected and strong disapproval of a proposal to build municipal incinerators in eight sections of the city. The committee held they would constitute a nuisance, and cited numerous protests already filed against the plan from residential districts.

The appropriation for that activity for the current year is $1,600,000, as compared with $1,900,000 for 1928. The reduction is credited by the committee to the installation of incinerators in many modern apartment houses and to the annual "clean-up" compaigns.

The city refuse has been disposed of for years by two contractors. The American Reduction Company has covered the city south of the Allegheny and Ohio rivers and the Allegheny Garbage Company has covered the North Side.

The committee reported that investigation showed costs in Pittsburgh to compare favorably with other cities offering the same service.

The special committee included John S. Herron, Robert Garland and Charles Anderson.

Eat a Chocolate, light an Old Gold ...and enjoy both

"Yes, Suh! ... it's the Heart-Leaves that are kind to yo' Throat"

Only a few of these silky beauties grow on each tobacco plant . . . that's the kind OLD GOLD buys.

"Down here in my country, where the fine cigarette tobacco grows, every planter knows what keeps the coughs out of the carloads.

"There are three kinds of tobacco that grow on the same stalk. The ground-leaves ['sand lugs' in plantation language] are thin and dry: they have little taste or flavor. The top-leaves ['gummy tips'] grow rank and weedy: they are harsh to your throat. But the heart-leaves ['golden cutters'] are fragrant as a peach blossom and cool as a dipper of spring water!

"OLD GOLD buys the heart-leaves. Just a few golden beauties from the heart of each plant. That's how OLD GOLDS get their 'honey-like smoothness.' That's why you can smoke them mornin', noon and night."

Helped at Change of Life

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a wonderful medicine at the Change of Life. I would get blue spells and just walk the floor. I was nervous, could not sleep at night, and was not able to do my work. I know if it had not been for your medicine I would have been in bed most of this time and had a big doctor's bill. If women would only take your medicine they would be better."—Mrs. Anna Weaver, R. F. D. No. 2, Rose Hill, Iowa.

TRIAL OF NEW TRAFFIC RULE POSTPONED

Inauguration of a 60-day trial period for the elimination of about 40 left turns on thoroughfares in the downtown district has been postponed until February 4, according to a letter forwarded to Council by Safety Director James M. Clark.

Clark suggested a public hearing on the experiment "in view of the importance of this trial to the public and to the fact that the trial will cause confusion and hardships to drivers and possibly to business."

President James F. Malone said Council would set a date for a hearing in the near future.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative mixed with olive oil.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" —bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

2 ANTI-SMOKE MEASURES UP IN COUNCIL

Council today will consider in Finance Committee, two ordinances expected to assist materially in eliminating the smoke nuisance in Pittsburgh.

One measure provides for the employment of 10 students of mechanical engineering at University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Tech to act as smoke inspectors.

They would be exempt from civil service rules and would work under the supervision of Harry B. Meller, chief smoke inspector, four hours daily for 90 days at 75 cents an hour.

The other ordinance would compel the installation on boilers of all power and heating plants of a "periscope" detector that would enable firemen far below the street surface, to observe the volume of smoke coming from the stack.

The ordinances were ordered by Council last week after a hearing granted to scores of residents who objected to the smoke pall that hung over the city a few weeks ago.

YANK WOUNDED IN NICARAGUA SKIRMISH

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—A sudden flaring of bandit activity in the northern jungles has resulted in the wounding of an American medical officer and the killing of two guardsmen.

Lieut. William H. Smith, medical officer, and three members of the Guardia Nacional (the American-officered national guard) were wounded. It was believed that several of the outlaws had been killed.

The clash occurred in the vicinity of San Juan de Telpaneca in the province of Nueva Segovia, near the Honduran border. The outlaws were armed with a machine gun and bombs. One of the bombs struck Lieut. Smith on the side of the head and a bullet also hit him. His wounds are not serious.

The jungle where the fighting occurred was so thick that the size of the bandit group could not be determined, although it was believed they numbered at least 100.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

"COSTLY THY HABIT . . . ."

By LAURA REID MONTGOMERY,

"YES. I'm practically certain, Anne, of being given that Illinois territory. It's taken me years to reach my present state of efficiency, but, girl, I've done it. Old Coleman hinted last year that, with some improvement, I'd be the next in line."

Anne patted the curly knot at her neck line; always a gesture of uncertainty with her. "It means that we can be married, Peter. Only—"

Peter turned in surprise. "Only what? I thought you'd be off your head with joy when you found out that Ralph had been fired. Not that I dislike Ralph, he's kind of a good scout, but it leaves a vacancy higher up. Ralph never looked as though he were making good, though, always had a kind of hangdog look about him."

"Only, Peter, I think Mr. Coleman would have told you before this if he intended promoting you. He must have known he was going to dismiss Ralph and he would have been thinking ahead. I'm awfully afraid you won't get Illinois."

"You're 'way off, Anne. I've been living for this chance. I've worked day and night building up sales. I've paid the public stenographer for typing reports so they would go in good shape when I was rushed. I've bought a peach of a car so I'd make a good impression and I've fitted out the aforesaid peach with A-1 tires. All ready for muddy country roads when a fellow can't afford to lose any time waiting for the tow-car to come and lead him out of the mire. Ralph didn't have a good car, it was shabby when he got it second hand."

"The car is stunning," gently the little gloved fingers touched the costly fabric of the cushions, "but, Peter, you don't match your car. You need a good outfit."

Peter's laughter echoed at this thoroughly feminine comment, "Just like a girl. I suppose you'd like me to get one of those sporty top coats with thick gloves to match and some shoes that would set me back a week's salary. Nothing to that dude stuff, girl. A man is valued for what's underneath his hair, not for the hat above it. I'm equipped to become a high-powered salesman and I know I'll step into Ralph's shabby shoes."

"Costly thy habit as thy purse can buy," murmured Anne, but, at her fiance's annoyed glance she sank down in her seat, silent.

Peter hung about the office, waiting for the desired summons, his spirits drooping as the gray day dragged out the hours.

"The boss wants you," said the office boy, just enough impertinence in his voice to bring a gleam to Peter's dark eyes but not enough to warrant a rebuke.

Peter squared his shoulders with what he believed to be a virile air and approached his employer with confidence. "I'm to have Illinois?" he blurted out, absolutely unable to wait to hear the news put into words.

Mr. Coleman raised his bushy gray eyebrows and his mouth pouted out. "What reason have you for supposing such a thing?"

"Why—"

"Look at your shoes, sir," was the amazing interruption.

Peter cast an astonished look from his employer's grim face down to his cheap, shabby shoes. "Shoes, sir?"

"Yes. Shoes. Get that? Look at your rumpled suit and frayed linen. A fine advertisement you are for my line. A good thing you left your coat and hat outside. I've looked at them for three years and I crave a change!"

"I really fail to grasp your meaning, Mr. Coleman." Peter's quick temper flared to meet the cool anger of Mr. Coleman. "I don't suppose you mean to joke, but, after all, my clothes are my own affair, not yours."

The pouting lips drew back to reveal some irregular teeth and the older man made a sound curiously like a gasp. "I called you in here to fire you. I don't know why I've waited so long except that I liked your father. Don't I buy you when I hired you? Isn't your personal appearance an asset I pay for? Tell me that!"

"I understood you paid me a salary and commissions on what I sold. There is nothing in the bond concerning a pound of flesh nor any yards of material." Peter knew his retort was infantile, but he had gone past the caring point.

"While you're thinking of Shakespeare just reflect on his adjuration: 'Costly thy habit as thy purse can buy.' When you enter a man's place of business he judges you by your appearance. You first sell him yourself. Then the goods. You are curiously ignorant for one purporting to be a salesman."

"I consider myself a high-powered salesman," Peter was shouting now, his eyes shining with disappointed fury," look what I've sold for you in the punk territory you gave me. Look at the car I've bought. Only last year you told me that, with some improvement I'd be promoted to Ralph's place if he left."

"I fired him for going shabbily. A man in seedy clothes is no good to me. He got to wearing a hangdog look along with his shiny seams. Dropped him flat. Eliminated him, that's all. I gave you a hint last year but you were too stingy or too thick to get me!"

"I get you now," Peter was white around his mouth but his shoulders now possessed a real virility in their squareness. "I accept your dismissal. I'll turn in my reports but, Mr. Coleman, now that the decks are cleared I want to tell you something.

"You've lost a darn fine salesman even if I do use scissors on my linen. I've been a bit too saving, I guess. I thought my car would score big with you."

"So it did," Mr. Coleman was watching the youngster intently," the car is a good ad, but can you lift that car up under your arm and carry it in with you for an interview? If you take a train trip anywhere what about, the car? You have to carry your references on your back if you want to do big business. You enter an office with a certain confidence when you know you are fitted out right from hat to shoes and that confidence streams out from you. No man is going to try and shave your prices to the no-profit point when you look prosperous. He knows you can get along without his order and he becomes correspondingly anxious to click up with you. You represent me and I don't wear such an outfit as that."

"Good bye."

"Good bye, nothing. Get an advance from the cashier and get busy shopping. I'm going to give you another try-out because I see something I like in your face. Not Ralph's territory—yet—but," an unexpected twinkle appeared, "come and talk to me next year."

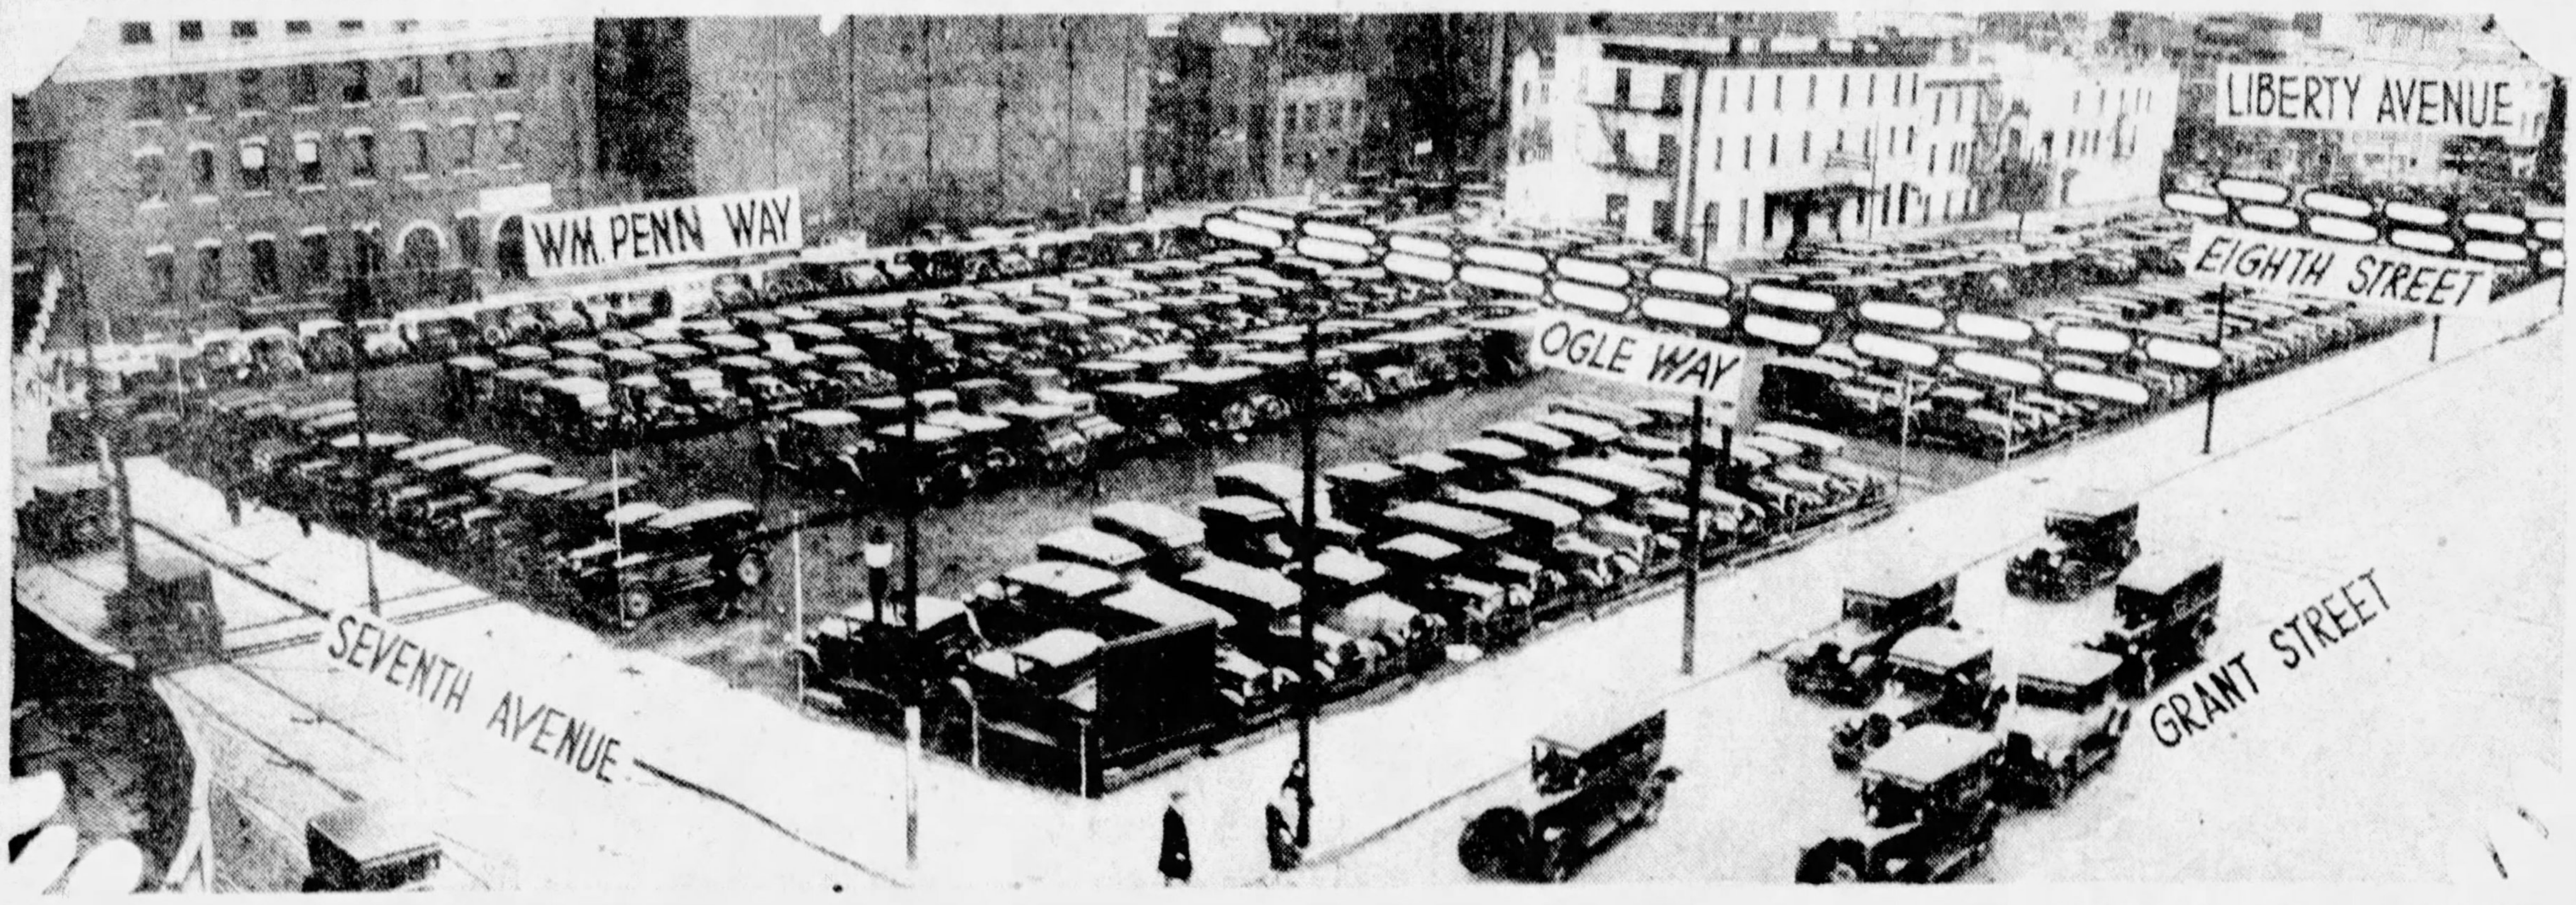
Closed 77 Years, Two Alleys Downtown Ordered Open By Court



PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD TOLD TO "PACK UP" AND OPEN CITY'S ALLEYS CLOSED 77 YEARS

PHOTOS BY PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH

Pittsburgh may soon have two new downtown streets. Theyre not just new streets—in fact, they're more than 77 years old. The two streets are Ogle way and Eighth street, and they run through the stretch of vacant land bounded by Seventh avenue, Grant street, William Penn way and Liberty avenue, which is now used as a parking lot. The city vacated these two streets in 1852, nine years before the war. Since then, the Pennsylvania Railroad has bought the adjoining territory. And now Judge John A. Evans, Common Pleas Court, has instructed the Pennsylvania Railroad to vacate these two streets. The action against the occupation was taken by the Aldine Realty Company, controlled by the nearby Aldine Theater, and opposed by the Manor Real Estate and Trust Company, controlled by the railroad. Judge Evans' ruling declared that the railroad was unlawfully in possession of the land. Judge Evans' decision gives the city two Eighth streets, the one in dispute and the one from Liberty avenue to Duquesne way between Seventh and Ninth streets, nearby the one ordered open.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

SCINTILLATING with new features and new artists, tonight's radio schedule is one of the most pleasant of the week.

On top of a mass of features to be heard over Pittsburgh stations, Station WBBM at Chicago will celebrate the opening of a new studio in the Wrigley Building. And WBBM does things brown!

Some of the artists on the special program, originating in the Wrigley studio at 11 o'clock, eastern time, will be Wendell Hall, the red-headed music maker; Guy Lombardo's Royal Canadians, Zez Confrey and his orchestra, Ashley Sisters, vocal harmony; Edward Benedict, organist; Charlie Garland, pianist; Ray Miller's Orchestra; Paul Mallory, tenor; Plantation Jubilee Singers and visiting artists. The program will conclude about 1 o'clock, our time.

Due to an unexpected, unavoidable mishap Station WBBM had to cancel this opening program, scheduled a week ago.

SOME REAL STARS

Carson Robison will recite "The Runaway Train" for the Dutch Minstrels at 9:30 o'clock, KDKA, while Lannie Ross, tenor, former star athlete, will be heard with the Freed-Eisemann Orchestradians at 10:30 p. m.

Several other features are carded at the pioneer station, among them a quartet's harmony of "Sweet Adeline" during the Stromberg-Carlson period at 8 o'clock.

Scholl first gained fame with Yerkes' Flotilla Orchestra, while Keech formed the first American jazz band in Paris, under the name of the "White Lyres." Keech was born in Honolulu and learned his ukulele there under native guidance.

The orchestra, with Nathaniel Shilkret conducting, will provide the musical accompaniment for the duets and also play a number of orchestral selections.

DUTCH SCHOOLMASTER.

The trials and tribulations of a Dutch schoolmaster will be depicted in the first in this series of programs.

The attempts of the schoolmaster to keep in order the group of very bad boys that constitutes his pupils will furnish material for a dialect comedy act.

Among other difficulties that will face this unfortunate Dutchman will be his direction of a class in singing. His pupils, as usual, are disobedient, but the songs they furnish with such accompaniments as harmonicas and jewsharps will be spontaneously good ones, although far above the head of the long-suffering schoolmaster.

WENDALL HALL.

Wendall Hall, famous music maker, will be the chief entertainer.

Wendall Hall, known as the red-headed music maker, owes almost everything to radio. He was one of the first to be married through that medium, and radio was also the means of making him popular. It was five years ago that he became famous by his singing of the song, "It Ain't Gonna Rain No More," and since that time he has kept the name he made for himself by equally amusing interpretations of popular numbers.

Wendall Hall sings songs accompanied by his ukulele and gives unique renditions of amusing current pieces. He will be assisted in tonight's presentation by Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians and Zez Confrey's Orchestra.

MAE WEST DOES 'DIAMOND LIL' IN UNDERWORLD PLAY THAT'S OVERDONE

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

GEORGE SEIBEL

MAE WEST, who has been both in burlesque and in jail, came to the Alvin Theater last night with a drama of the underworld, entitled "Diamond Lil." It has run for about a year in New York, and is supposed to be strong stuff. Your olfactory nerves are supposed to be just as necessary to enjoy the performance as opera glasses with an ordinary play. So the reviewer left his glasses at home and took along a bottle of smelling salts. Of course he had been depraved and corrupted by previous acquaintance with Shakespeare and Shaw. Shakespeare, you know, shows us the interior of a bordello in "Pericles, Prince of Tyre," while Shaw, in "Mrs. Warren's Profession," takes as his heroine a lady who is engaged in the white slave business. But the critic expected a new thrill—a little more scarlet in the sinners, some novel expletives in the profanity, one or two situations that would bring a blush to a Boston policeman. Something a little blacker than "Lulu Belle" and a bit more violent than "The Shanghai Gesture." Well—

The critic did not blush, though at times he did experience a bit of nausea. Mae West, who is both the author and the star of the drama, has done her best to make her underworld quite as tough as the most hardened reader of the Police Gazette could swallow. In fact, she has dramatized the Police Gazette, but she has overdone it. "Diamond Lil" plays in the period before the Tammany Tiger had lost many of his teeth, in the age when vamps were well-fed, in the age when Tony Pastor was a patron and purveyor of art. It's a painstaking picture of that happy-go-lucky age, but it's overdone—all but the beer, which did not have enough of a collar.

"Diamond Lil" might serve a high and holy purpose in convincing the people who condemn our flapper age that the night clubs of 30 years ago were worse than those institutions in our Volstead era. The svelte hostess of the present generation would do her vamping more demurely than Lil, and would spare the Salvation Army captain at least. But Lil does her Salome glides until he calls her Lillian. Alas, that sanctity is not even skin-deep and you can't trust any man! Yet there is one saving grace in Mae West's drama—Lil doesn't get a change of heart and doesn't lead a better life.

Aside from that jeweled consistency, the play is arrant melodrama when it isn't burlesque. There is everything in it from jealousy and the double cross to an escaped convict and a gruesome murder. Of course there are picturesque oaths—there are drunkards who get the bum's rush and dope fiends who know Queen Victoria—Lil wears rocks enough to stock Woolworth and Kresge—and in the end there's a raid that clears the stage of all except the buxom Mae and the debonair Curtis Cooksey. All of which is what the audience and the critic came for. It isn't a theater party—it's a slumming expedition. It's the Bowery 30 years ago, when the tenderfoot from across the Alleghenies strolled along and innocently inquired:

"When do the murders begin?"

It's the Police Gazette done into drama—and considerably overdone. The work of the actors is in the same key—so much so that even the love-making scenes evoked guffaws of laughter from the audience. You see, vamps don't come that way any more. Today they are slim and angular—not ample and rotund. The taste has changed—or has the foam been blown off the nectar upon which they were nourished. At any rate, Mae West and her drama will cause no moral upheaval and no artistic revolution. It is like an old-fashioned sin—so old-fashioned that Louis Nussbaum's Hebrew comedy harks back to Genesis. But it is mightily entertaining to those who don't go slumming very often.

Circus Film In Sheridan

Frankie Darro, child actor, and Helene Costello are two of the stars in the sound and talking feature which opened yesterday in the Sheridan Square and which is called "The Circus Kid." In addition, Joe E. Brown and Poodles Hannaford are in the cast. The theme of this circus drama concerns a broken performer, once king of his kind, but now fallen and unhappy, who comes back to his own for the love of a girl. Premier Mussolini is seen and heard on the sound screen. Another sound feature is Redmond and Wells and the Vatican Choir of Rome.

VAUDEVILLE BILL

The vaudeville is headed by Pagana and her "Melodious Maids," five in number, all violinists, singers and dancers. Dotson, Negro dancer, Merton and Jewell, with their marionettes, and Cook and Oatman, in "Delineating from Song Land," are other acts.

Grand Offers Menjou, Wife

Among those present in the Grand this week are Mr. and Mrs. Adolphe Menjou, the occasion being the presentation of Mr. Menjou's latest photoplay, "His Private Life." As usual in a Menjou picture, the locale is Paris. And again Adolphe is the gay boulevardier, bored with women and life, until a certain pair of ankles come along. Then he's all interest and besieges the lady fair with flowers, poodle dogs and lovestruck eyes. But there is an old love on the scene that hinders his newest romance—for a time, anyway. Besides Mrs. Menjou (Kathryn Carver), another actress prominent in the cast is Margaret Livingston. The picture is quite entertaining—if you like the Parisian type of farce. Sound screen specialty acts and news pictures are on the bill.

Richard Arlen Enright Hero

"Manhattan Cocktail" is the current photoplay feature in the Enright. It presents a story of Broadway and theatrical life—from the usual movie angle. A young girl goes to New York seeking a stage career. The villain type of producer is on hand to ensnare her. But there's the heroic boy, who, in glorious and traditional screen fashion, saves her—also wins her. The picture has a prologue—not so very necessary—that depicts one of mythology's monsters demanding youth and beauty. The purpose, we take it, is to show modern Broadway as just such a monster. There is some comedy in the picture. The cast, headed by Richard Arlen and Nancy Carroll, is quite satisfying. Incidentally, Nancy sings a song or two. The continuity of the picture story is poor. The Zeigler Sisters and Brothers, with their orchestra, and Edith Lazear, singer, appear on the stage. There are Vitaphone specialties and sound news pictures also, as well as an organlogue and music by the Enright Concert Orchestra.

Magic in Pitt By Thurston

Howard Thurston remains in the Pitt, where the audience last night, at the beginning of the second week of this modern wizard, had as much fun being mystified as those of the preceding week. Thurston, who, in the 25 years he has been before the public, has established himself as the leading magician, has a varied program, including those that amuse by making a "subject" sneeze out a stream of playing cards and tricks of a similar nature. There are a greater number of big illusions, such as the vanishing of an automobile and seven young women. Jane Thurston assists her father, offering songs, dances and a magic act of her own.

Cohen Comedy Aldine Film

Sammy Cohen, one of the funny boys of the movies, on the Aldine screen this week, packs a lot of laughs in his latest wanderings—to Paris, to attend the American Legion convention, and to Africa, as a mistaken member of the French Foreign Legion. The picture is titled "Plastered in Paris." Like most movie comedies that tend to slapstick and burlesque, there's not a lot of sense to the story. But it manages to get the laughs and so we presume it serves its purpose.

HAREM SEQUENCE

One sequence amounts to nothing more than a necktie-pulling contest in a French cafe and another, which lacks reason entirely, takes place in a desert harem, with Sammy doing some silly prancing and bouncing about on a bed as large as a public square. Jack Pennick appears as Sammy's partner. But Jack is not the boy Ted McNamara was. There is a thin romantic theme sandwiched between Sam and Jack's buffoonery. The bill includes a number of entertaining sound screen specialty acts, featuring Joseph Regan, Irish-American tenor; Benny Rubin, comedian, and Jay Velie, dramatic singer. Fox Movietone News also is on the bill.

Dancer Star In Academy

"Step Along," this week's burlesque in the Academy, features Lena Daley, in vocal and dancing specialties. She appears, too, in travesty on Napoleon and Josephine, Lew Lewis playing the noted general with a comic touch. Policewomen are burlesqued by Florence Trotman, Lauretta Lee, "the girl with the big voice," and the chorus. Harry Harrison has a dancing specialty in which he is assisted by girls. "The Curbing of a Crime" is a burlesque on methods of police. A special feature is Fay Tunis, dancer, who is assisted by 12 girls.

Regent Film Is "Varsity"

"Varsity," featuring Charles (Buddy) Rogers, Chester Conklin and Mary Brian, is the current feature in the Regent. It is a story of college life, revolving around the love of a father for his son. It concerns a Princeton janitor and his son, a student at the college, who is unaware of his parentage. Vitaphone acts and news pictures are on the bill.

LITTLE PLAY GOES BIG IN DAVIS

Perhaps it would be possible to put together a better vaudeville bill than that presented in the Davis Theater yesterday, but it isn't often done. Not one of the nine acts lapsed into mediocrity—everything was clean and bright—and there was a stronger appeal to intelligence than vaudeville usually makes.

Van and Schenck, old favorites, are as rich as ever in their melody and comedy; an Italian song, a Negro song and "Since the Movies Learned to Talk" tickled the ears and ribs of the audience. But the one-act playlet, "The Undercurrent," with which Fay Ehlert won the Drama League prize, proved that the same audience also had hearts to be melted. It is a simple picture of life in a basement kitchen, where a very strict father keeps his family in terror and imagines he is keeping them in the straight and narrow path.

SKETCH TRUE TO LIFE

The girl is in charge of the Morals Court, and the mother is desperately trying to keep the truth from the harsh old man. A malicious neighbor and a social worker investigating the girl's home are other elements in the plot of the little scene, which is so true to life that one doesn't think of technique.

Curt Benisch, as the father, does a powerful bit of character acting; Harriet Allyn, as the mother, played with such passionate sincerity that she won prolonged applause on her first exit. Gladys Pfeffer, as the girl, also presents a convincing makeup and acts with naturalness. The only weak spot was the social work of Margaret Moore, who should be more human behind her dignity—more sympathy, less declamation. "The Undercurrent" is a gripping glimpse of life and held the audience spellbound.

WHOLE BILL IS GOOD

As for the rest of the bill, there is so much youth, humor and novelty combined in it that praise comes easily. Harriet Lee is particularly amusing as the half-wit who was called a "kantelope;" Bob Dupont eats an apple while juggling it; Ken Howell's Collegians have a screamingly funny Apache dance travesty; Margaret Keir is surrounded by dancers and singers of freshness and charm; there is a gorgeous coon in the trio of Lubin, Larry and Andre; while Louis and Cherie perform swinging acrobatic feats of daring and strength.

Altogether it's as fine a vaudeville bill as has been presented since the palmy days of the glorified varieties.

VARIETY BILL IN HARRIS AMUSES

An amusing vaudeville show and good screen entertainment are being offered in the Harris for the first three days of the week. There are four acts on the stage, with East and Dumke the best bet, although Marietta Craig, veteran stage actress, brings novelty and fun in her act, that is billed as the headliner. Marietta, whom some will recall as Lizzie of the stage mystery thriller, "The Bat," offers a burlesque on that chill-creating drama.

FUN IN GRAY

Getting back to East and Dumke, these two big fellows give an eccentric musical act, singing about their "old pool room gang" and other nonsensical ditties. Right clever, they are. Otto and Orcitto, assisted by two other performers, present a dance act in which new and old steps are mixed. The two young fellows display pep and the old-timers aren't so slow either. The Three Golfers, opening the vaudeville bill, do some neat air somersaults and other feats from a spring board.

CIRCUS PICTURE

The photoplay is "The Circus Kid," which, as the title indicates, is a drama of circus life. It hits a thrill pace at the climax, with a thunder storm and circus performance both in full swing. A lion escapes to add to the confusion and to the heroics of the boy actor, Frankie Darro, and the veteran stage comedian, Joe Brown. It looks as though the movie makers are trying to make some sort of a martyr out of Joe. For, as in "The Hit of the Joe," he died heroically at the final fadeout, leaving the other fellow to have the girl. Helene Costello is seen as the heroine and Poodles Hannaford, circus star, also is in the cast. The sound film entertainment includes an appearance and a brief address by Mussolini, Italy's iron man.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN HOLLYWOOD

By DOROTHY HERZOG

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 15.—Add sinematic vocabulary: OUTLOUDS, n., (colloq.) talking pictures.

Dick Arlen has melted off ten pounds. Dick is training to be a prizefighter in his next film, "The Man I Love." 'Tis strenuous work fitting ones' self to be a Marquis of Queensbury student, but art hereabouts is a weekly salary, after all.

An Argentine flicker star has been imported by United Artists, named Mona Maris. She is familiarly monikered on the lot "Pride of the Pampas." I recollect another Pampas pet visited Uncle Sam in the massive personage of Luis Firpo. Senorita Maris, however, will not be required to do any ring walloping.

Years ago, Gene Mudd was a well known corduroyed figure in Yellowstone Park. He drove tourists through this garden spot of scenery. A tall, silent, good looking lad also drove tourists about, only Gene was senior driver and this lad took orders from him. A time lapse, and Gene Mudd is office boy at the Famous Players' studio. Part of his duties consist of bringing Gary Cooper his fan mail daily. Gene will tell you of the time Gary drove that Yellowstone bus and took orders from him! Today, Gary celluloids feminine hearts into a palpable turmoil and his former boss hands him the "lettery" proof of his screen success.

Marion Davies lunched at the Montmartre yesternoon and her arrival created quite a stir. She was stunning in a black frock of some sort of fuzzy material with black astrakhan collar and cuffs with muff to match. She wore a small, close-fitting black straw hat. Black is becoming a favorite color in the colony.

Screen epitaph:

(Respectfully dedicated by C. P. to Joan Crawford and Doug Fairbanks, Jr.)

Here lies the bodies Of Doug and Joan.
They died as they lived,
Making Sweet Moan.

Flossie Murphy first slouched into my ken in front of the Famous Players' studio gate. Flossie is petite and snub nosed, impudent of eye and careless of dress. She craves to become a second Louise Fazenda, but suffers disappointment. However, her hardihood smacks of the ancient Greek philosophers. She dropped into my apartment this afternoon to announce she had discovered the first rung of the ladder.

"I'm gonna nab me a lanky electric light male," she slanged, "and then I'm gonna write my love secrets for a movie magazine. I may be a fool but I got ideas."

It is to be expected that Flossie will return at a later date with considerable news.

Corinne Griffith has a fox terrier pal. She had occasion to shop in a toy store 'tother day and took pal along. The four legger went exploring and a few minutes later loud explosions rent the air. Investigation revealed pal staring pugnaciously at five limp remains of what had been enormous balloon-beach balls. Corinne dug deep into the well known purse and paid the irate clerk $3.75 for pal's playfulness. Ergo, 'Sall was swell.

And—that's all.

VILMA BANKY LOVELY IN PENN

In all her blond loveliness, Vilma Banky came to the Penn screen yesterday in her first starring vehicle, "The Awakening," a picture of, but not too much of, the last war. With her came Louis Wolheim, who is always good, and Walter Byron, the English actor, who was sufficiently devastating as a dashing soldier in the romantic male leading role.

"The Awakening" is a film with sound, but it is not a "talkie," unless the presence of a theme song—"Marie"—places it in that category. "Marie" is pleasant enough but not particularly catchy music. The remainder of the sound is confined to the rattle of musketry and machine gun fire and the more impressive thunder of big shells.

MISS BANKY CONVINCING

As Marie Ducrot, Miss Banky moves in a fairly convincing aura of innocence through the hum-drum, peasant life of a little village among the pine trees of Alsace. No grand dukes had yet been shot in Serajevo, and Alsace was still a German province. So it did no violence to reality when Lieut. Von Hagen came riding into the little town, and at first sight elected to carry Vilma's heart by storm, as became a debonair cavalryman.

Louis Wolheim furnished the opposition as Lebolt, with a cruel whip and harsher looks, but the whip was not cruel enough, nor the looks harsh enough to restrain Vilma from the brink of dishonor, which the villagers, anything but modernists, were accustomed to reward with a shower of stones. Vilma, as Marie, went only to the brink, of course; but appearances were against her, and the villagers cast their stones.

WAR ENTANGLES WEB

Marie vanished. There was a grand duke shot in Serajevo, and the lieutenant went off to war. And the war, finally, untangled the threads a careless fate had snarled so badly, and brought a happy ending, with Wolheim acting superbly in a supreme gesture of self-abnegation.

Miss Banky is entirely satisfactory, from the viewpoint of a male onlooker. Byron is enviable from the same viewpoint. And there is some splendid pageantry in the Uhlan's of Von Hagen's command, dressed as they are in such magnificence as has not been seen in European warfare since the cavalry of the Second Empire went crashing to disaster at Sedan.

The stage presentation, "The Magic Rug," offered varied song, dance and comedy, with Teddy Joyce and the Penn Stage Band prominent. There also were news pictures and an organlogue.

SILENT STAR ECHOED IN NIXON

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Echoes of 1929" came to the Nixon last night, bringing, as its star, Tommy "Bozo" Snyder. He is a silent actor. He must have felt at home with an all but silent audience. So that's one echo, anyway, if non-demonstration can be termed an echo. It was really a polite audience, since it might have laughed. To the credit of our good Pittsburgh people, they refrained from derision. So that's a feather in "Bozo's" cap, anyway. Then again, their attitude may have been something besides politeness. Perhaps it was apathy. Who can tell?

"Echoes" is an intermixing of skits of feeble humor with varied offerings of this and that, labeled specialties. One or two good. Some shining dimly among most of the others, rose to the height of mediocrity. It were kindness to shield them in anonymity so few names will be mentioned. The Lewis brothers danced very well. The Wood sisters, not quite so good, but pretty fair.

TALKIE FILM GOOD IN STANLEY

The question whether audible dialogue has a definite valuable part in the drama of the screen is answered affirmatively in "Interference," all-talk picture in the Stanley this week. Speech and sound in pictures have been—still are—an experiment, the outcome of which needed time to demonstrate their worth. To the credit of "the talkies," it may be said that "Interference" shows they have reached a stage of accomplishment within a few months that required years on the part of their parent, the silent drama.

"Interference," as a stage play, was nothing that could be called sensational. It merely was a cleverly constructed melodrama, and like many good melodramas, its focal point was a murder. But it was written in the style of a society play, with polite repression of the emotional factors that ordinarily distinguish melodrama. In short, it might have been described as passion and crime in kid gloves.

INTEREST WELL MAINTAINED

With that as a basis, it would be interesting to see what the talkies could do. And they have done very well. They have not, of course, succeeded in making "Interference" more interesting than it was originally, but the new technique of the films has at least maintained that interest, and has added a variety of scene not possible in the stage play, the action of which was limited to two settings. So it can be said the audible photoplay has reached an art standard that is worthy, and can be improved according to the excellence of the material with which it treats.

"Interference," on the screen, through some elaboration, begins more tensely than the stage version and maintains a highly stressed key to the end. It involves two triangles, one unusual in that a

PENN AVE. FIRE ROUTS SCORE

More than a score of persons fled from the Professional Building, 429 Penn avenue, when fire broke out in the Simon Benach Company's beauty salon on the first floor last night. Damage estimated at $5,000 resulted.

Dense smoke filled upper offices of the structure and the Women's Industrial Exchange, at 435 Penn avenue. Three women on the second floor of the exchange were led to safety by Special Patrolman Leo McClory and firemen who broke into the place. Fire apparatus blocked traffic for almost an hour. The blaze, of undetermined origin, was confined to the salon.

Youth Held for Fire Deaths of His Family

GASTONIA, N. C., Jan. 15.—(INS.)—The Gaston County grand jury is expected to act today for a bill of indictment charging Jacob Vandenberg, 17, with the "fire murders" of five members of his family. The Vandenberg home burned the night of December 27, leading to the youth's arrest.

Evidence was introduced at the coroner's inquest to show an intense animosity existed between Jacob and the other members of the Vandenberg family. The youth's father, his mother, two sisters and a brother were burned in the blaze.

woman, happily married, is confronted by another husband supposed to be dead. The other triangle involves the married woman and a former sweetheart of the man who comes back. The latter, a black sheep type, solves the riddle for all of them in a tragic way without breaking the chord that links audience sympathy.

PLAY SCRIPT FOLLOWED

It is all quite interesting—and well acted. The script of the play is followed faithfully, giving the sound screen better quality of dialogue than it has had previously. William Powell and Evelyn Brent have the heavy roles, playing them satisfactorily. Clive Brook and Doris Kenyon also do well in the other principal roles. Voices register faintly sometimes, but, as a whole, the vocal part is well done.

Bert Fitzgibbon, nut comic, whose antics cause much laughter, heads the stage bill, "Garden Frolics," which intermixes song and comedy. A talking screen feature, presenting Eddie Cantor, also wins laughs. Music and news pictures complete the bill.

McDonald to Appear In Midnight Show

Brian McDonald, Pittsburgh boy with Earl Carroll's "Vanities," it is announced, will appear in the midnight minstrel show to be given next Sunday by the Amen Corner and Variety Club, of which he is a member. He will arrive Sunday morning, after playing in New York Saturday night, and will leave in time to get back for Monday night's show of "Vanities." McDonald has a popular local reputation as a tenor.

Kellogg Will Retire, Make St. Paul Home

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Formal announcement that he will retire from the cabinet on March 4 and make his home in St. Paul has come from Secretary of State Kellogg, to terminate intermittent speculation as to the course he intended to follow.

It is the secretary's intention to resume the practice of law in his home city. Recent reports that Kellogg was to make his residence in California were termed incorrect.

8 Mexican Rebels Slain; 23 Give Up

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—El Universal said today that eight insurgents had been killed in attempting to ambush federal forces near Poncitlan, State of Jalisco.

Twenty-three insurgents surrendered at Pochutla, state of Oaxaca. It was expected others would lay down their arms.

Federal troops are pursuing the kidnapers of the Mexican millionaire, Ugalda Vargas.

MENACED, DIVES INTO ICY RIVER

Ike Hobson, 33, Negro, of 1008 Webster avenue, last night dived into the icy waters of the Monongahela River at the foot of Short street, to evade a knife in the hands of Dave Parker, 27, Negro, of Indiana.

Hobson and several others had been having a "feed" on the waterfront when Parker came along. Enraged because there was nothing left, Parker, police say, slashed Hobson on the right cheek.

Hobson then sprinted for the river and was wading in the stream when City Detectives William Sullivan and Edward Harkins, at headquarters, directly across the street, heard Hobson's screams and rescued him. Parker was arrested.

Presbyterians Favor Union Of Churches

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—A resolution favoring a Union of the Presbyterian, Methodist Episcopal and Protestant Episcopal churches, with a total membership of more than 8,000,000 was adopted unanimously by the Presbytery of New York, an organization of Presbyterian ministers in the metropolitan area.

The Presbytery also answered in the negative an overture of the Presbyterian general assembly of 1928 as to whether the presbyteries favor elimination of willful desertion as a ground for divorce in the church confesssion of faith.

MAN OF 78 FINDS COMPLETE RELIEF THROUGH KONJOLA

Had Tried Many Medicines Without Results Before The Master Remedy Restored His Health.

MR GEORGE A. SOUTHERLAND

How Konjola not only brings health after all else has failed, but builds up the entire system is being explained by the Konjola Man, who is demonstrating this remarkable remedy daily at the McCulloch Drug Store, Penn Ave. nd Sixth St., this city, where scores are going to learn about the marvelous record of this wonder remedy for the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and for rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. This astonishing medicine, which has made a million friends, is designed to bring quick and lasting relief in the most stubborn cases. Thousands who have been restored to health when hope of getting better was abandoned, are lavish in their praise of this amazing compound. One of the ardent friends of Konjola is Mr. George A. Southerland, 24 Home avenue, Oil City, Pa. Mr. Southerland, who is 78 years of age, tells the Konjola Man, now in this city, how Konjola gave him health for which he had sought for years in vain. He said:

"For quite some time I have been in a very weakened and rundown condition, the result of constipation, kidney trouble, indigestion and loss of sleep. I was so weak that I was forced to stop and rest numerous times when I walked down town and back. Despite every effort to find something to help me, I became weaker day by day, and had about reached the conclusion that at my age I could not hope for restoration to health. About this time I began to notice in the Oil City papers endorsements of Konjola, the new medicine. Many of the cases, wherein this remedy had brought about relief quickly and thoroughly, were similar to mine. I had little faith, having been disappointed so often in my search for health, but I decided to give this remedy a chance.

"Greatly to my astonishment and delight I noticed a marked improvement in my condition after taking the second bottle of Konjola. My indigestion disappeared and my appetite returned. No longer did I have to rise at night because of my kidney ailment. Constipation was totally relieved, and my strength is coming back so swiftly that I can walk to town and back without stopping to rest. It surely is wonderful that a medicine could do all these things so quickly, and even more remarkable when my advanced age is considered. We never get too old to learn, I guess, and at 78 I am glad to say that I have discovered the greatest medicine in the world."

What joy it would bring to the thousands who suffer if they could read the numberless testimonials from men and women made well and happy by this master medicine. Konjola asks merely the opportunity to make you, too, well and strong again.

Konjola is different from any other known remedy in this section. It contains twenty-two juices extracted from natural plants, which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of this Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that has been going on for years. At the same time, many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health thru this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product, until now, Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this section.

THE KONJOLA MAN

is at the McCULLOCH DRUG STORE, Penn Ave. and Sixth St., Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, explaining the remarkable merits of Konjola. Free samples given.

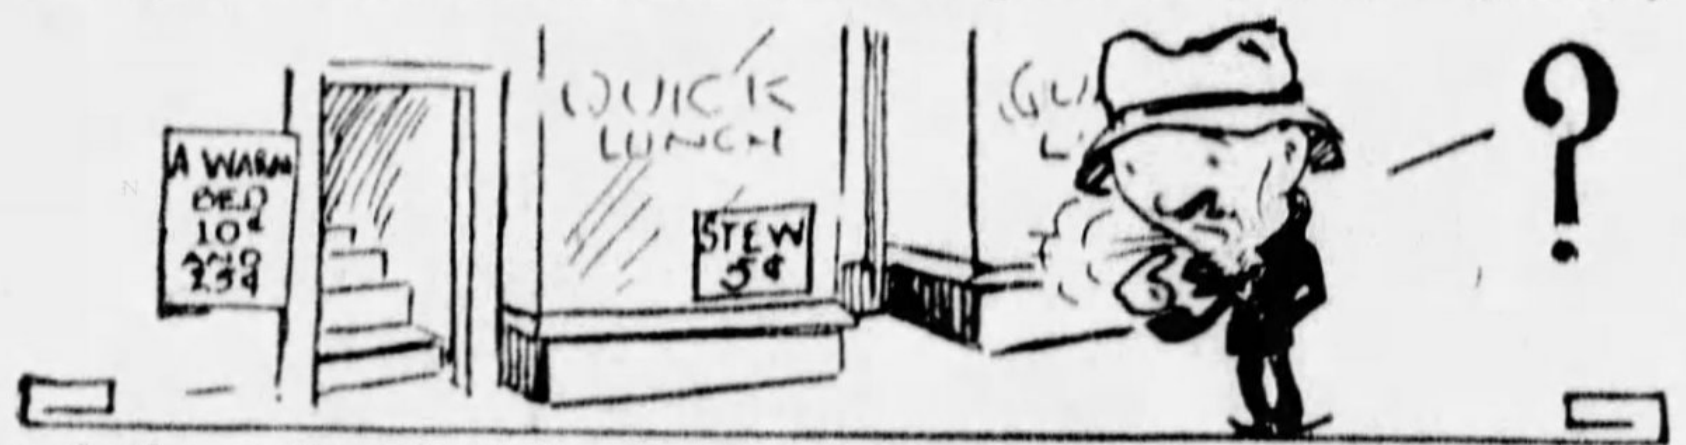
SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

NOTHING accentuates the distress of a city like cold weather. Derelicts of city life, like hunted things, seek harbors of warmth from the chill winds that blow through their shabby clothing. Buttonless overcoats are held close to the body by blue fingers. Nondescript hats and caps are pulled down over frost-bitten ears. Affairs of that important realm, the stomach, are forgotten in the urge to escape, somehow, the ravishing winds of winter.

In the daytime such places as the corridors of the Courthouse, the crowded offices of the lower grade employment agencies, and the railroad stations offer rendezvous for the forlorn until, staying too long, they are asked to move along by men in authority.



At night there is a silent file into the police stations and cheaper bunk houses, where for what seems a small fortune to the men thus beleaguered, a dime or a quarter, a warm bed is given.

In the Mission house where the booming voice of a preacher speaks bravely of eternal salvation and hope, and ridiculously enough, of charity, too, the wanderers from the winds slip noiselessly into chairs and fall off to sleep to the music of the message of hope coming from the rostrum in the front of the hall.

The city feels gratified in seeing pictures in the paper from time to time showing a group of derelicts getting a holiday dinner, but there are many cold days between holidays, hungry, cold and sleepless nights, and to conquer these, somehow, with no weapon but a hopeless heart, the derelicts daily march forth to battle. It is more of a shuffle than a march—a shuffle toward a goal that is entirely misty.

IN Water street, in Second avenue, in Grant street, near the river, you can see the corps of the defeated urged on only by a strange, small voice that mocks them with the desire to live.

Men with jobs and homes quickly close the door to shut out the wintry winds and a little later in a warm room there will be set down hot soup, steaming potatoes, hot coffee and meat just off the stove.

While out in the darkness and the cold the shuffling army of the needy move from one brief haven to another to escape the rigors of the night. Poets have written of the glories of January's winds, the glistening snow, and the bracing snap produced by King Winter, but unluckily the fellows who endure them never received education enough to appreciate good poetry.

Business picks up a little in the humbler eating places, where stews are advertised as selling for five cents—on a blackboard that stands on the sidewalk in front of such places. Coffee at three cents is offered. And extra inviting is the large stack of bread within easy reach.

The derelicts enter such places, but they do not begin eating right away. They want to prolong their stay as long as possible because the restaurant, cheap and dreary as it might seem to the unthinking, is warm. Too, they want to ponder how best to invest the dime they just begged from the impatient man, muffled in a large overcoat, who was in a hurry to get home.

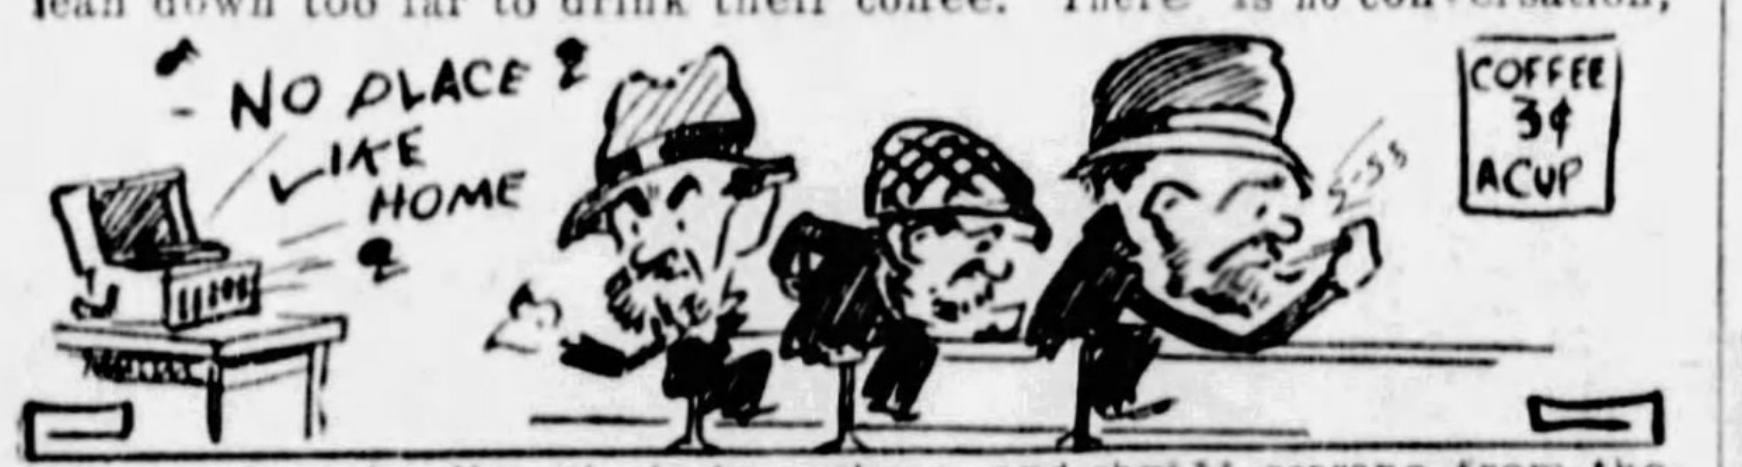
IN ONE such restaurant there is a battered phonograph, with records that squeak. An artistic counter man likes music as he serves his meals. The stools are well-filled with a row of men who lean down too far to drink their coffee. There is no conversation, but striking the dismal air is a cheap and shrill soprano from the phonograph. She is singing, "Home Sweet Home."



"Take it off," bellows a deep voice from the third stool, "or I'll break the thing." Only a few look up. The rest keep bending low over their coffee.

SATISFIED CUSTOMERS HELD KEY TO SUCCESS

"A customer is always right, even under trying situations" was the high-light of an address delivered by William E. Palmer, Jr., cashier of the Citizens State Bank of Dormont at a weekly luncheon meeting held by the Dormont Rotary Club at the Dormont Masonic Hall, West Liberty avenue, yesterday.

Mr. Palmer's topic was "How My Vocation Should Treat Its Customers," and in part said:

"A customer is always right—don't argue with them. Courtesy at all times. Getting men and women employes as co-workers with yourself who can control their emotions and always give courtesy to the customers, even under trying situations, is essential. A new business department of a bank would do well to give time to the thought that their best way to get additional business, is through satisfied customers."

Prof. Ralph Radcliffe, superintendant of Dormont schools, was in charge of the meeting. The visiting guest Rotarians were: Victor L. Nelly, Carnegie; William L. Morgan, Wilkinsburg, and Rhodes McCaskey of the South Hills Kiwanis Club was a guest of Mr. Palmer. Mr. Palmer was also appointed a delegate to represent the Dormont Rotary at an annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Society for Crippled Children to be held in the Penn-Harris Hotel, Harrisburg, Thursday and Friday. The Rev. C. F. Laurer, president, presided.

PASTOR INDORSES WOMEN AS MEMBERS OF CHURCH BOARD

Churchmen elsewhere may debate the propriety of women on official boards, but at the First Congregational Church of Etna their presence is regarded as indispensable, according to the Rev. Martin Leiseder, pastor.

Miss Marie Metzger was renominated, without opposition, to the office of deacon, at a congregational meeting Sunday and with her election next Sunday will continue, along with two other women, elders, to serve on the church council. The others are Miss Ethel McKee and Mrs. Carrie Orduske.

"We are beyond the experimental stage in electing women to the church council for they have been serving in our church for 10 years," said the Rev. Leiseder. "Ours was one of the first churches in the country, I believe, to recognize the right of women to sit on church boards.

"Women have brought a profound interest to the affairs of the church and their presence and zeal have stimulated the interest of the men. The women have more time, as a rule, than the men to devote to details of church management and their value to our congregation has been great."

At the meeting Sunday, J. Henry Schor was nominated as trustee and four men were nominated as elders, of whom two will be chosen next Sunday. The four are Albert Wisolik, J. P. Heilman, Harry Oldendorf and Conrad C. Metzger.

The Rev. Leiseder has been minister of the church for 17 years.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Nancy Deane, golden haired, dark eyed, has lived all her life with the O'Days in Washington, Pa.; for two years she has worked in the station lunch room to help pay the rent. There she meets John Blair who invites her to go to the circus. Nancy loses her job and learns she is really the granddaughter of the rich Montgomery Deane in Pittsburgh and that her mother, Julie Abbott, a circus performer, is coming to town and wants to see her. Nancy goes to the show with John and sees Julie drop from a trapeze; she rushes wildly to the hospital where her mother dies, telling her she loved her father. Nancy suddenly decided to go to Pittsburgh and Blair, whom she has grown to admire, gives her a letter to a college friend who runs the "Wear-Ever Mills." On the train she meets Ginger Varden, a model, who takes her to her own boarding house and invites her to share her room. Nancy is shocked at its disorder and doesn't know quite what to think of her new companion. Two friends of Ginger, Jerry Durant and Vic Flemming, take the girls to a party in the studio of a woman artist. Vic goes crazy over Nancy's blonde beauty and has a brawl with a man who he thinks is too attentive to her. In her amazement she meets Howard Wescott, the man to whom she has the letter from John. The next morning, disgusted with herself, she runs out of Ginger's room, hardly knowing where she is going. Gathering courage she applies at the mills for a job and Wescott tells her to report the next morning. She dashes madly to Ginger to tell her the good news, but Ginger tries to persuade her to be a model. The young men call again and Vic kisses Nancy who bursts into sobe. He quiets her and the four go on another party.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

GINGER flung the words at Vic and ran over to the bed. She sat down beside Nancy, lifted her face from the pillows and started patting her yellow hair.

"What do you mean coming in here like this, acting like a crazy man?" she blazed at Vic. "Can't you see the kid's all wrought up? Just a poor small-town kid that's trying to get along in this world. You've got to apologize or get out of this house. And I don't mean maybe."

"She's right, Vic," Jerry broke in. "Can't you see the kid's all worn out?"

When Ginger and Jerry turned on him, Ginger flashing with anger, and Jerry surprised, a little taken back even for him, Vic was swept with remorse. He went over to the bed, kneeled down, and bent his face close to Nancy's.

"I didn't mean anything, kiddo, honest I didn't. And I'm sorry. Sorry as can be. Please, kiddo, Nancy, I didn't mean a thing, honest. Only you're so darn pretty with that yellow hair of yours. You're so darn pretty—"

He lifted her up. And though Nancy O'Day had known Vic Fleming for less than a day, she allowed him to put her head against his shoulder, to stroke her hair. She had no more strength to fight.

Vic's arms were around her. With all his strength and with all his loud, familiar ways, she saw he could be gentle, too. As gentle as anyone had ever been to her in all her life.

Nancy raised her tear-stained face.

"Come on now, kiddo, wipe away the shower, and powder up the old nose. We're going bye-bye," Ginger said, handing Nancy a powder puff. "The big storm's over and now we're all friends again."

"We'll take a run out the Frankstown road. The Eagle Hotel serves a wonderful dinner," Vic said. "Then we'll stop for a dance or two at the Golden Pheasant."

Though it was still early Fall there was a frosty snap in the air and the leaves on the trees had turned yellow and were fluttering down. The air was exhilarating. Nancy inhaled deep breaths and before they had reached Homewood, her dizzy, troubled head began to clear.

She snuggled down into the wooly robe beside Vic Fleming and watched with interest the manner in which he handled his powerful car.

Vic had dash. This man, Wescott, for whom she was to work, had elegance. John Blair—she asked herself why a picture of John Blair always forced itself into her mind—John Blair had ruggedness, out-of-door-ness. What a lot of men she was meeting lately! And each so different. She hardly knew how she truly felt toward anyone of them—yet. These three, Vic, and Wescott and John Blair were so very different from the awkward half bashful boys who had taken her out in Washington.

She turned to Ginger and Jerry; he had one arm around Ginger and every now and then he would stoop over and kiss her.

She snuggled a bit deeper in her rug, and watched the long ribbon of white pavement being eaten up under the wheels of Vic's car.

The speedometer registered 50, 55, 60 miles.

"Oh, Vic, please—"

Vic laughed. He stepped harder on the speedometer. It registered 67—68 miles.

Nancy began to get panicky. The faster the car went the more Ginger and Jerry seemed to like it. They clung to each other laughing and screaming and urging Vic to make it 70 miles. Nancy was clinging to the seat so hard that her fingers ached. She felt paralyzed.

"Step on her, Vic, step on her, there's a speed cop behind us."

Jerry had to yell at the top of his voice to make himself heard against the wind. He leaned over the front seat, put his head between Vic's and Nancy's shoulders and screamed in Vic's ear.

"Faster, Vic. Faster. Let's give he copper a run for his money."

The little black indicator on the speedometer crept up to 72, 73 miles. The roar of the wind was terrific. Nancy's yellow hair was being whipped from beneath her small felt hat, tight as it was and it was next to impossible to keep the woolly robe around her.

She looked around. A motorcycle policeman was tearing along after them. He seemed to be gaining. Suddenly, along the roadside ahead, there appeared a herd of cows, their black and white bulk like a big patch work quilt against the fields of yellow and brown. One of the animals started lumbering clumsily across the road.

"Oh!"

Nancy clapped her hands over her mouth; she well knew the habits of cows on a roadway. In a moment the rest of the animals would follow the leader and unless Vic ceased his mad speed the car would go crashing into the herd.

The second cow started crossing, got half way over and then changed its bovine mind and went galloping back into the ditch again. The car hummed on, faster and faster.

Nancy could see plainly that Vic intended to pass the beasts before they started blocking the highway. He bent low over the wheel, his horn shrieking. It was either a case of beating the herd or being trapped.

In another instant they had hurled past the cows. Nancy sank back into the cushions and closed her eyes. The three of them, Vic, Ginger and Jerry started to laugh.

"That's beating the Holstein, I'll tell the cross-eyed world," Jerry yelled toward the front seat.

They all burst out laughing.

Nancy turned. The herd, stupid as only cows can be, was leisurely crossing the road, forming a wall between the pursuing motorcycle policeman and Vic's car.

Vic was safe now. They swung up in front of the Eagle Hotel, famous for its country style dinners.

"We can't stop here," Ginger warned, "why, that cop will be here in half a minute. He'll get us sure. You'd better beat it, Vic. Let's get out of here."

"Where'll we go?"

"Let's keep on going to Ligonier," Jerry suggested. "We ought to make it in little better than an hour."

Without answering Vic stepped on the starter and before Nancy was aware of it, the big car was again speeding along the highway. She sat tight, thinking. At Ligonier she was likely to be seen by any number of people from Washington. The Washington people often drove down to Ligonier in an evening.

What if someone should tell Mud and Darry that they had seen her in the company of these people. The thought terrorized her. She looked at Vic. He was sporty looking, undoubtedly, with his very light felt hat turned down all around, his checked topcoat, his florid face. He had the look of a man about town. There was his walk—even that betrayed him.

And Ginger! Though Nancy was beginning to feel that underneath Ginger's hard manner, her slang and her extreme dressing, there was a good heart, yet she blushed at the thought of any of the Washington folks seeing her in Ginger's company.

Ginger's unusually high heels and her unusually short skirt, her unusually painted mouth caught every eye wherever she went.

Penn. Child Wouldn't Eat

"Everybody in the neighborhood was crazy about Walter. He was the happiest, brightest little thing you ever saw," says his mother, Mrs. Mary Nye, 131 South Ithan St., Philadelphia. "He looked so healthy we thought he'd never have any trouble. But he began to be constipated. It made him fretful, cross and feverish. His breath got to be terrible and his tongue was nearly always coated. He didn't want to do anything but lie around. He wouldn't eat and was losing weight fast.

"Then I began giving him California Fig Syrup. It brightened him up right away. He began to eat heartily and his stomach and bowels started acting perfectly. Soon he commenced gaining weight again and he's been perfectly well, strong and happy ever since."

California Fig Syrup is made from two of Nature's greatest laxatives—ripe California Figs and First Quality Senna Leaves. Children like its rich, fruity taste. It regulates their stomach and bowels and gives these organs tone and strength so they continue to act normally, of their own accord.

The genuine, endorsed by physicians for over 50 years, always bears the word "California." All drug stores have it.

AN OBLIGING BEAUTY DOCTOR

A Beauty Specialist Gives Home Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well-known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

Why Bachelors Are Nervous

SOMETHING ought to be done to make the world safe for bachelors!

A man never knows, when he wakes up, these mornings, whether he is going to find the announcement of his engagement in the newspapers, a marriage certificate under his pillow, or a breach-of-promise suit on his hands.

All this makes an eligible bachelor so nervous that he is afraid to go out alone—and unarmed!

* * *

Once, all a man had to do was to dodge temptation. And as "Temptation" was usually painted bright red and plainly labeled, it was a simple thing for a strong man to detour around it, and come up smiling, single and unentangled.

HELEN ROWLAND

But that was in the days when the "dangerous woman" in a man's life was the worldly, designing siren bent on luring him to sin and destruction. Now, the "dangerous woman" in his life is the business-like little thing who is bent on luring him to the altar.

He never can tell when he is going to be "misunderstood"—and taken SERIOUSLY!

To him, the world appears full of highwaywomen, just lying in wait to hold him up and rob him of his freedom. It is no longer possible to distinguish a temptation from a danger, by the slenderness of its ankles, the brevity of its skirts of the rouge on its lips.

He dare not, in his simple innocence, follow a pair of red heels or flashing calves down the street, for fear their owner may turn out to be, not the harmless adventuress she looks, but a perfect lady with matrimonial designs.

* * *

He can no longer bank on the girl with peroxide hair and mascaraed eyelashes to be just a good sport, who will accept his careless pettings in "the right spirit" and his kisses as just a little diversion. She is much more likely to turn out to be a serious-minded young woman, with her heart set on a wedding ring.

* * *

Now that all women wear war-paint, high-water skirts and exotic earrings, and use long cigaret holders, no man can tell a "safe" little vamp from a dangerous marrying girl!

Alas, a bachelor cannot feel absolutely safe, even with a married woman! For the first thing he knows, she may have divorced her husband, slipped her wedding-ring and her slave-bracelet, and be ready and waiting to ANNEX him!

* * *

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

How to "Regret"

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

We would appreciate it very much if you will settle an argument regarding the following:

I received an invitation to a banquet with a return card enclosed. A answered on the card, "Regret to refuse due to illness." B states that it should have been answered, "Regret not being able to attend, due to illness." B claims that it is the height of bad manners to refuse any kind of an invitation, as it is an insult to the person sending the invitation. A claims that a person not attending a banquet is refusing the invitation, therefore in stating that she "regrets to refuse" is correct.

Please answer this question for us, and will you please let us know also whether it is, or is not, an insult to use the word refuse?

ROSE.

"REGRETS" is the correct word to use when one cannot attend a party. The proper form of such an answer is:

"Miss Rose Underwood regrets that she is unable to accept Miss Mary Remington's kind invitation to dinner on Friday, the first of January, at 8 o'clock."

I do not know what kind of return card you refer to, but whatever is supposed to be written on it would be expressed as nearly as possible to this conventional form for such regrets. B's form is better, vastly better, than A's, but is too curt. A's "regret to refuse" is not at all correct. The person is "regretting" the invitation, not "refusing" it, for refusing it would mean that the person to whom it is sent is unwilling to receive it.

No Ring Bearer

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you kindly let me know at your earliest convenience if you think a boy 10 years old is too old to be a ring bearer?

I have found your column extremely enlightening and shall look for your answer.

YOURS IN DOUBT.

YES. I do think that a boy of 10 is too old to be a ring bearer; a ring bearer should be a very small young gentleman, if there is to be any. But nowadays one seldom sees a ring bearer, and never at cosmopolitan weddings, where ring bearers are considered passe.

Thank you for your kind and friendly comment.

Dr. Caldwell's 3 Rules Keep You Healthy

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not a habit-forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their systems. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without griping and harm to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person.

Get a bottle today, at any drug store, and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

CONTENTMENT

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

THE old Tentmaker certainly knew life when he wrote "A jug of wine, a loaf of bread, and thou beside me in the wilderness." For in this there is perfect content, especially where there is Love and lots of it to carry through.

For where there is Love there also will you find Contentment. For when two are in Love there is nothing in the world that matters. All else pales before the greatness and glory of the love which they have found. Money, material things, mean less than nothing, excepting as they may bring happiness to the loved ones.

And what is greater than this? The most dingy hut can be greater than the finest palace if Love abides there. The poorest of all creatures can be greater than the kings who rule if they dwell ever with Love. For Love glorifies and brings the happiness which can be had in no other way.

Therefore, if you would be content, find Love. Take him to your heart. Cherish him and have him ever as the welcome guest of your heart and home. Listen to his words of wisdom and be guided by him, for he ever guides in the paths which lead to the richest of all gifts—Happiness and Peace and Content.

LOVE'S AWAKENING

A CONTINUATION OF LOVE'S EMBERS

By ADELE GARRISON

Mary Is Overjoyed at Prospect of Buying "Pretties"

FROM beneath my eyelashes I gave Dicky's lovely young niece an intent scrutiny as he told her that he wanted her to show him the things she meant to buy with the money he had given her. As I feared, I saw a quick evasive look flash into her face, and guessed that even with this gift she was planning to devote part of it to the mysterious purpose which had swallowed her dress allowance. Then as she realized that no other course but spending the money on her own clothing was open to her, my throat constricted with pity at the look of rapture which came into her eyes. The child's beauty-loving heart had been starved for the pretty things she had denied herself, that was revealed plainly.

"Oh! oh!" Her voice was tremulous with joy. "I never dreamed of anything so lovely happening to me. But are you sure, Uncle Dicky that you ought to—"

"Wish I were as sure of Heaven, Kit cat," her uncle returned. "Remember I have no daughter of my own to buy dresses for, so there's just naturally a fund aching to get itself swapped for dresses and hats."

I drew a quick startled breath. There was a note in my husband's voice—was I mad to interpret it as vague, wistful, longing? But the next instant I reigned in my imagination for he had dropped into his old teasing raillery.

"There's only one other stipulation I wish to make," he said, "and that is that you do not try to suit yourself, your Aunt Madge, Marion and Mrs. Underwood all at once about your purchases. If you do, you'll need a week instead of a day. I never knew two women yet who could agree about a gown. Just suit yourself, and then as your grandmother is fond of saying, one person will be pleased."

"He's a base slanderer, Mary," I told her. "Not one of us will try to influence you. But we must go back to the others, or we'll never get to the shops."

I slipped my hand through her arm and Dicky tactfully hurried ahead of us so that I was able to speak to her without anyone else hearing me.

"Mary, dearest, please relax," I whispered. "A taut fiddle string is a limp rag compared to you. I suppose Mr. Veritzen's work is worrying you—"

"It isn't his work," she flashed, then added anxiously, "Please forget I said that, Auntie Madge. I—I—don't know what I'm saying."

"You're all tired out," I said, making my voice practical, and trying to give her the impression that I saw nothing more than fatigue in her patent nervous tension. "But just remember you're on a holiday today. Forget Mr. Veritzen, your work and everything that worries you, spend your money on the things you like, and have a good time generally."

She stopped short, loosened her arm from mine and made a gesture as of tossing something over her shoulder, regardless of the curious stares of those nearest us.

"Of course they think I'm crazy," she said, "but they'll be around the corner in another second, and they'll never think of me again. That's the nicest thing about being in a city. You can do anything, and nobody cares. And I couldn't help it, Auntie Madge. I just had to do some fool thing to prove to myself I was free for the day. I feel like a man who has carried a bag of flour up a hill and throws it away before he starts to run down. Oh, boy! what a day I'm going to have. And it's all due to you! Oh, you needn't get that startled fawn look in your eyes. Uncle Dicky's a dear, but he's a man. He never would think of this all by himself."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Real Danger Lies in Complications

NATURE planned the chest so that the heart and lungs might be protected against accident. Placed deep in this cavity and remote from the outer world, these vital organs are rarely involved in disease and then only by extension from fairly remote parts of the anatomy.

DR. COPELAND

The lungs are suspended within a space surrounded by chest-bone, ribs and back-bone. They are covered by a closely fitting tissue, called the "pleura."

This same material lines the inside of the cavity. Between this and the pleura-covered lungs is an empty space.

Just enough moisture is provided to permit the lungs, when they are filled with air, to slide over the chest walls without friction. It is an admirable arrangement, allowing deep breathing without consciousness of the inflated air cells.

Unfortunately, we are so situated that we cannot escape upsets in Nature's wise plans. Among other ailments we are liable to have is an inflammation of this delicate membrane. Then there is trouble.

The slippery membrane becomes sticky. One membrane, instead of sliding over the other as it should, may become attached to it. Some part of the tissue covering the lungs becomes adherent to the lining of the ribs.

The disease which causes this disturbance in the normal action of the lungs is called "pleurisy." The form I have described is sometimes called "dry pleurisy."

But it rarely stops here. In all probability the disease will progress. Then there is a marked increase in the quantity of fluid in the chest. The doctors speak of this accumulation of fluid as an "effusion." This may be so great as to crowd the lungs, actually compressing them so they cannot be filled with air.

In one form this effusion consists of a straw-colored fluid. In another form the pleural cavity is filled with pus. Then we have "empyema."

You can well believe that a large accumulation of pus within the chest is a serious matter. There is danger of general blood-poisoning, with repture of the lung or chest wall.

Pleurisy comes on with chill, fever, cough and pain in the chest. The pain is very severe. It is a cutting, stabbing, sharp, most distressing pain. Every breath taken increases the agony.

The fever runs to 101 or 102 degrees, or more. It continues for a week or ten days. Difficult breathing and hard, dry cough are always present.

In a favorable case the fluid is gradualy absorbed. The fever declines and after five or six weeks recovery is quite complete.

Rest in bed, strapping the chest with broad strips of adhesive plaster to lessen the movement in breathing, and the giving of appropriat medicines, will hasten recovery. If the effusion is extensive, it may be necessary to puncture the chest wall to drain away the fluid.

This is the simple story of a most uncomfortable but, fortunately, not particularly serious disease. It is necessary in every case, however, to guard the health for some time after recovery from the cute symptoms.

Answers to Health Queries

X. Z. Q.—I am inclined to be stout, but my legs are not developed—would rubbing them with cocoa butter be of any benefit?

A.—Possibly. Exercise would be most helpful — running, brisk walking, dancing, jumping, skating, swimming—should all bring about improvement.

A. I. Q.—Is eczema curable and what is the cure? What diet is advisable?

2. What treatment is advisable for fistula?

A.—Yes, in most cases, depending upon the extent of the trouble and its duration. The diet is usually of great importance.

2. An operation is usually advised. This must have the attention of a doctor who will advise the treatment necessary.

M. G. Q.—What treatment is advised for hay fever? Are there any sections in the East where this trouble is minimized?

A.—Careful examination of the nasal passage will disclose whether or not there is an obstruction or catarrhal condition causing the symptoms. Serum treatment should be helpful if the trouble is merely due to irritation, caused by some flower or weed. Seashore is perhaps best—any locality where there is an absence of flowers and grasses to any great extent.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, January 16.

THE lunar mutations for this day betoken many conflicting circumstances and occurrences. While there is prospect of an important change or travel, with many advantages, especially as regards employment, yet there are also possibilities of delays, obstructions and disappointments. If affairs can be managed with what might be called preparedness in this direction, embracing the good and providing for possible postponements or obstruction, all may redound to good in the long run. Care for the health, lest it be the thwarting factor.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of change or removal, which should make for ultimate benefits or promotion, but these are also subject to some delays, setbacks or obstacles. Preparation for these, working with diligence, patience and hope, all may be well. The health should be cared for lest it be the obstructing factor.

A child born on this day may have many talents and good qualities, although restless and changeable.

Nature intends whatever happens, not less the cessation of being than its beginning and continuance.—AURELIUS.

Orange and Grapefruit Salad

Peel and remove all the white skin from three large oranges, slice them thinly, remove the seeds and place in a little white strainer over a bowl to chill. Take the pulp from two small or one very large grapefruit, removing all the white skin, set to drain with the orange. When ready to use, mix with a cupful of grated canned pineapple, moisten with heavy French dressing and a half cupful of chives, cut fine with kitchen scissors. Fill cupped lettuce leaves with the salad and garnish with red peppers cut in strips.

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali in water will neutralize instantly many times as much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

Splendid Recipe To Stop A Cough That "Hangs On"

The best cough remedy that money could buy, can easily be made at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs and chest colds, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this home-made remedy loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. At the same time, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which usually follow the "flu", are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

NEW $6,000,000 HOSPITAL PLAN LAUNCHED

The project of erecting a hospital, estimated to cost approximately $6,000,000, with an annual overhead of $300,000, as a combined city and county venture, to care for social diseases, county major and minor contagious diseases and city minor contagious diseases, was definitely launched late yesterday at a conference in the office of Mrs. Enoch H. Rauh, director of the City Department of Welfare.

The conference was attended by more than a score of representatives of public, social and civic organizations and was concluded with a resolution to make Mrs. Rauh chairman of a temporary organization, to become permanent later, to appoint legislative and educational committees and to draft legislation destined for passage through the present Legislature, to enable the construction of the joint hospital project.

TO DRAFT BILL

City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt and County Solicitor W. Heber Dithrich were designated to draft a bill to be presented to the Legislature as enabling legislation. Albert D. Brandon, magistrate of Morals Court, stated that W. L. Mellon, former Republican State Chairman, is strongly behind the project, and Mrs. Rauh stated that State Senator Max G. Leslie and Assemblyman Joseph C. Marcus have promised to press the legislation in their respective branches.

KLINE AT MEETING

Among the speakers and those in attendance were: Mayor Kline, Councilmen P. J. McArdle and John S. Herron, Dr. John Conover, of the State Department of Health, Margus Acheson, chairman, committee on welfare for Metropolitan Plan; Miss Eleanor Hanson, of the Associated Charities; Miss Grace Stokes, chief probation officer of Juvenile Court; Dr. Walter Donaldson, secretary of Allegheny County Medical Society; Dr. Lester Hollander, of the Cancer Foundation; Magistrate Brandon, City Solicitor Waldschmidt, Judge James H. SUCCESSFUL METHODS FOR COMBATTING FLU AND COLDS

Follow These Rules—Do Not Fool With a Cold—Use Tried, Safe Methods.

Look out for colds—even mild colds in the head and throat.

Don't let them get down into the chest and lungs.

Don't expose yourself to damp or wet weather.

Don't go out if you are feeling sick. Influenza, grippe, pneumonia or other serious sickness often comes from colds.

THE DANGER

Cold, "Flu" and Pneumonia Germs multiply by the millions and attack the weak and the strong alike. Watch out for colds, they weaken your resistance. The greatest danger lies in that "simple cold." Kill that cold quickly.

It is of vast importance to clean out the entire intestinal tract, upper and lower bowels regularly. Keep the kidneys well flushed and freshen and strengthen the blood.

Experience of 1918

The experience of the 1918 epidemic showed that one of the best and simplest treatments was to take a steaming hot cupful of Bulgarian Herb Tea.

Why take any chances, why not be prepared to fight off your cold or "flu?"

The right thing to do now is to go to your druggist, get a box of Bulgarian Herb Tea. Kill off your cold. Take it steaming hot twice a week. It will heat up the chilled blood, increase the circulation and rid the bowels and intestines of poisons and germs. Every family will find Bulgarian Herb Tea (purely vegetable), a real blessing to have on hand in this time of need. Keep your system clean all winter.

See your druggist at once. Your health—perhaps your very life—may depend upon taking this simple precaution. Costs but a few cents.

If you have had the flu or a bad cold already, watch out for a recurrence. A cupful of Tea twice a week is your protection against attacks.

Pittsburgh Boys Returned to Court

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 15.—John Burke, Thomas Lynch, John Lynch and John Duffy, Pittsburgh boys of 12 to 15 years, who were arrested here last week in a sealed freight car after smoke from paper they had accidentally lighted was seen issuing from the car, were taken to Pittsburgh for action by the juvenile court of Allegheny county. They were under paroles in Pittsburgh after having participated in the robbery of a store, it was said.

Washington County Schools Hit by Flu

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 15.—Approximately 20 per cent of the boys and girls attending the Washington public schools were absent when classes were resumed after a period of four weeks, two for the usual holiday vacation and the last two weeks because of the influenza epidemic in the district. East Washington reported approximately nine per cent of its enrollment not present. A large percentage are believed to have been out because of the extremely cold weather.

Lovely Clothes of the Movies . . wonderful Million-Dollar Wardrobes . .

"Actually Re-Newed by Lux"

LOUISE BROOKS, BEAUTIFUL FILM STAR,
wears this lovely silk lounging suit, typical of the pretty clothes shown in her pictures. "I learned by experience what my studios proved by scientific tests," she says,—"that only Lux keeps that lovely, fresh new look in clothes." Like the movies, women everywhere—8 out of 10 in representative homes in cities from coast to coast, investigations show, use Lux!

And every New York Musical Show . . Famous dressmakers . . Buyers for great department stores also find . .

"The original loveliness of our clothes can actually be Re-Newed again and again—and they last twice as long—through the use of Lux."

EVERY WOMAN knows how hard it is to keep pretty, fragile clothes looking like new in spite of every day wear . . Then imagine the problem of the movies—with beautiful clothes that simply must look brilliantly new—yet must also stand the gruelling wear of "shooting" big super-films!

Now the studios have solved this problem—every woman's very own problem—after experiments with many different cleansing methods, many different soaps.

And they find that: Lux actually Re-News, again and again—as no other washing method does—the original, fresh beauty of fine fabrics . . . And with Lux, lovely clothes—whether sturdy or sheer—last more than twice as long.

Now every great studio in Hollywood uses Lux—to double the life of fabrics! Simply follow their rule—and you, too, can keep clothes actually like new so much longer!

"WE CAN'T AFFORD TO RISK USING ANYTHING BUT LUX," says Adrian, costume director of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. "It is a matter of dollars and cents with us! We find garments come out of Lux cleansing looking so beautiful they can be worn through months of production—and can be later re-created into new costumes, saving large sums of money. Naturally, we insist on Lux."

Why does Lux keep things new so much longer? Because only the purest materials known . . . and a special costly process . . . are used in making the delicate Lux diamonds! Lux contains no harmful alkali—as many soaps do, whether flakes, chips or cakes—nothing to harm delicate fibres and colors. . . and with Lux there is no rubbing to weaken and shrink.

LUX
For all fine laundering

MUSICAL SHOWS
like the gorgeous "Rosalie," starring Marilyn Miller (above), all use Lux—to double the life of stockings! The Shubert General Manager says emphatically, "We would use Lux even if it cost $1.00 a box!"

FAMOUS DRESSMAKERS
of New York insist upon Lux for underthings and stockings worn by mannequins in modeling beautiful gowns—as illustrated in the above glimpse "behind the scenes" at the salon of Frances Clyne.

DEPARTMENT STORE BUYERS—
92% of those interviewed in 112 leading stores—insist on Lux for their own things. And they are experts in fabrics and styles! (Above) Buyer of imported sweaters for Best and Co., Fifth Ave.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Marionettes To Be Staged Again

OUR Junior League, with its Thrift Shop, its benefits, its art exhibits and its every-day round of activities, plays such an important part in the lives of the feminine half of our "smart set" that I thought you might be interested in knowing what some of the other cities are doing. In Detroit the League is doing something which hasn't been attempted here, and that is the forming of a Glee Club. The members meet every week to rehearse, and I understand that they are to make their first appearance on the first day of February. One of the singers in the club, by the way, is a former local girl. She is Mrs. Wendell W. Anderson, and you may remember her better as Suzanne [illegible]. The Andersons have been living in Detroit for some time, you know, and Mrs. Anderson has been taking a quite active part in the social life there.

Speaking of [illegible] local [illegible], though, Mrs. [illegible], Jr., who was chairman for the marionette shows which were given a week or so ago, says that the performance is going to be repeated early in February. No definite time has been set, I understand, so I will have to tell you about that later.

THE very fact that this marionette show is being planned indicates that at least some members of our younger social group are not leaving the city. But everything else points to the rapid exodus of our "400" and the consequent collapse of a much-deflated season. For instance, just yesterday morning Mrs. G. Harton Singer, Jr., of Morewood Heights, and Mrs. Eleanor Scott Walker, of Lark Inn Fields, Shields, left to spend a couple of months in California. And on Friday, I hear, the Joseph W. [illegible], of Woodland road, are planning to leave for Florida. They expect to spend the remainder of the winter at the Hotel Ormond, at Ormond, I understand.

Not so far away are Mrs. J. Hanson Rose and her daughter, Gretchen, who have been spending a short time at Virginia Beach. And in New York have been Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. McKay and their daughter, Elizabeth, of Morewood avenue, stopping at the Weylin. The Ralph E. [illegible], of Sharpsburg, have been in Gotham for a few days, too, staying at the Barclay, while at the same hotel have been Mrs. C. Dudley, of Warwick terrace, and Mrs. Walter S. Heron, of Solway street.

AND while we're talking about travelers, I want to tell you about a party for two Sewickleyans, who are planning a trip. Mrs. Chester Marsh Van Kleeck, of East drive, Sewickley, is the hostess, and she is entertaining today with a bridge-luncheon in the Allegheny Country Club in honor of Miss Isabelle Douglas Baldwin and Miss Henrietta S. McGeary, who, with Miss Baldwin's niece, Emily Wilson Porter, daughter of the John Ebbert Porters, of Beaver street, are sailing shortly for a West Indian cruise.

ALSO away from the city are Mrs. John C. Reilly and her daughter, Miss Mary Bertha Reilly, of the Hotel Schenley. They left not long ago to spend the remainder of the winter at their Miami Beach home.

AMONG others planning to be in Florida for the rest of the winter are Dr. and Mrs. Walter M. Yost, of Irwin drive, Edgeworth. Mrs. Yost and her daughter, Martha, have already left for the East where Martha will return to Miss Porter's School at Farmington. Mrs. Yost will meet Dr. Yost and their son, James Mitchell Yost, in Washington, and they will motor to Clearwater, Fla.

LISTED among the travelers, too, are Mr. and Mrs. John J. Hart and their daughter, Ursula, of Emerson street and Kentucky avenue. The Harts will visit another daughter, Elizabeth, who is studying at the Sorbonne in Paris. Ursula will attend school in Paris during the remainder of the winter and will return to Pittsburgh with her sister in June.

THE Pittsburgh Goucher Alumnae Association is planning to give a benefit performance of "The Royal Family" Monday night, February 4, in the Alvin Theater. Mrs. Olive Loeffler Lamb is in charge, and heading the various committees are Mrs. F. C. Hoenninger, Miss Mary Boss, Mrs. C. J. Jaquish, Miss Edith Crawford and Mrs. W. F. Farrell.

MISS PAULINE FELDMAN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Feldman, of Hazelwood avenue, Squirrel Hill, has selected Thursday as the date for her marriage to August E. Hakius, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. August E. Kakius, of Wilkinsburg. The ceremony will be performed in the parsonage of the Mary S. Brown Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church by the Rev. J. M. Thoburn. A reception in the Feldman home will follow.

MRS A. B. DALLY, Miss Lide Robbins and Mrs. S. D. Newbury spent the week end in Painesville, O., where they are attending a meeting of the Alumnae Council of the Lake Erie College for Women.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM CAREY VAN SCOYOC, of Harrisburg, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Margaret Louise Van Scoyoc, and David W. Fraser, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. David W. Fraser, of Reynolds street, East End. The ceremony was performed December 31 in the Little Church Around the Corner, New York.

* * *

MISS GRACE CECELIA WIMER, of South Linden avenue, entertained Saturday with a bridge luncheon in honor of her sister, Miss Helen Irene Wimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wimer, whose marriage to Thomas William Kirk will be solemnized January 23.

Women Hear About Modernistic Books

"MODERNISTIC LITERATURE" was made the subject for an unusually interesting talk by Dr. Henry Seidel Canby when he appeared before the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning. These new writers represent not so much literature that one must read, Dr. Canby said, as that they are pioneers in a new field. They are timid and cover their shyness with a truculence, a brusquerie, an impudence and a bravado, as well as an attempt to be shocking. This is because they are not sure of themselves in this transitional age, Dr. Canby offered as an explanation. Literature at any period may be, and often is, a record of the life being lived, the speaker stated, adding that, while this is not essential, literature must be expressive of life or die. Dr. Canby finds himself unmoved, he said, by the oft-expressed opinion that this age is producing no great books, but if this be so, he holds, it is because the age is not a great one. Since 1910 "transition has been more transitional" than at any time since the Renaissance, and literature has not yet caught up with life; writers of modernistic books realize this and are attempting to get a new expressiveness for their age, Dr. Canby went on.

He spoke of D. H. Lawrence's "singular, magic beauty of style, somewhat neurotic, but courageous." Aldous Huxley's "Point Counter Point," he said, is not a novel, but a social document crammed full of brilliant ideas and was written as a novel because the author knew nobody would read it otherwise. In some respects literature is losing through modernistic writing; the heroic aspect and personality are all gone Dr. Canby declared.

Divorce Denied, Mate's Charges Too Late

Judge James H. Gray yesterday refused to grant a divorce to G. Harvey Faul, formerly of 6 East North avenue, who had asked that his marriage, in 1902, to Elizabeth Faul be dissolved.

The court ruled that if Mrs. Faul had been seen with other men, as the husband charged, such actions occurred after the Fauls had separated in 1923.

'VET' SAYS LINCOLN SHOT DUEL FOE WITH BERRIES

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—A musket loaded with pokeberries was Abraham Lincoln's weapon in the historic "Lincoln-Shields duel," according to the latest version of the battle.

The story, which has been called to the attention of Lincoln authorities here, is told by Nicholas B. Jones, 87-year-old Civil War veteran of Enid, Okla., and father-in-law of the state treasurer of Oklahoma.

Trouble arose between Lincoln and Gen. James Shields over a series of letters in the Springfield Journal, in which Shields, then state auditor, was criticized. Shields accused Lincoln of their authorship, and failing to obtain a retraction, demanded satisfaction. At this point, Mr. Jones' story deviates from other tales.

DUEL ARRANGED

"For appearance sake," the Civil War veteran says, "the men agreed to cover up the quarrel, but secretly arranged for a duel in a nearby field. I was 19 years old. Abe Jones, my father, was chosen for Shields' second.

"Naturally, I decided to see the affair. We slipped out into a field while it was still dark, and got there first. Just as the sun was a little above the horizon, we saw Abe riding across the field on his horse, his legs dangling down.

"Lincoln didn't seem the least bit nervous. The men had chosen single shot muskets for their weapons. The referee started them off back to back. They walked 20 paces and then turned and fired.

LAUGH SUCCEEDS FEAR

"Shields shot so fast that his aim went wild. Then Lincoln raised his musket and took deliberate aim. The shot hit Shields right in the chest. Red spurted out on Shields' shirt and he dropped to the ground. He didn't stay there long, though, 'cause we all burst out laughing. Lincoln had loaded his gun with pokeberries. Shields thought he was going to die."

The generally accepted version of the "duel" is that broadswords were selected, with a place on the Missouri shore just below Alton as the meeting spot. Before the clash could take place, however, their friends brought about a friendly settlement.

Aged Farmer Dies On Beaver Highway

MIDLAND, Pa., Jan. 15.—The body of Thomas Wilkinson, 80, farmer, of Hookstown, was found along the road, three miles south of Hookstown, by Henry Craig, rural letter carrier. Wilkinson was on his way to visit his niece, Mrs. John Boyd, when stricken with heart disease.

Local Puckmen Protest
Leonard Suggests Rule
Flaws Seen in Lary

Delay Big Cue Match

VISITING ICERS MAY GET TIMEKEEPER

Benny Leonard

WHEN the matter of changing or revising the hockey rules is taken up at the next meeting of the National League, the Pittsburgh club will have a proposal of its own to offer, apart from the alterations in the code that are to be suggested by the New York Americans and other members of the major body. The management of the Pirates will make an attempt to have a rule adopted that will permit the visiting team in each league game to have a timekeeper.

This is the outgrowth of an incident that occurred in a recent game between the Bucs and the Rangers at Madison Square Garden in New York, which resulted in a 2-to-2 deadlock after Pittsburgh had led by a score of 2 to 0 until the closing stages of play. Benny Leonard held a stop watch in the third period, and asserts that the teams played 24 minutes, instead of only 20, before time was finally called. The Pirate boss protested to Colonel Hammond, chief owner of the Rangers, but to no avail. It is claimed that the official timer at the Rangers' home games is an employe of the Madison Square Garden Company.

AND that is not the only complaint that the Pittsburgh club feels that it has ground for making in connection with the timekeeping in other cities, and under the conditions Leonard believes that the league cannot refuse to concede the fairness of the proposed new rule that will allow the visiting club in each contest to have a timer of its own.

The Pirates charge that in Boston, for instance, some of their players were compelled to serve three minutes on two-minute penalties on account of the inefficiency of the timer. No fewer than 13 penalties were handed to the Pittsburgh players during that game, and Boston scored the winning goal while Frankie Frederickson was off the ice.

ODIE CLEGHORN, manager of the local puckmen, explains why the Bucs were defeated by such a lopsided score as 4 to 1 in Detroit last week. He says Detroit got a lucky goal in the first period, the puck bounding into the net, and as the Pirates failed to overcome the Cougars' lead in the second period he sent four men up the ice in the final chapter in an attempt to tie up the game.

Lyn Lary

This left the Pittsburgh team with only one man on defense, but Odie says he figured that his team might as well be downed by three or four goals as by one, so he gambled on knotting the count by using a four-man offense.

THOUGH he turned Jimmy Reese back to the Pacific Coast League without a trial as being unfit or unripe for service in the major baseball show, Manager Miller Huggins, of the Yankees, is manifesting an extraordinary lot of confidence in Lyn Lary, the other member of the widely-advertised infield duo purchased from Oakland. The fact that Huggins has disposed of nearly all the remainder of his third-base material by releasing Joe Dugan, Mike Gazella, Paul Wera and Ben Chapman, to say nothing of the rumor that Gene Robertson also may be dropped, is taken to mean that the Yankee boss feels sure Larry will make good at either shortstop or the hot corner.

ACCORDING to a California baseball man who is visiting in Pittsburgh, however, Huggins may make the unpleasant discovery that his early confidence in Lary was misplaced. This Westerner, who has the reputation of being a good judge of baseball timber, doubts the ability of Lary to make the grade.

"Lary may look good on paper, but the chances I had to study him at close range did not convince me that he is big-league stuff," said the coast man. "I hope I'm wrong, and I wouldn't throw a toothpick in the way of any advancing youngster, but Lary did not impress me, particularly as a hitter. He looked weak on outside curves and I can't see how he is ever going to hit major league pitching. Besides, he has taken on a lot of weight and that's not going to help his general play. I'll be agreeably surprised if he makes good."

REPORTS from the East indicate that the orders sent to Infielder Harry Riconda by the Pittsburgh club to refrain from playing basketball this winter were not needed to make the new Pirate give up his floor activities, which, the Buccaneer management feared, might lead to his being injured or otherwise affect his baseball fitness for 1929.

Elwood English

For the professional basketball team of Paterson, N. J., with which Riconda had planned to play, has "gone under" and disbanded, so that unless the infielder obtained with Pitcher Jess in the Glenn Wright trade becomes rebellious and hooks up with another five he will have to retire from the indoor sport whether he likes the Pirate mandate or not.

MOST baseball fans will get a laugh out of one of the latest arguments put forward by Cub boosters as to why the bolstered Bruins ought to win the National League pennant this year. It is predicted that, aside from his own individual value, Rogers Hornsby will work a vast improvement in Shortstop Elwood English, not only as a hitter, but as a fielder as well. Hornsby will teach English a great deal about fielding, it is said, "just as he helped Tommy Thevenow in St. Louis and Eddie Farrell in Boston," and there appears to be no doubt in the minds of Chicago rooters that Woody will become a much better shortstop than ever before by reason of what he will learn about defensive work through playing alongside the Rajah.

AS A matter of fact, there is a far greater likelihood that English may be able to teach Hornsby something about fielding. If there is any infielder in the National League whose defensive work could stand a heap of improvement that individual is Hornsby himself.

You can't take anything away from Rogers as a batsman, but in

Glenna Collett Fails as Archer

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Miss Glenna Collett, of Providence, R. I., national women's golf champion, finds shooting arrows vastly more different than hitting golf balls.

Miss Collett finished next to the cellar position in the Pinehurst mid-winter archery tournament's opening round yesterday. Mrs. Elizabeth Rounsevelle, of Ashville, N. C., led the women's field in the event with a score of 462, while Carl C. Thompson, of Canadaigua, N. Y., president of the New York State Archer's Association, topped the men's competition.

Williams, Floored, Wins Over Bob Garcia

BALTIMORE, Jan. 15. — (AP.)—Kid Williams, former bantamweight champion now attempting a comeback in the lightweight ranks, won a close decision over Bob Garcia in their 10-round fight here last night.

Garcia floored Williams in the first round with a right hook. The Kid scrambled to his feet at the count of four, as the bell rang. Williams took the next round on points, and throughout the remainder of the fight they took alternate leads in the heavy hitting. Williams was able to win on points.

PERRY, PEABODY FAVORED TO HOLD LEADS

There is little to indicate that the leaders of the respective sections in the City League, Peabody and Perry, will not still be roosting at the top of the ladder by evening. With five games listed in the league for today, the two pace setters seem to have drawn more or less setup tasks in their opponents for the day.

Langley, meeting Perry in Section Two, hardly will be able to muster enough strength to upset the North Siders, in fact, the leaders are prohibitive favorites to wallop the Tunnelites about as they please. South Hills has a chance to get back into the running, opposed to the weak Allegheny Vocational passers, and Carrick will attempt to upset the rampaging Oliver quintet, a feat which Coach Lyons' men are not likely to accomplish.

PEABODY FAVORITE

In Section One, Peabody figures to stay out in front by beating back the challenge of Coach Washabaugh's South High aggregation. Fifth, showing a complete reversal of form which cost it a victory in the opening game of the season a week ago, tackles far from strong Ralston.

There are some important contests slated for the W. P. I. A. L. program. In Section Four, Nate Lippe's Aliquippans must invade the precincts of Midland for what looms as a tough ball game. Leetsdale will play Beaver at Beaver, with the County Seaters favored to win two in a row.

In Section Five, South Brownsville will test Earl Zook's Waynesburg machine, undefeated in seven games to date. Scottdale and Connellsville furnish the action in Section Ten and the Braddock-Pitcairn contest tops the card in Section Eight.

Hearst Man High In Florida Event

PALM BEACH, Jan. 15.—A Hearst newspaper representative, Merrill M. Lord, of the New York American, finished near the top yesterday in the qualifying round of the twenty-fourth annual championship of the Winter Golf League of Advertising Interests.

The Gotham entry led seven players from his city in the first flight with a gross 88. The leader was R. Murray Purves, of Boston, with 86, who took first place after the medal winner, H. H. Block, of Wheeling, W. Va., had withdrawn following his round of 42-39—81.

In a first round match today the Hearst executive will play W. H. O'Brien, also of New York. Mrs. Lord won the medal in the women's division with 99.

Halicki, Bison Star, Signed By Cards

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Edward Halicki, said to be Bucknell College's most outstanding ball player since the days of the late Christy Mathewson, is slated to join the St. Louis Cardinals in June, it was announced yesterday by Branch Rickey, club vice president. Halicki, a pitcher, also played the outfield in college ball.

Jess Haines, Cards' star righthander, was closeted for a long time with Rickey, but afterwards neither Rickey nor Haines would say they had talked about a new contract, although Haines' old document expired with the 1928 season.

The St. Louis Browns already have started on the 1929 contracts.

M'KEESPORT RING PROGRAM IS COMPLETE

Promoter Jim McGirr, of McKeesport, has completed his card for his boxing show Thursday night with the signing of Johnny Michaels, of Braddock, to meet Frankie Moran, of Homewood, in the second bout, and Frank D'Angelo, of Greensburg, to oppose Al Walker, Pittsburgh heavyweight, in the opening six-rounder.

Two 10-round bouts top the bill, Battling Gizzy, of Donora, meeting Ken Hargraves, of New Kensington, and Young Saylor, of Charleroi, battling Henry Firpo, of Louisville.

Phil Goldstein, local lightweight, is back in New York, following his nose operation, and is in training for a series of battles that have been booked by his manager, Jimmy Bronson.

Jack Zivic, local welterweight ace, is back in training again, following an attack of the flu, and will be ready soon for action. He will box under the management of Byron Foutts, of Midland, Pa.

Two local boxers are on the card at Youngstown tonight, Dominick Proffo meeting Larry Madge, of Cleveland, in the semi-final, and Frank Monroe clashing with Mike Patrick. Boleaux Saguero, Negro light-heavyweight, of Chicago, boxes Willie Walker, of New York, in the windup.

Phil Scello, of McKeesport, has been matched to box Johnny Pisi, of Oil City, in the semi-final to the Willie Davies-Marty Gold bout at Oil City next Monday night. The winner of this bout will box Young Guido in the main bout of the following show at Oil City.

Leo Lomski has been installed an 8-to-5 favorite to defeat Jimmy Braddock in their 10-round bout in Madison Square Garden, New York, next Friday night.

FUCHS, BREADON AND BAKER HURT DIAMOND SPORT

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

WHEREVER you find practical baseball men in active control of major league clubs you will see a blending of financial success with a high artistry of performance on the diamond.

And where you see the butchers and bakers and candlestick makers running things—look out for the contrasting picture.

Let Exhibit A consist of Huggins, McGraw and McCarthy. Each of these three skillful leaders has made a fortune for his employer.

But you don't see Col. Ruppert, Charley Stoneham or William Wrigley telling this trio what moves to make. The three capitalists are at least wise enough in a business way to keep hands off.

Then examine Exhibit B, which should include Messrs. Baker, Fuchs and Breadon.

None of these sport directors appears to know much about baseball, yet they insist on making moves for their managers.

A high-class pilot could make something out of the Quakers, but the manager hasn't much chance with Baker selling off his best players.

Judge Fuchs, I fell, is an honest man, but how does that make him a good baseball leader, with no previous experience? The Phillies and Braves are shining examples of what to expect from incompetent directors in the front office.

Breadon is almost in the same boat as the other two, except that Branch Rickey seems to act as a balance wheel for Breadon. Where did the Cardinal president get the experience to qualify as diamond director? If he were wise he would play the Wrigley role and let his manager run his ball club.

Chillysauce

The Pirates squad has been reduced to 38 players with the outright release to Omaha of the Western League of Pitcher Elmer Tutwiler, Birmingham, Ala., boy who came to the club last summer from the Savannah club of the Southeastern League.

Tutwiler was impressive as he worked on the Pirate hitters in many batting sessions, but Manager Bush is surfeited with youngsters so somebody had to vacate. Elmer has a nice, smooth delivery and it is altogether possible that he will reach the majors again.

Bush still has 18 sharpshooters on his staff, including Lee Meadows, whose future with the Buccos is very doubtful. Meadows won just one contest last season, he being out with a lame arm most of the season. However, he expects to make the training trip with the team.

Washington folks seem to think that Joe Cronin stands a fine chance of becoming a regular next season. Joe's brilliance at short in the closing weeks of the last campaign won him many friends among the Senators and their supporters. A Washington newspaperman tells me that Joe played fine ball and was a morale builder.

The Pirate management does not pass up many stars, but occasionally one gets away, like Fresco Thompson, of the Phillies and Pitcher Alvin Crowder, of the Senators. I always figured Thompson as a big-league star, but did not think that Crowder would be a big winner in the majors. The latter, however, stands out as one of the best pitchers of the present period.

Cronin had little chance to show his stuff as a Pirate. The club was always in the flag fight and any kid who kicked one in a clinch generally was yanked. Sunny Joe went through this experience in Cincinnati one afternoon. Some managers think it is very bad policy to pull a boy during the progress of a contest in which he has cracked, but in this particular instance, the Buccos were fighting for the top position and the move may have been justified. In any event, Joe seems to have shaken off any effects that might have accrued in this contest.

The Pirates travel about 3,600 miles to get in their spring training work, but one member of the club can start out from his home after breakfast with a horse and buggy and still be in time for the first official workout. That player is First-baseman Earl Sheely. Earl's pretty home is less than five miles from the training camp town. He has a fine ranch with his home facing one of the many good roads of the section.

Westminster College, temporarily ousted from the lead in the Tri-State Conference, has a golden opportunity at its collective finger tips tonight as the United Presbyterians invade Meadville for a non-Conference battle of much importance with Allegheny College. By winning tonight, the Titans can slip into second place in the district rating, one victory ahead of the Pitt Panthers and one behind the pace-setting West Virginia Mountaineers.

Not only that, but if a victory can be turned in tonight, and if Pitt runs true to form and bumps off West Virginia here Friday evening, the Titans may be leading the pack by the end of the week. If they win tonight and beat Geneva Thursday at Beaver Falls, they are bound to be the undisputed Conference and district leaders.

GENEVA IN LEAD

The Blue and White dropped from the lead in the Conference last night even though it was idle. Geneva traveled down to Waynesburg and beat Frank Wolf's Yellow Jackets 24-to-13 in a raggedly played game. The Covenanters showed a good passing attack, but their shots were not dropping well and there were one or two errors of omission committed.

Waynesburg couldn't get going and trailed throughout the game. Geneva now leads in the Conference with two games won and none lost, while Westminster has won one and lost none.

Clever Len Friedman tossed in four field goals to take the high scoring honors last night for Geneva. He played a very good floor game in addition. The lineup:

GENEVA		WAYNESBURG
Friedman	F	Allison
Montgomery	F	Porter
Ransom	C	Ullom
Merriman	G	Smith
Emerick	G	White

Substitutes— Waynesburg, King, Patsch. Field goals—Friedman 4, Montgomery, Ransom, Merriman 2, Emerick, Porter 3, Allison 2. Fouls—Geneva, 6 out of 10, Waynesburg, 3 out of 5. Referee—Daugherty.

PITT TO BE TRIED

Pitt, incidentally, will have no setup in West Virginia here Friday. The Mountaineers are boasting the best basketball team they have had for years. It has won four games so far, scored a total of 164 points and displayed sterling defensive strength.

West Virginia's attack is built around another former all-America scholastic star, Marshall (Little Sleepy) Glenn, just as Pitt's game is centered, for the most part, around the scintillating person of Charley Hyatt.

Graduate Manager John D. Holahan announced that a new policy would be carried out for the balance of the present Duquesne University basketball schedule. Beginning with the Geneva game, January 22, the main game will start at 8:15 p. m. sharp. Graduate Manager Holahan arranged the new time in order that the students attending the games may return home early to prepare the next day's lessons.

The Intra-Mural League will furnish the prelim attractions to all main games played at the Duquesne University gym.

Carnegie Tech's fine football team of last fall is to be represented at the Veteran Sportsmens' Association's "Banquet of Champions" in Philadelphia on February 2. Advisory Coach Wally Steffen, Capt. Howard Harpster and Ted Rosenzweig are to attend the fete as Tartan representatives.

Dr. H. C. Carlson and his great undefeated Pitt basketball team of last year will also be among the honor guests at this affair.

After making 11 successive strikes, No. 5 pin remained standing on his twelfth ball. Miller's previous highest total was 279. He also has rolled 276 twice.

CHICK MEEHAN SAVED FROM A "RIEGELS"

By HARRR KECK, Sports Editor.

SPEAKING of Roy Riegels and his famous 70-yard run in the wrong direction in the Tournament of Roses game at Pasadena, Cal., New Year's Day, it appears that this was not the only "boner" of that lovely California afternoon. According to a Los Angeles scribe, Chick Meehan, coach of N. Y. U., was just saved from pulling one that would have made him the laughing stock among football men all over the country.

Chick was "experting" on the game for a Los Angeles newspaper and on the way back to the office after the battle was popping off about the referee pulling one when he brought the ball out to the 20-yard line following the safety. Chick was going to write a stirring criticism about that, contending that on a safety the ball should be put in play from the 30-yard line.

Somebody tipped him off that the rule had been changed two years ago to bring the ball out to the 20-yard line, the same as on a touchback. Chick was all twisted up because an official had worked the 30-yard stunt against his team during the past season.

They all pull 'em, from the coaches on down the line.

SAMMY HAHN, manager of Davy Adelman, the Philadelphia bantamweight boxer, told a good yarn on himself when he was here the other day for Adelman's bout with Howard Mayberry at McKeesport.

"They are accusing me of originating a new racket," he said. "Some time ago Adelman became a bit restive under my management and I thought a change would do him good, so I sold his contract to Joe Glaser, of Chicago, for $400. In less time than it takes to tell it, Adelman managed to give Glaser a headache and the latter countered with his release. Then Adelman came back to me, knowing I understood his ways and feeling that he always would be welcome under my protecting wing. No sooner had we renewed business relations than some bimbo started a story that Adelman and Hahn were working a new chiseling act whereby Hahn sold the fighter, after having an understanding with the fighter that he would make matters unpleasant for his new boss and get the air and come back to Hahn. The thing, they said, was to be worked as often as possible. However, they do me an injustice. I may be a fight manager, but I have an honest heart."

From Ft. Wayne, Ind., Charley Jones, manager of Midget Mike O'Dowd, sends a clipping telling about the Midget's victory over Bill Evans, Negro, of that city, in their 10-round battle last Friday night. It is interesting in view of the fact that O'Dowd, who defeated Jackie Rodgers at Motor Square Garden New Year's afternoon, is matched to box Andy Martin in the Motor Square ring February 4. An excerpt from the clipping follows:

"MIDGET MIKE O'DOWD, the phantom featherweight from Columbus, showing all the class that was expected of him and then some, scored a clean-cut victory over Billy Evans, the Van Wert colored boy, in the main bout at the Shrine auditorium last night.

"The scrap went the limit of 10 rounds, and, although Evans was in there fighting hard at the finish, he was a badly beaten boxer, and there was no question about the winner as the big crowd gave O'Dowd a rousing round of applause when the fight was over.

"One of the biggest crowds, if not the biggest, in recent Fort Wayne ring history, turned out to see a card that was a dandy from start to finish. There was not a dull spot in the first three bouts and Evans and O'Dowd finished off an evening of fine boxing entertainment with a bristling battle that did not lack interest even though O'Dowd was the master of the colored boy almost from the start.

"After a first round that was fairly tame and pretty even, while the boys were feeling one another out, O'Dowd got started, and he took every one of the nine rounds that remained."

SPARTA ELEVEN TO BE LOCAL SOCCER CARD

By TOM BIRKS.

The Pittsburgh Soccer Club, represented by Jack Lowther, at the national amateur cup meeting at the Keystone Athletic Club last Saturday evening made a smart move when it asked for a week's grace in which to play the scheduled game with the Cleveland Spartans. Of course, the move might have been a little premature when it is considered Glendale has to be met and beaten before Pittsburgh has the right to meet the Clevelanders.

But Lowther had the right dope when he felt that Pittsburgh should be able to beat the junior outfit at the next meeting. Glendale or any other club is tough to beat on its own grounds, but when the replay comes along the Blue and White should not have any trouble qualifying to meet the Clevelanders.

Lowther started to think pretty fast when the draw was made. Pittsburgh Celtics came out of the hat with the Corinthians, then Heidelberg came out with Swissvale and the final draw left Pittsburgh or Glendale entertaining the Sparta Club, which was also the odd team in that Ohio draw.

Of course, there might be an effort to get the winner of the Pittsburgh game to make the trip to Cleveland. The Sparta Club has the best playing grounds in the Forest City and should draw a large crowd with that Bohemian element following the club, but the writer is rather disappointed in the drawing power of Cleveland teams just at this time of year, and we feel that Pittsburgh, with the right kind of publicity on the Saturday following the regular draw, which will be February 2, should draw a great crowd at the Homewood Playgrounds, or the Westinghouse High School Stadium. There will not be any opposition that day from any games locally, or if the visitors would rather travel on Sunday, the Pittsburgh club could take the game to the Bridgeville Speedway.

COLTS LIKELY TO QUIT M. A. LEAGUE

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 15.—Cumberland will not be represented at the winter meeting of the Middle Atlantic League at Charleroi on Thursday due to the illness of James F. McGuire, club president, and the detention in court here of Fuller Barnard, Jr., secretary and treasurer, who is an attorney.

President McGuire insists he is not going to operate this year, but no one to date has come to take the club and franchise off his hands. Unless McGuire holds on or some one buys the club locally, Cumberland will likely be out of the league this season. It is possible McGuire may abandon the franchise unless some one takes it off his hands in the next few days.

Knickers End First Half With Victory

The Knickerbockers had little difficulty in downing the Penn Five in a West Penn League contest on the Sharpsburg High floor last night. The score of the game was 49 to 30. The contest was the last one of the first half.

West Montgomery, with 10 field goals, led the attack for the victors. Whitty Clark dropped in six for second honors. The lineup:

Knickers—49.		Penn—30.
Montgomery	F	McCracken
Clark	F	Carbonne
Harropp	C	Williams
Babic	G	Veltri
Murawski	G	Kinzel

Field goals—Montgomery 10, Clark 6, Harropp 3, Babic, Murawski 3, McCracken 2, Williams 4, Veltri, Kinzel 4. Fouls—Knickers, 3 out of 8; Penn, 6 out of 11. Referee—McCrae.

Greenleaf, Seaback Split Billiard Match

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Ralph Greenleaf and Charles Seaback divided the first two blocks of their 1,500 point pocket billiard match yesterday, but Greenleaf holds a slight lead in total points. The count stands: Greenleaf 258, Seaback 246.

Seaback won the afternoon block 125 to 110, closing out the block with an unfinished run of 37 in the tenth inning. Seaback's best cluster was 42, Greenleaf's 45.

Greenleaf came back to win the evening block, 148 to 121 in 18 innings, despite a high run of 81 for Seaback. Greenleaf's best string was 38.

RICKARD and the RING

By JACK DEMPSEY,
World's Greatest Ring Idol

Tex Willing to Take Chance

NOBODY I ever heard of was ever more willing to take a chance than Tex Rickard. The bigger the chance the better he liked it. Piking was a pitiful sort of thing in his eyes. He's rather lose money on a big swanky sort of venture than make a lot on a trifling one.

Jack Dempsey.

He started the fad of big purses outside the heavyweight class by giving Battling Nelson and Joe Gans $30,000 for the Goldfield fight. He went that a lot better by offering $101,000 for Johnson and Jeffries to fight at Reno. People thought he was crazy, but he proved that a man can spend wildly, and still succeed.

You know, before he offered me a bout with Jess Willard, he was working all the angles he could to get Georges Carpentier to America for a fight.

There was a tremendous amount of interest in the Orchid Man. His name was in the papers almost every day, and that interested Rickard a lot. Anyone who was getting as much publicity as that was certain to be a great drawing card. But, the French government would not let Carpentier come here, even if his coming here to fight would raise money for the Red Cross.

Tex might temporarily drop an idea, but if he thought it good he held it back for better times. Seeing that it was impossible to get Georges at that time Tex centered his attention on a fight between Willard and me for the championship.

He wanted to see Jess first, of course, since he was the champion. They met in a hotel room in Chicago. All the big fellows in the country were challenging the title-holder, but it didn't seem that very much money could be made through any of them, so Jess, who always was an excellent business man, paid no attention to them.

I had been going pretty well, and the champion knew that Rickard wanted him to fight me, still, he wasn't going to commit himself. He expected to argue about the purse, and was all set to talk himself hoarse. In about two minutes he found that it wasn't necessary.

Made Quick Offer

For Tex sprang the proposition on him in the way that only he could.

"Jess," he said, "I'll give you $100,000 to fight anybody I name on the Fourth of July. Will you sign with me?"

What else could Willard do? This was the largest amount ever offered a fighter up to that time, and the champion knew that Tex was good for it. Naturally, there was no argument. He agreed to sign, for he hadn't even guessed that he would get that much.

So Rickard hopped a rattler for New York, and came to see Kearns and me. The papers were full of stories about the possibility of Willard fighting this fellow or that one, but Tex just grinned as he rolled eastward. He had the champion tied up, and the other details—as to whom he should meet and where the bout would be held, could be settled afterward.

That was the first time I met Tex Rickard. I was impressed with him right away, but I know that he wasn't so strong about me because he still had a picture in his mind of the gigantic Willard. If it hadn't been for my record he probably would have dropped me right there.

Paid Jack Well

Tex didn't have to waste any time with me. I wanted to fight Jess and would have gone on with him for nothing, just to get a chance at the title. Rickard knew that. He could have offered me a lot less than the $27,500 he did, and still be sure I'd sign on the dotted line, but that wasn't his way of doing business.

I was the challenger, and figured to bring in some of the crowd, anyway, so I was worth paying for the job. That was the way he looked at things. Go down the list of all the fellows Rickard did business with, and they'll all tell you the same thing.

He believed in the old adage about a laborer being worthy of his hire. No man could have been brought up on the frontiers of the world and succeeded as he had with any petty notions. He was as big as the whole outdoors and I found that out the first time I met him.

No man could take a licking with better grace than he. When he lost a fortune promoting the bout between Gene Tunney and Tom Heeney he just grinned, and wrote it off to experience. He began his life-long friendship with Charley Henderson when Charley won $8,500 from him in a game of seven-up back in the old days in Alaska.

How could you beat a fellow like that?

Hoppe Decides He Won't Be Champ Again

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Willie Hoppe, dethroned as king of the balk line billiard players two years ago, has decided he never can regain the 18.2 title which he held for 15 years.

Hoppe at the conclusion of his pocket-billiard match with Ralph Greenleaf, in New York, last week told W. V. Thompson, secretary of the National Billiard Association, that he would not compete in the coming International Balk Line Tournament starting in New York, February 4.

"I finished sixth two years ago and have no desire to fall any lower," said Hoppe. "I guess I have either lost some of my technic or the younger players are improving."

Entries for the tournament close at midnight January 15.

DEMPSEY SIGNS STRIBLING

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 15.—W. L. Stribling, Sr., father of Young Stribling, today signed a contract with Promoter Jack Dempsey to fight Jack Sharkey here February 27.

Sharkey signed in Boston last Saturday.

Stribling is to receive a straight 20 per cent cut of the gate receipts without a guarantee.

The contract holds an option on Stribling for his next fight following the Sharkey battle.

MORRY AND ALUMNI FIVES FACE TEST TONIGHT

By JULIUS LEVIN.

TWO of the four teams still in the running for the first-half championship of the Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley League risk their chances for the title tonight when they meet strong opponents in league battles.

The Morrys of Braddock will invade the Brereton avenue hall of Johnny Dobbs' Immaculate Heart quintet, while the McKeesport Alumni travels to Jeannette to engage the crack Felders. Neither the Morrys nor the Alumni clubs can afford to lose a game at this stage as a defeat means elimination from the title fight.

EAGER TO WIN

While the Immaculate Heart and Felder passers are out of the running both teams are reported eager to check the advance of their opponents. Both clubs have been showing improvement with each game and inasmuch as they play on their home floors tonight they stand an excellent chance of upsetting the dope.

The first-half championship of the Greater Pittsburgh Institutional League will be settled tomorrow night at the North Side Community House floor when Kingsley House and North Side Community House clash in a playoff of a postponed game.

Kingsley House must win the contest to enable it to deadlock the Young Men's Hebrew Association for the lead. The Bellefielders already have completed their schedule, finishing in first place a half-game ahead of Coach Yetter's charges.

The North Siders have the knack of playing their best ball on their home court and if they show their usual form tomorrow night, Yetter's boys are going to be in for a busy evening.

DRIBBLES

The Conroys meet the Jenkins and the Conleys play the Lawrys in the two Homestead District League games scheduled at the Elks Temple, Homestead, tomorrow night.

Benny Malamude has been playing brilliant basketball for the Y. M. H. A. quintet, one of the reasons the Bellefielders are resting at the top of the Institutional League standing. Benny, a former member of the Doc Gordons, has fitted in nicely with the Y. M. H. A. quintet. The locals meet Johnstown Y. M. H. A. here next Tuesday night.

Thursday night Coach Dalton Williams will take his East Liberty Y. M. C. A. passers to McKeesport to engage the crack Hirschberg Club of the West Penn League. East Liberty hopes to make a strong comeback in the second half of the Institutional League race.

In Powers and Cassidy the Morrys of Bradock have two of the best players enrolled in the P. & O. League this winter. Cassidy has stood out as center, being hailed as the best pivot man in the loop.

The Pittsburgh Silents would like to arrange games with first-class teams. Write Thomas P. Ross, Jr., 104 Federal street, North Side.

FLANNERY CAPTAIN

LATROBE, Pa., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—John Flannery, of Youngstown, O., has been elected captain of the 1929 St. Vincent College baseball team, it has been announced. St. Vincent's season will open April 13 at Penn State.

NATIONAL GRID TOURNEY, IDEA OF HEISMAN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—A plan to select an actual national football champion each year has been suggested by John W. Heisman, former Georgia Tech and Pennsylvania coach, in a letter to H. C. (Curly) Byrd, football mentor at the University of Maryland.

Heisman proposed dividing the country into four sections and from each choosing the best team to meet teams of other sections in elimination contests that would end two Saturdays after the end of the regular playing season.

SUGGESTS DISTRICTS

His first division would be composed of states east of Ohio and north of the Mason-Dixon line. In the second division would fall teams below the Mason-Dixon line and east of the Mississippi River. The third division would include the Midwest states from Pennsylvania to the Rocky Mountains and the southern states lying west of the Mississippi River. In his final group would be the far western teams in states west of the Rocky Mountains.

Heisman said that these seemed to be natural boundaries for the various divisions and offered about an equal number of colleges in each and about an equal number of institutions playing high-grade football, giving all an approximate parity in strength.

SCRIBES WOULD BALLOT

With the geographical lines set, he would establish in each division a committee of sports writers that would function on the same plan as Southern writers who name the Southern Conference winner of the Pickens cup. At the end of each season these groups would, by ballot, select the outstanding team of their division to enter the elimination. Heisman then would have the Southern and Eastern champions meet on the Saturday after the end of the season with the Mid-Western and Western champions meeting on the same day. The following Saturday the survivors would battle for national supremacy.

JOE DUNDEE WINS

PORTSMOUTH, O., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Joe Dundee, of Baltimore, world's welterweight champion, won a 10-round decision from Johnny Roberts, of Huntington, W. Va., last night.

Sports Comment

By JAMES J. LONG

fielding he leaves much to be desired, and from that angle Windy City fans are going to miss Freddie Maguire around second base before the season is very far advanced.

AS FOR the "improvement" that Hornsby worked in Farrell, of the Braves, it is a fact that while teaming with Rogers in Boston last year Eddie had the poorest season he has experienced since he broke into the majors, and in addition to his fielding slump he hit only .215.

It strikes an outsider that before trying to improve the fielding of some other player Hornsby might profitably give considerable attention to his own.

Frank Taberski

FOLLOWING Ralph Greenleaf's return to form, as indicated by the crushing defeat that he administered to Willie Hoppe last week, cue devotees had hoped for another test of pocket-billiard skill at an early date between Greenleaf and Frank Taberski, who wrested the championship from him in the tournament at Chicago last month, but the desired match is off indefinitely. Taberski announces that for the present he cannot consider a meeting with the former title-holder, as he has exhibition dates to fill in upper New York state during the next two weeks and must leave immediately afterward for Seattle to start a tour there on February 4. Taberski offered to meet Greenleaf in a series of matches upon his return from the West about the middle of March, but Greenleaf was forced to decline that proposition because it would interfere with his own exhibition schedule.

THOUGH the Pittsburgh baseball club started some early weeding-out last night by releasing Elmer Tutwiler, young right-hand pitcher, who worked in only two championship games last year, to the Omaha club of the Western League, the Corsairs still are long on flingers.

Seventeen chuckers remain on the roster. They are Grimes, Petty, Kremer, Hill, Fussell, Dawson, Meadows, Swetonic, Meine, Brame, French, Tauscher, Blankenship, Mahaffey, Glenn Spencer, Erickson and Chagnon. The squad totals 38 players.

Morgan Debut in Utilities Foreshadows Big Events

By B. C. FORBES

J. P. MORGAN & CO. have finally come to the front openly as influential factors in the public utility field, which is on the eve of passing railway transportation as the largest industry in the United States.

This is easily the most significant financial development in recent times.

By the end of this year the total investment in utilities promises to reach $20,000,000,000. And, for years, expansion will call for a billion dollars or more annually, so keen and widespread is the demand for the benefits flowing from electric service in the home, in industry, in general business, on the farms.

Wherever you have great growth there are great opportunities. This explains the entrance of the most influential banking firm in the world into the utility arena.

Morgan & Co. first played a leading role in railway financing. In the old days railroads were considered ultra-respectable and conservative, whereas industrial enterprises then were not greatly favored by our leading banking houses.

It took much persuasion to induce the original J. P. Morgan to take up industrial financing on a grand scale. He at first rejected suggestions that he organize the mammoth United States Steel Corporation, but the enthusiasm of Charles M. Schwab won him over.

That really signalized the advent of billion-dollar enterprises in this country, and paved the way for the innumerable large-scale consolidations effected during the current century.

Now Morgan & Co. make their public debut in utilities. This, too, doubtless signalizes the approach of events in that field commensurate in magnitude with the events following the organization of our first billion-dollar industrial corporation.

Already one can visualize coming colossal developments.

INDIRECTLY, Morgan & Co. have been identified with utility activities for some time. They have been influentially identified, for example, with General Electric, of which Electric Bond and Share was an offshoot. An offshoot which, under the aggressive management of Sidney Z. Mitchell, bids fair to rival in its ramifications the parent company. Through its Philadelphia house, Morgan & Co. have also been connected with utility activities in [illegible]ity.

[illegible] now is the first time the [illegible]n firm has stepped forward [illegible] head of a utility project. [illegible]tial step is modest enough, comprising, according to the official announcement, arrangements to acquire only "certain minority interests in the United Gas and Improvement Company, public service corporation of New Jersey, and the Mohawk Hudson Power Corporation," held by the organizers of the new Morgan-sponsored "United Corporation" and the American Superpower Corporation.

It can be taken for granted, however, that the United Corporation will not stop there. But let me add that there is no truth whatsoever in the published reports that Electric Bond and Share is involved in any way in the deal just announced.

WHAT is the American public likely to witness in the next few years? Briefly, plans are brewing to bring about in the utility field large-scale co-ordinated corporations along the lines Congress has laid down for the gathering of our many railroads into approximately a score of powerful, well-rounded systems.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has blocked one proposed railway consolidation after another, so that relatively little headway has been possible.

But utility leaders have been able to effect many important consolidations already without, apparently, running afoul of any existing laws. Through the instrumentality of holding companies, properties aggregating hundreds of millions of dollars have been knitted together under single control. This has been happened in the Middlewest, in the far West, in the South and, latterly, in the East on the greatest scale of all.

It is here that the Morgan interests, the Mellon interests, the Electric Bond interests are likely to achieve things comparable in magnitude with anything the United States has ever known. But whether there is serious foundation for the talk that the aim is to bring under one control all the power plants from the Canadian border down the Eastern states all the way to Baltimore and even beyond is to be doubted. After all, financiers, no matter how powerful, must have regard to public opinion and must vigilantly seek, in their own interest, to avoid arousing public hostility to a point which would bring political reprisals.

MORGAN & CO. and other supremely powerful financial interests will do well to keep public sentiment prominently in their minds and to take pains to convince the public that what they are doing is not merely in the interest of bankers and stockholders, but in the interest of consumers and also of industrial wage earners through lowering costs and thus enabling the United States to compete more effectively with foreign competition.

GEORGE UHLE SIGNS

DETROIT, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—George Uhle, righthand pitcher obtained from the Cleveland Indians in a trade which sent Jack Tavener, infielder, and Ken Holloway, pitcher, to the Indians, has presented his signed contract for 1929 to President Frank J. Navin, of the Detroit Tigers.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Scattered Specialties Strong.

Prices washed back and forth again today with the main list getting nowhere. The general sentiment, however, appeared to be a little better than yesterday, and it was noted that several specialties in which bullish activity was pronounced went ahead with little regard for happenings in other parts of the market. There was no change in the money situation. Call loans opened unchanged at 7 per cent, but later jumped to 9 per cent. Automotive and allied securities and the utilities displayed the best group strength. Rubbers held the previous day's gains pugnaciously. Steels were fairly steady, but were subjected to a little realizing pressure. Rails were firm, but there were no conspicuous movements in that section. Oils continued to drag through the trading. Texas Corporation was a notable exception. This stock shot up sharply and made the widest single day's gain it has recorded for some time. Rights on Texas expire today. They carry the right to buy one additional share at $40 for every six rights. Traders switched their attention to the curb market today to watch the Standard Oil of Indiana fight and also to observe the gyrations of Ford Motor of Canada. Among the specialties enjoying a strong market on the big board was Standard Sanitary, a strictly Pittsburgh stock. This issue moved up rapidly with the Street hearing rumors that the merger with American Radiator will be made on much better terms for Standard than had been intimated in previous gossip. The rumors heretofore have been that four Standard will be exchanged for one Radiator. Observers today claimed to have information that the merger terms will be much more favorable to Standard.

Indiana Reflects "Fight."

The Rockefeller-Stewart "fight" having as its purpose the ousting of Col. Robert W. Stewart from the chairmanship of the board of Standard Oil of Indiana, one of the largest of the Standard Oil group of companies, flared up in the stock market today when Standard of Indiana shares shot up about 10 points as huge blocks of stock were purchased, presumably to be voted at the meeting next March when the controversy will reach an ante-climax. The difference between John D. Rockefeller, Jr., one of the largest individual stockholders, and Col. Stewart date back to the Teapot Dome investigations in Washington, when Col. Stewart refused to answer certain questions put by Senatorial investigators. Mr. Rockefeller announced publicly that he had lost confidence in Col. Stewart's fitness to remain at the head of the company and requested the latter's resignation. This was refused and an outcome was that the Rockefeller stock was not voted at the subsequent meeting. Now, however, the Rockefeller campaign to force Col. Stewart out has probably been decided upon and letters have been sent to stockholders requesting that proxies be returned to a committee headed by Mr. Rockefeller. The usual company requests for proxies have also been sent out. Col. Stewart is named as a proxie in the latter, a customary procedure. The actual Rockefeller holdings of Standard of Indiana are said to be but 15 per cent of the stock outstanding, but it is generally assumed that the Rockefeller interests will be able to influence a much larger percentage of the shares when the voting takse place. Chicago dispatches today said that leading commission houses there will leave the voting of Indiana proxies to the margin holders of the stock instead of signing the proxies and returning them to the management themselves as has been the custom in former years. It is likely that most brokerage houses throughout the country will follow this course.

Copper Output and Consumption.

Copper stocks increased 26,626,000 pounds in December, bringing total surplus up to 130,902,000 pounds. There is no concern over this surplus as it is equivalent to less than one-half total tonnage of copper produced in North and South America. The oil industry would profit by following the policy of the copper companies in keeping production within the bounds of consumption. Last year production of copper in North and South America was 3,255,695,000 pounds and shipments 3,315,362,000, indicating that more copper was consumed than produced.

Crops and the market.

Years ago the big market influence of the year was the crop outlook. In recent years crops have been grown and harvested without attracting any great amount of attention in Wall Street. Wheat, corn and oats fluctuate up and down in price without comment. The reason is that as a result of more scientific farming Wall Street takes good crops each year for granted. A big crop failure would hurt the stock market badly, but traders have concluded that such developments are no longer to be feared.

Market Sentiment Differs.

Sentiment continues decidedly two-sided. Conservative observers still favor reducing long accounts on upturns and the protection of accumulated profits with stop orders. These advices have caused increased caution and discrimination among outsiders who have been taking a position on the long side. More attention is being given to the merits of stocks than heretofore. The bulls continue to predict higher prices. They maintain that nothing more than technical reactions will come into the market and believe such recessions will offer excellent opportunities for the purchase of the good stocks at reasonable levels.

R. J. Reynolds Earnings.

Report of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company for year ended December 31, 1928, shows net income of $30,172,563 after interest, depreciation, federal taxes, etc., equivalent to $7.54 a share (par $25) earned on combined 4,000,000 shares of the old common and class B common stocks outstanding at end of year and before splitup of 2½ new shares of $10 par for one old share. This compares with $29,080,664 or $7.27 a share on combined shares in 1926.

Industrial Alcohol Outlook.

There is every present indication for a prosperous year for the distillers of industrial alcohol. Maintenance of governmental restriction on output and the placing of the individual companies on a quota basis seems certain to obviate any likelihood of overproduction, which proved a drawback to the industry prior to 1928. A better spirit of co-operation is noted throughout the industry which is manifested in a free interchange of statistics on output and inventories, tending to eliminate production of surplus stocks and consequent price warfare. A firm schedule of prices is being maintained, level being about 5 cents a gallon higher than at the beginning of 1928. Posted prices are 46 cents a gallon, tank car; 48 cents a gallon in drums, carload lots. There is a possibility that there may be a upward revision in prices in the next few months, reflecting the firmer trend in price of raw material, blackstrap molasses. Current price on Cuban blackstrap at New Orleans is approximately 11 cents a gallon, compared with about 6 cents a year ago.

Crown Cork and Seal.

While complete figures are not yet available, net income of Crown Cork and Seal Company after all charges, but before federal taxes, was about $1,400,000 last year. Preferred dividend requirements were $392,000, leaving about $1,000,000 for the 267,971 shares of common stock. Company also realized more than $1,000,000 on assets sold during the year. Gross sales were close to $11,000,000 for all 1928.

Rock Island Estimate.

Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway Company net income for 1928 is estimated at $13,500,000, equal after preferred dividends to $13.35 per share on 744,825 common shares. This would compare with surplus after charges of $12,564,830 in 1927, or $12.10 a common share.

Continental Cuts Gasoline.

Continental Oil Company and other companies in Colorado have reduced the retail price of gasoline 1 cent a gallon.

"Gallonage Competition" on Coast.

Gasoline gallonage competition on the Pacific Coast has resulted in reopening the price war, with three seats of disturbance in Los Angeles, Portland and Seattle, where price cutting prevails. Major marketing companies with few company-owned stations are maintaining posted market price of 20½ cents a gallon, but independents are posting "six gallons for a dollar" signs, overstepping rules of ethics laid down last fall.

Building Under Last Year.

New construction contracts awarded in 37 states east of the Rocky Mountains the week ended January 11 totaled $89,962,200, the F. W. Dodge Corporation reports. Total since the first of the year increased to $120,982,500. A daily average of $13,442,500 compared with a daily average of $16,296,000 for January of last year.

Demand for steel in the automobile industry is expected to reach its peak in February. Sheet bars in the Youngstown district are reported moving firmly at $34 for the first quarter, with no prospect of a change.

Stockholders of Golden Center Mines, Inc., of record January 21, have been offered the right to subscribe to new shares at $10 a share in the ratio of two new shares for each one share held. The stock is selling around 12 on the New York Curb market. The capital stock has been increased to 1,500,000 shares from 500,000 shares.

Archer-Daniels-Midland.

Archer-Daniels-Midland Company and subsidiaries reports for quarter ended November 30 net profit as $417,849 after depreciation, federal taxes, etc., equal after preferred dividends to $1.42 per share on 240,426 no-par common shares, against $389,472 or $1.57 on 200,000 common shares in the November, 1927, quarter.

Ford of Canada.

Ford of Canada soared 150 points on the New York Curb today in response to rumors that the company was planning a recapitalization and a split-up of the shares. The stock opened with an overnight gain of 80 points and moved up 70 more in subsequent trading. Later in the day, however, it was stated that a Ford official had denied that a recapitalization plan was under consideration. The split-up rumor was to the effect that the present stock would be exchanged for a new issue on the basis of 100 new shares for one of the present outstanding.

Following a statement by W. R. Campbell, vice president of the company, that the rise was unwarranted, the stock dropped back 150 points.

Says Bulge Unwarranted.

That on the real facts of the company's business, there is not the slightest ground for the present wild speculation in the stock of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, was a positive statement issued today by W. R. Campbell, vice president. "As a matter of fact," Mr. Campbell said, "the Canadian Ford Company has suffered a deficit of approximately $4,000,000 on its operations during the year 1928, and there is not the slightest possibility of a dividend being declared in 1929. I am calling the public's attention to this matter only because we are being besieged with inquiries from many sources, and I believe that it is incumbent upon us to make a statement. Reports have gone around, from a variety of sources, that the Canadian Ford Company earned profit of $5,000,000 in 1928, when, as a matter of fact we shall have a deficit of approximately $4,000,000. All the figures are not yet available, but there is little doubt that the loss will reach that figure."

American Sugar.

American Sugar Refining has shown pronounced strength in recent sessions. That stock has been under accumulation for some time. It is said in quarters which have been taking the stock that preliminary confidential figures for 1928 show a satisfactory increase in earnings and some of the estimates for this year indicate a substantial gain is likely to be recorded. There was a persistent short interest in Sugar which has recently been forced to cover, as offerings were not liberal during the recessions. This covering has aided in establishing the issue at a new high for the current advance.

Railroad Performances.

Railroad shares continue to have the buying recommendations of the conservative element. There is a growing tendency to watch the progress being made in increasing car loadings, because these must result in larger earnings. In this connection the gains recorded in December have been studied closely. Increases shown last month by some of the roads which are quite popular with the public include the following: Baltimore and Ohio, 16.5 per cent; Chesapeake and Ohio, 14.1 per cent; Delaware and Hudson, 11.7 per cent; Lackawanna, 22.1 per cent; Erie, 16.3 per cent; Great Northern, 10.6 per cent; New York Central, 12 per cent; New York, Ontario and Western, 16.2 per cent; Norfolk and Western, 23.2 per cent; Pennsylvania, 10.8 per cent; Reading, 11.5 per cent; Texas and Pacific, 13.6 per cent; Wabash, 15.1 per cent, and Western Maryland, 20.4 per cent.

Arkansas Gas Firm

Stock Rally Checked

SCREW & BOLT DROPS UNDER PROFIT-TAKING

Trading on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange continued to reflect increased interest in securities today, with the volume running up to yesterday's uncommonly large total and prices holding generally firm to strong.

Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt, recent leader of the market here, was subjected to a little profit-taking and sagged off 4 points from yesterday's high during the first hour's business. The stock had enjoyed an advance of about 20 points in the past few days on reports of the company having obtained patents on a new airplane propeller which is said to have been approved by the Wright brothers and the government. Several thousand shares of the stock changed hands on the advance but, so far, only a relatively small volume of this accumulated stock has been sold to convert the paper profits into cash.

Arkansas Gas was another active favorite in today's market and was taken in large blocks at the best levels of the current upturn. Reports in the Street are to the effect that a pool has been formed in Arkansas and that the objective on the present movement is $6 a share. On the last previous advance the price was advanced from 2½ to 4 after which the stock sagged back to around 3. The present activity started with the stock around 3⅛.

Pittsburgh Plate Glass was firm around 67, the price to which it rallied after having sagged to 65 early this month. Standard Sanitary was in fair demand in reflection of buying of the shares in the New York market. Blaw Knox was firm at a slight fraction above yesterday's prices.

Lone Star Gas got into action for the first time since the turn of the year. The stock was wanted in good-sized blocks and moved up more than a point from the level at which it had been changing hands for several days past.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—Fresh strength developed here in corn values today after early downturns. A wave of extreme heat intensifying drought damage was reported as sweeping over Argentina and Buenos Aires. Quotations on corn were sharply higher. Open unchanged to ⅛ off. Chicago corn prices later showed gains all around. Wheat, affected by Liverpool weakness, started ⅛ to 1c lower and afterward displayed but little power to rally. Oats also were easier and provisions likewise inclined downward.

At noon, corn was ⅜ to 1c net lower and wheat 1c to 1⅛c down.

With advices at hand indicating drought damage to the Argentine corn crop was rapidly becoming worse on account of record high temperatures approximating 100 degrees, the corn market here began early today scoring new upturns in price. Aside from drought reports, dispatches also were current estimating that Argentine corn supplies available for export in the next 10 weeks would total only 22,000,000 bushels, an amount altogether inadequate to meet European requirements, and pointing to enlarged purchases elsewhere, the United States in particular.

Big buying of May delivery of corn took place here today when the price for that month sagged early to 98⅝c. A leading speculator took hold on a large scale, and the price jumped more than a cent a bushel in short order. Meanwhile, receivers reported country offerings of corn to Chicago as being smaller and chiefly held at ½c to 1c above the market.

ADVANCE OF MONEY RATE CHECKS RALLY IN STOCKS

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Marking up of the call money rate from 7 to 8 per cent checked a promising rally in today's stock market in which about a score issues were elevated to new high levels. Many of the early gains ran from 3 to 8 points, but these were cut down in the wave of selling which swept over the market in the early afternoon, and several of the industrial favorites sagged 1 to 3 points below yesterday's final quotations.

With high grade securities yielding less than 5 per cent in many cases, operators for the advance found it difficult to attract margin speculators who were willing to pay carrying charges of 3 per cent or more above the income return in the hope of making it up through capital appreciation. With Federal Reserve authorities bending every effort to reduce the volume of speculative credit available, without endangering purely commercial needs, several of the conservative commission houses continued to urge a cautionary policy.

There was practically nothing in the day's news to influence the price movement. Such trade reports as came to hand were favorable and showed no change in the general situation.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—No sales were reported in the raw sugar market early today, but late yesterday about 75,000 bags of Cuban for prompt shipment and 21,000 bags of Philippines for early February arrivals sold to local refineries at a decline of 1-32c, or on the basis of 3.80c delivered. It was believed that additional quantities could be had at the same level.

The raw sugar futures market opened 1 point lower to 2 points higher and continued to move within that range throughout the forenoon, with the list at midday unchanged. The late months appeared to be relatively steady on covering and some commission house buying, but trading on the whole was light with operators inclined to limit fresh commitments and await the outcome of today's meeting in Cuba, relative to the single selling agency plan.

In refined prices were unchanged at 5.05c for fine granulated with business only of moderate proportions and limited to nearby requirements.

From Watch Charms to Airplanes

The Romance of Aluminum

A TINY watch charm of aluminum was worn by the King of Siam . . . precious jewelry a century ago, for it represented practically all of the pure aluminum in existence.

Not until 1880 was aluminum produced by the electrolytic method, on a commercial scale . . . a few pounds a day was the world's total production and most of that was made in Pittsburgh. Prior to this time a purely chemical method was the only one available.

Today, production exceeds a million pounds a day. Cooking utensils, desks, chairs and filing cabinets are now made of this once rare metal. Candy, chewing gum and foodstuffs are wrapped in aluminum foil. Collapsible tubes for tooth paste and shaving cream are made of aluminum. Bridges and towers of structural steel are painted with aluminum paint, and a great deal of aluminum is used in the construction of railway passenger coaches. Yet we are hardly conscious of the part aluminum has played in the world's development.

In the automotive industry, which consumes about one-third of the total production, aluminum has become an essential. It has made practical the manufacturing of airplanes and dirigibles by solving the serious problem of weight reduction. Today aluminum has replaced other metals in thousands of manufactured articles.

Pittsburgh is especially interested in aluminum because its commercial production in the United States was begun in this city. The Aluminum Company of America had its beginning in Smallman Street, near Thirty-second, where the inventor, Charles M. Hall and Arthur Vining Davis, now chairman of the Board of Directors, worked day and night in a little semi-commercial laboratory. Although the new method was many times more economical than the old, still aluminum was very expensive and each day's production was locked in the safe over night.

Here was a small beginning but owing to the courage and foresight of a few business leaders of Pittsburgh, headed by Alfred E. Hunt, the Aluminum Company of America was organized. From then on the constant research and development of this institution steadily reduced the cost of production until aluminum is now available for many products in which the older metals have been used.

Throughout its splendid history, the Aluminum Company of America has maintained an account at the Mellon National Bank. It has been a pleasant and mutually profitable relationship. To the employees of the Aluminum Company in Pittsburgh and vicinity, the Mellon National Bank extends a cordial invitation to open an account and to make such use of the bank's facilities as they desire.

"All Your Banking Under One Roof"

PIG IRON BASIS OF U. S. STEEL EFFICIENCY

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE modernization plans announced by the United States Steel Corporation for three plants in this district are only a portion of a general improvement program to bring all of the finishing departments up to the highest possible rate of efficiency during the next few years, in the opinion of many in the steel trade.

Even though the corporation now attains considerably lower costs than the independents, the general impression is that these savings are attributable to the ability to assemble raw materials cheaply, rather than to the finishing mills.

The United States Steel Corporation, through the ownership of all of its ore and coal supplies, as well as most of the transportation systems necessary to bring materials to the mills, attains its greatest savings in the manufacture of pig iron.

THE leader of the steel industry now finds that the advance of engineering knowledge has made many plants obsolete and has pointed the way to even greater savings in costs through the improvement of finishing mills. It would not be surprising if the corporation is embarking upon a period of great capital expenditure along these lines.

The policy of eliminating small isolated plants and of concentrating their production at points where better costs can be secured will undoubtedly form an important part of this program. This trend towards centralization has been under way for some time. It has been responsible for the closing of many of the oldest mills within Pittsburgh's city limits.

The movement of mills from the city does not mean that Pittsburgh is slipping from its supremacy in the steel business. The operations are merely being transferred to other plants such as those at Homestead and Braddock. The business is being kept in the district while the city itself is undergoing a natural transition in its development. It is changing from a predominantly manufacturing city to a great banking and commercial center.

SHREWD merchants, such as those operating Sears, Roebuck & Co., would not put over $1,000,000 of their money in a store here unless they had faith in the great potentialities of this district.

The Steel Corporation has by no means been neglecting Pittsburgh during the past few years. In ad[illegible] to the rebuilding of plants [illegible]nestead, the largest by-prod[illegible]ke plant in the world has [illegible]ut in operation at Clairton.

LOCAL investment bankers are working on several new deals which will result in public participation in the ownership of more of Pittsburgh's closely controlled business enterprises.

The last year has been particularly marked by a large volume of purely local financing. These new issues included the sale of stocks of such organizations as Reymer Brothers, Central Ohio Steel, Suburban Electric Development, Duff-Norton Manufacturing Company and McKinney Manufacturing.

THE number of Pittsburgh organizations that are attracting nationwide investment attention has also been increased. During 1928 the stocks of McKeesport Tin Plate, Spang, Chalfant, Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company, Kaufmann Department Stores and Follansbee Brothers were listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(INS.)—Likelihood of a split-up in stock of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Ltd., suggested by current reports in the financial district here, was increased today when the stock opened on the curb exchange at an overnight advance of $104 a share. The stock opened at $825 a share, for 10 shares.

At its present price Ford Motor of Canada is the highest priced stock on the exchange and almost unavailable to the ordinary investor.

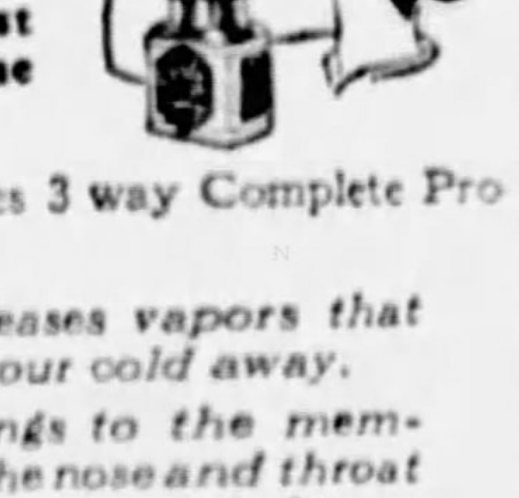
NOZOL

99% of Cold Germs First Lodge in the Nose



NOZOL gives 3 way Complete Protection.

1—Nozol releases vapors that breathe your cold away.

2—Nozol clings to the membrane of the nose and throat and germs cannot lodge.

3—Nozol washes away mucus and keeps the passages clear.

Only a liquid can do all three. First application of Nozol brings prompt relief.

"Flu" and grippe germs cannot take hold in membranes that are well lubricated . . . such is the advice being given out by leading health authorities.

Nozol costs but little and you should get a bottle today at your druggist. Take no chances, particularly with the present prevalence of flu.

On Sale at May Drug Stores and Leading Druggists.

BUGS BAER Says

SO far as the theory of relativity is concerned and understood. Prof!! Einstein is still a one-man orchestra.

Arthur "Bugs" Baer

Only 12 men in the whole entire works understand the Einstein theory.

And these 12 should be on a jury.

The Einstein theory is really the foundation of many scientific reputations. Even if you do not understand it, you can always explain it to a man who never heard of it.

The professor is wrong in one fundamental when he claims that an egg-plant is the place from which omelets derive their power.

When some people try to look intelligent they merely acquire an educational facial paralysis. We sipped one spoonful of Einstein's alphabetical soup and it didn't make any sense.

The professor is back in Berlin working on his new book which will startle the world.

It has taken him 10 years to write five pages.

He explains that he might have written much faster if his friends hadn't insisted on giving him fountain pens for Christmas.

Although 12 men now understand the Einstein theory, but six of them will be able to comprehend the meaning of the professor's new book.

Looks like Einstein will not be satisfied until he makes everybody dumb.

Some day he will write something that nobody will understand, and they will put him on the Long Island School Board.

Einstein writes at the hair-bobbing rate of one page every two years.

His stenographer collects a week's wages for crossing a T.

He sneaks over a comma during eclipses of the sun and had a nervous breakup when he accidentally dotted a January 1 in August.

When the Einstein theory was propounded, the Royal Society in London said, "We cannot understand it. But we can confirm it."

When the new Einstein book is out it will have a big sale among people who like to carry books under their arms with all the dignity and pride of monkeys clinging to cocoanuts.

OH, DON'T YOU START ANYTHING-WITH ME GEORGE BUNGLE! I HAD AN EXPERIENCE TODAY THAT LEFT ME PERFECTLY SPEECHLESS. I WAS OUT WITH PEGGY WHEN SHE SAW A BIG GREEN CAR WITH A SHEIK DRIVING IT. WELL HE STOPPED HIS CAR RIGHT IN HEAVY TRAFFIC TO SIMPLY SMIRK AT HER, AND SHE VERY BOLDLY STARED BACK AT HIM.
A SHEIK, EH? I SURE WISH I'D BEEN THERE!
I BLAME PEGGY JUST AS MUCH.........MORE, THAN I DO HIM. WELL ANYHOW WHAT GOT ME WAS HOW VERY COOLLY PEGGY ACTED WHEN I INSISTED THAT A MAN SELDOM LEERS AT A GIRL UNLESS SHE GIVES HIM REASON FOR IT. OH, MY BLOOD JUST RAN COLD!
SUCH CRUST! HOW I'D LOVE TO WORK ON A BUM LIKE THAT.
WAIT. YOU HAVEN'T HEARD ALL OF IT. THEN PEGGY AND I GOT ON A STREETCAR AND CAME HOME. TWO OR THREE TIMES I THOUGHT I SAW A GREEN AUTO TEARING PAST THE CAR, BUT I THOUGHT MAYBE I WAS JUST SEEING THINGS BECAUSE I WAS SO WORKED-UP AGAINST PEGGY.
I KNOW BEFORE YOU TELL ME THAT THE SHEIK FOLLOWED YOU. WELL TOMORROW I'LL.......
WAIT! HEAR THE REST OF IT. WE GOT OFF THE CAR. AS WE GOT IN FRONT OF THE HOUSE I SAW THE GREEN MACHINE AGAIN WHIZZING PAST US. WELL I STOOD ROOTED TO THE GROUND WITH ASTONISHMENT BUT PEGGY SKIPPED UPSTAIRS AS THOUGH A THING LIKE ALMOST INVITING A SHEIK TO FOLLOW US HAPPENED EVERY DAY.

Western Metal Congress, in session this week, will discuss the feasibility of using stainless steel, available in all colors, for false teeth.

The advantages of steel teeth are obvious—

1. They can be magnetized for picking up pins or nails with the mouth.
2. They can be taken out and sharpened at a table grindstone—for steak.
3. Doubtless they can be inverted so a man can extract his own tonsils.

At night they could of course be baited with cheese and used for a mouse trap.

Is $150,000,000 Spent Here Merely a Gamble?

The steel business is better than a year ago. James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation, says so, adding that the demand is good, with prices steady, and that he looks for no change. So confident is United States Steel, according to Mr. Farrell, that it is going to spend $20,000,000 in the improvement of its National Tube plant in McKeesport alone, and additional amounts on the Carnegie Steel plants in Braddock and Duquesne.

A new process of tube-making causes one change, lap-weld tubing being forced into the discard by seamless tubing. Old equipment goes into the junk pile and new replaces it. So, as far as the old plant is concerned, it is through—out. The company could build its new plant elsewhere, but does not. Its decision to re-equip is all the evidence we need that the Pittsburgh district still is considered the steel center of the United States. If further testimony be needed consider Mr. Farrell's assertion—"We intend to keep on spending money in Pittsburgh."

E. T. Whiter, resident vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, in announcing that the company he represents has plans nearly complete for a new $5,000,000 passenger terminal here, joins in the symphony of onward progress. The complete score in this harmony of improvement in this district runs into a big array of millions, just a few projects carrying the sum well beyond the $100,000,000 mark, of which the Pennsylvania alone will have spent $30,000,000, this to include passenger terminal and produce yard betterment.

The new station will be part of a notable group which will embrace the new Koppers Building, now nearing completion, a 36-story office building costing $8,000,000; the Postoffice, diagonally across Seventh avenue and Grant street from the Koppers building; the proposed new Gulf Refining Company building, and other projects.

Along with the foregoing announcements come the statement that the first contracts have been let by the Duquesne Light Company for equipment for the James H. Reed power station, on Brunot's Island, ground for which was broken several months ago. These contracts amount to nearly $2,000,000, of which more than $1,000,000 is to the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company and more than $500,000 to the Babcock & Wilcox Company of Beaver Falls. The first of four units of this station is to cost $10,000,000 and completion of the entire plant will find $40,000,000 expended.

The William Penn Hotel addition, nearing completion at a cost of $6,000,000; the New Grant building, another 36-story structure nearing completion, together with the recently completed Pittsburgher Hotel, the Monongahela Bank building, the projected $50,000,000 Davison steel plant and other buildings, as well as some of those mentioned above, are commented upon in the bulletin of the Building Owners and Managers Association of Pittsburgh.

"If the best brains in the country," it says to its members, "will gamble $150,000,000 on Pittsburgh's future, guess you don't have to worry about a few vacant rooms for a year."

Since the bulletin appeared Sears, Roebuck & Co., Inc., also have decided to "gamble" $3,000,000 on Pittsburgh's future.

If you call persons who attempt to leave out all possibility of "taking a chance" gamblers then these are gamblers. Perhaps the most successful chain-store organization takes a chance in this way: It picks out a tentative site. Then it posts a man there with a registering device which records the number of persons that pass in a day, at certain hours of the day, on different days in the week, and the total for a week. That's the test. If the count is favorable the company selects the site—and gets it, though it sometimes has to wait for several years. In much the same way surveys of the situation are made by sponsors of such great enterprises as have been mentioned here. They don't risk millions without LOOKING OVER THE FIELD thoroughly.

So we guess we don't have to worry—nay, we are SURE—we don't have to worry about Pittsburgh's future. The millions being spent assure us of that.

County Parks Emerging As Public Country Clubs

Announcement that there will be nine holes of the golf course in South Park ready for play in the summer indicates the expeditious manner in which the county is acting to turn North and South Parks into wider recreational channels. It will please taxpayers to note the statement of Paul B. Riis, director of county parks, that $60,000 is being saved through the county doing the work directly instead of by contract.

The golf course in North Park is not so well along, but work there, too, is being carried forward rapidly, showing the intent to have both of these great parks giving the widest use to the public at as early date as possible.

Get yourself a set of golf sticks. Your own country club will be ready for you soon.

Even Finance Learns

Once It Feared Automobiles

There was a time when fewer than 500,000 automobiles were running in this country, and financiers, refusing loans to the automobile industry were calling it "a foolish extravagance, a threat to national well being, a menace to our financial structure."

Now, 25,000,000 automobiles are running. Last year they paid in taxes in various States about $800,000,000 and other hundreds of millions for insurance premiums. High finance sometimes underestimates the people's ability to spend and pay; also their ability and right to manage their own business.

It is intelligent High Finance that is developing and backing the automobile industry today.

Tales That Are Told

Agonizing

IT WAS one of those very small cars and had run out of gasoline. Naturally, the last garage was some eight miles behind, and the harassed motorist was wondering what would be the best thing to do when a large and magnificent car appeared round the bend in the road.

"Could you spare me a drop of gasoline?" he asked of the newcomer. "I've run completely out."

The leather-coated millionaire descended from his car and eyed the diminutive vehicle drawn into the side of the road.

"H'm," he returned, with a contemptuous sniff. "It's not gasoline you want, it's a new automobile."

That Stopped Him

AN official with a very annoying manner was making an inspection of a newly opened flying field.

On this particular afternoon parachute practice was being undertaken by a number of pilots, and the official asked question after question of one man about his experiences and sensations while falling through the air.

"But supposing your parachute fails to open while you are coming down?" he asked finally. "What do you do then?"

The pilot had had more than enough by this time.

"Take it back and change it," he replied very tersely.

Extra Trouble

THE raw recruit was 30 seconds late on the morning of his first dress parade, and later on had to report at the orderly room.

"I am exceedingly sorry, sir," he apologized, "but I woke rather late, and there were only 10 minutes for me to dress."

"Ten minutes!" roared the angry officer. "Why, I can dress comfortably in less than 10 minutes!"

The recruit shifted his weight from one leg to the other.

"Yes, sir," he said innocently. "But I had to wash, sir."

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

TAKING medicine is so much trouble that a lot of folks have quit it altogether, I understand. Anyhow, there was a woman that hired doctors pretty often and always fired them as soon as they hinted that there wasn't really anything the matter with her. Well, she liked doctors that made her take a lot of medicine, and one of her complaints was sleeplessness.

So one smart young doctor gave her tablets to be taken when she went to bed and twice during the night. She called him up one night and says, "Say, Docter, them tablets for sleeplessness ain't doing me any good. I think it's because you got such funny directions on them. How on earth do you take them? My alarm clock ain't very loud, and I've slept right through several times, and they ain't doing me a bit of good."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

ESTHER KING says it's idiotic the things we do in the name of charity.

Giving the poor the craziest ideas—

Why, one of the Christmas relief workers actually gave that Smith girl two real silk undershirts. As if a girl who was working for $16 per week should be wearing real silk shirts! That's the sort of thing that utterly demoralizes a working girl—

I wonder.

"I'm remembering back to a gift some one once gave me—a quite inappropriate, entirely foolish gift.

For three years I had been working in the mines. Working as a man in the muck and rock—

During those three years I had known no slightest touch of luxury or beauty. I had worn the coarse, rasping clothes of a miner—hard flannel—heavy, hob-nailed boots, reeking of their greasing of rancid fat—I had eaten coarse food. Beans. Bacon. Bitter coffee. I had slept on a narrow cot, under ragged blankets—slept the heavy, sprawled sleep of a weary animal. And little by little I had come to think and look like an animal.

My feet were as calloused as a burro's hoofs. My hands were seamed and cracked. My skin was a welted hide. And my spirit had forgotten those lovely whimsies which a woman's mind should never forget.

Then, after three years, a turn of the wheel sent me back to the city to earn a living for myself and my little son. I was under desperate necessity, but at first I could do nothing. For I could not adapt myself to any work which a woman might do. I had become a drudging brute. Indifference and weariness lay in a heavy callous over my spirit. I could not arouse myself—I sat inert, hour after hour in my cheap room, still wearing the stained flannels, the hobnailed boots. Starving.

About that time an old mining friend came to town. We had prospected together in the old days. He had made a little stake and wanted to celebrate. After some search he found me and came, bringing a present. He had given much thought to that present, remembering the pain and ugliness we had shared. To him, it represented all the beauty and fineness those years had lacked. It was a blouse—a cobweb affair of pink gauze and lace.

He laid it in my lap and for a long moment I sat fingering it, the thin silk catching on the rough, broken skin of my hands.

It seemed so strange to me, that lovely thing.

It seemed like something that belonged to a woman and a life that had died long ago. Something that could not possibly belong to me.

Then suddenly, as though a hand had awakened me, I felt a warm shudder of delight. Delight in that beautiful thing that was mine. I lifted the blouse and held it against my flannel shirt. And found myself crying and laughing all in a breath. And the old woman pride came back and a great desire for all the beauty and joy that is a woman's right.

I found my job after that. I was so eager to live that nothing could keep me from finding a job. No, I never wore the blouse. It was two sizes too small. But it made my life 10 sizes bigger—and it has kept it so.

I thought of that when Esther King said that it demoralized a working girl to give her a real silk shirt.

OUR LITTLE FOES

By Garrett P. Serviss

EVEN though you are not a cotton raiser, you know the terror of the foes' advancing line if only you have tried to cultivate a little incidental fruit in your garden. It is war. The enemy assaults by land, by water and by air. His subterranean sappers and his aerial squadrons are equally to be feared. It was not so formerly in places that I knew in rural New York. Then the farmer could look with peaceful anticipation at his apple trees, and in winter could see his cellar bins filled with the green, yellow and red globes of pipins, greenings and spitzenbergs, not one of whose smooth, shining skins had suffered an insect's fell sting, and none of which had its heart's core filled with the bitter dust of concealed death.

Now visit the sites of the old orchards—for which Normandy never had an equal—and if there are any bearing trees to be seen, they are the nurslings of an arboreal hospital, where the scent of sprays, tars, oils, and all the abominations of a war to the death drive away the memory of the pure, sweet, blossom-scented air of other days.

Our insect foes seem to multiply faster than the entomologists can classify them. There are 400,000 described species of these little six-legged Davids, and they have become the terror of the two-legged Goliath, man. They bite him, sting him, poison him; with their mimic hypodermic needles they inject the virus of disease into his veins; in sky-curtaining hosts they descend and eat up his crops, his vegetables, with gardens and whole fields of grain—a blast of ruin worse than Attila's; they league themselves against his only allies in nature, the green things that prepare his food; they cut him off from aid on every side; they devour or vitiate his nourishment; they isolate him, and force him to fight day and night; they are, in effect, allied with the innumerable hosts of microbes—for the ultimate tenor of this war is to give the world over to the reign of the numberless little. It is the rivalry of mere instinct backed by massed innumerability against reason supported by the paucity of conscious, trained individuality.

I believe that all the authority of the world's leading entomologists supports the statement that, looking not only to the future but to the present, the most dangerous rival to the human race is the race of the insects. People who have never practically studied the subject have little notion of the imp-like powers of many insects and of their horrible little cousins, the spiders with their arachnid relatives. It is only their relative minuteness that makes it safe for us to live with them. Have you ever seen a highly magnified image of a fly or a spider? If you have you will not easily forget it. Then imagine them increased in real size to the dimensions of a tiger!

But it is not by virtue of their physical structure that they threaten us. It is because of their countless numbers and their insidious methods of attack. The time has come when there is no longer room in this world for man and the insect hosts at their present pitch of numbers and with their present appetites. Many millions of dollars are annually expended in every civilized land to combat their ravages. In certain cases insects have been set to devour insects in man's behalf, for fortunately there are some species which destroy others.

Bible Passages

"He That Is Washed"

(John 13; 1-17)

NOW before the feast of the passover, when Jesus knew that his hour was come that he should depart out of this world unto the Father, having loved his own which were in the world, he loved them unto the end.

And supper being ended, the devil having now put into the heart of Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, to betray him;

Jesus knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he was come from God, and went to God;

He riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself.

After that he poureth water into a bason, and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded.

Then cometh he to Simon Peter: and Peter saith unto him, Lord, dost thou wash my feet?

Jesus answered and said unto him, What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter.

Peter saith unto him, Thou shalt never wash my feet. Jesus answered him, If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me.

Simon Peter saith unto him, Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head.

Jesus saith to him, He that is washed needeth not save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit: and ye are clean, but not all.

For he knew who should betray him; therefore said he, Ye are not all clean.

So after he had washed their feet, and had taken his garments, and was set down again, he said unto them, Know ye what I have done to you?

Ye call me Master and Lord: and ye say well; for so I am.

If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet.

For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you.

Verily, verily, I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his Lord; neither he that is sent greater than he that sent him.

If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Becalmed

THE sea lay motionless all day
And with the shades of night
There came no lifting wave, no spray
Of foam-flowers, snowy-white,
There came no breeze from far away
Like stir of wings in flight.

The vast expanse lay green and grim,
Without a song or moan,
Save where the shrouding mists hung dim;
From that untroubled zone
Against the far horizon's rim
There came an undertone.

The ship lay motionless at morn,
At eve it had not stirred;
Such calms see strange sea-tales reborn,
Find thoughts and vision blurred:
Then Neptune mocks in cruel scorn
And siren songs are heard.

The ship lay quiet day by day
With weary, drooping wings,
Forgetting harbors far away
Where tropic beauty springs;
Lay like a child grown tired of play,
A child whose mother sings.

The biggest gambler the Rialto has ever known is Florenz Ziegfeld. His profligacy in production is one of the theatrical legends and the despair of his backers. With a glum scowl, he has frequently discarded skits in the Follies that cost him enough to back an average show. In the 1923 Follies he had three carloads of scenery he never used. He vacillates all over the lot—then lands on his feet. Few recall Ziegfeld quit the theater for good in 1904. Making a snug fortune, he spent three years in Europe having a good time, chiefly at Monte Carlo tables. He returned to Broadway flat broke. Today he lives more extravagantly than any of the millionaires. His cigars cost $2 each and aside from an imported British valet, he has a personal physician, masseur and chiropodist. And even at that he won't laugh.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

WHAT sort of an occasion is meal-time in your household?

Is it the time when each member of the family eats as rapidly as possible, and then leaves the table and goes about what he or she wants to do, without the courtesy of waiting for the others to finish?

An "every fellow for himself" atmosphere is not good for digestion.

Perhaps, Mother, you tell Father of the bad actions of each one of your children.

And wordy and heated arguments arise.

Before the meal is over it becomes a family quarrel.

Perhaps you put the paper up in front of you and demand that the others cease talking.

Then you become so interested in your paper that you do not enter into the conversation of your family.

The children have found out that most anything can be put over on you when you read at the meal hour, and you can blame yourself for it.

Quarreling and undue haste should not be a part of the family meal.

Happy meal hours aid digestion and leave a good taste in your mouth.
